A "Toddler's" Power
First Pay What's Owing How to Find Money
Little Country, Big Risk

The granddaughter of the richest man in the world is to have her own way and marry the Swiss riding master, who, it now appears, is four times her age. BUT—

That doesn't settle it. It merely shows the wisdom of the older people.

The young lady is sixteen. The world is filled with boys of eighteen, with curly yellow hair, a knack for "toddling" and a line of conversation, limited, but convincing. A few earnest conversations with such a "toddler," plus time and distance, and the Swiss riding master will ride alone.

You knew what happened in Voltaire's "Zadig." He wanted to stop the widows of India burning themselves alive. He didn't attack the old custom, only passed a law compelling the bereaved widow before being burned to spend a couple of hours in conversation with the handsomest young man in the village.

There were few widow burnings after that. The widows were missing.

The War Department is asking Congress to train 227,000 men, including 37,000 civilians, in various camps this year. Congress would do well to pay what it owes the soldiers that have had their taste of camp life and trench life before sending any others to camp or indulging in any other luxuries. If the nation can't afford what it owes the soldiers, it can't afford anything.

Every banker will say no. Every man who thinks he knows all about money, and knows NOTHING, will lift his hands to heaven in horror. Nevertheless, the soldiers' bonus could be taken care of simply, safely, wisely by issuing currency to pay the soldiers.

Because the banks did not need the money, the Federal Reserve has withdrawn from circulation hundreds of millions of currency. Government, without paying interest or worrying taxpayers, could simply reissue five hundred millions of that currency to the soldiers. NOBODY WOULD EVER KNOW IT, unless the fact were published.

Five hundred millions distributed among two or three million men, would be immediately spent, and spent wisely for things actually NEEDED. This would stimulate trade, help restore prosperity. It would do for the hard times what a good rain does for the hard-baked soil. But it would NOT suit those accustomed to make a nice profit whenever government needs money.

The Egyptians had a leader named Zaglol Pasha, who thought Egypt should be free. The English took him away, which seemed simple. A dispatch from London says the Egyptians have vowed to kill one Englishman every day until Zaglol is returned. It will not be done, probably. The instinct of self-preservation is very strong, but among Orientals it is easy to find many indifferent to death. The number of killings may be annoying.

The British protectorate will be withdrawn. Egyptian leaders will be allowed to form an independent Egyptian government, with their own Foreign Minister and a Parliament.

The tendency is more and more to let people go from when they want to go free. It will be interesting to see what happens if that is done in Egypt, India, the Philippines and others that have not yet proved capacity for self-government.

Railroad traffic fell off in 1921 23 3-10 per cent. compared to 1920—the biggest drop in American railroad history. And the year 1920 was none too good. The number of tons of freight carried one mile in the year 1921 was 104,390,000,000 tons less than in 1920. This shows that merely raising rates on railroads does not solve your problem. You must have brains as well as control of government to make railroads pay.

The United States has told Persia that we expect the Persian open door, and want as good a chance to trade in Persia as anybody else has. Suppose we didn't get the open door, what would the United States DO?

Our government will find that England and Russia have sewed up everything Persian that is worth while. And we certainly are not going to fight about it. For if we started that, getting trade by force, we should be busy.

PELLETIER OUSTED; GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY WITH COAKLEY

11 CHARGES UPHELD BY COURT FINDING

Extortion and the Unlawful Abuse of Authority Fixed on Prosecutor

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier of Suffolk County was today found guilty of extortion and conspiracy with Daniel H. Coakley and William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex County, to extort money for their own use, and was summarily removed from office by order of the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

In eleven out of the thirty-one charges brought against him by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, the full bench decided that the district attorney had violated his oath and was consequently unfit to remain in office.

EMERSON MOTORS—Conspiracy with Attorney Daniel H. Coakley and former District Attorney William J. Corcoran of Middlesex County to extort $25,000 from the motor company to stop threatened criminal prosecution. The court finds Pelletier guilty of "wilful and unlawful abuse of authority" to smother prosecution of a crime.

EMERY CASE—Conspiracy with Coakley, Corcoran and others to extort $50,000 from Mrs. Elizabeth Chase Emery, daughter of a wealthy Worcester County millionaire; Curtis W. Emery, her second husband, and Mrs. Jennie Chase, her mother, "as

SEARCH HARBOR FOR BODY OF HUB WOMAN

A. M. Ferguson at Belfast to Solve Mystery of Wife's Disappearance

Belfast, Me., Feb. 21.—The authorities today began to drag the harbor in a search for the body of Mrs. Edith Ferguson, wife of Alfred M. Ferguson of Boston, who has disappeared.

No clew to the woman's disappearance has been discovered since her eyeglasses were found on the Eastern Steamship Company Wharf, presumably where she had dropped them.

Her husband arrived here from Boston today and took charge of the search. It is feared that Mrs. Ferguson either fell or jumped into the harbor and was drowned.

Reed Says: 'No Case Was Made Against Pelletier'

Washington, Feb. 21.—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who was counsel for Joseph C. Pelletier during his trial, said today that regardless of the verdict no case had been made against his client.

"I have not seen the opinion of the court," said Reed, "but no matter what its opinion may be, I still say that the evidence in the case utterly failed to show any misconduct on the part of Mr. Pelletier.

"This is all I care to say about the case until I have read the opinion."

HURWITZ IS PUT TEMPORARILY IN CHARGE

Named by Allen to Fill Post of Pelletier Until Governor Cox Acts

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen today appointed Assistant Attorney-General Albert Hurwitz to succeed Joseph C. Pelletier as district attorney of Suffolk County, pending the appointment of a permanent successor by Governor Cox.

A statement issued today by the Attorney-General reads:

"The Attorney-General was informed by Clerk Frederick of the Supreme Judicial Court for the commonwealth that a decree of judgment of ouster had been entered upon the information filed by the Attorney-General for the removal of District Attorney Pelletier.

"Immediately upon notice of Mr. Pelletier's removal, he designated Assistant Attorney-General Albert Hurwitz to take charge of the district attorney's office during the interim until the vacancy is filled by appointment by the Governor. The Attorney-General also designated Assistant Attorney-General Goldberg to the district attorney's office during this interval.

"Assistant District Attorney Henry F. Fielding will be requested by the Attorney-General to continue his service under direction of Mr. Hurwitz. The services of Assistant District Attorney Daniel M. Lyons, who is now in charge of the trial of cases in the criminal session, will be retained for the purpose of completing the trial of cases pending in that session.

"The Attorney-General has further stated that he will continue Mr. Lyons in entire charge of the pending proceedings upon his own (Mr. Allen's) indictment until a new district attorney has been appointed and qualified, in order that Mr. Pelletier's purposes in the conduct of the proceedings against the Attorney-General may not be interrupted or affected in any way by Mr. Pelletier's removal."

13,421 ALIENS FOR BAY STATE IN SIX MONTHS

Washington, Feb. 21.—Of the 706,121 immigrants admitted during the last six months of 1921, 63,911 selected New York State as their permanent residence, the Bureau of Immigration announced today. Pennsylvania is second on the list with 59,156, while Illinois is third with 55,634. Other States receiving large numbers include Massachusetts, 13,421, and Connecticut, 4,169.

"STILL" TO DISTILL AUTO WATER, STILL HE IS FINED

Joseph Maxwell of No. 93 Cornell street, Roslindale, in West Roxbury court today said he ran stills to distill water for automobile batteries. Sergeant Ramsey and Special Officer Hergt said they seized liquor and stills at the defendant's home. Judge Perrins fined him $100. He appealed.

1 DEAD, 20 HURT IN R. I. STRIKE

Pawtucket Police, Armed With Riot Guns, Fire Into Mob at Mill

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 21.—With one man shot dead, another whose identity is unknown reported dead, and about a score injured, Rhode Island was stirred by industrial strife after its clash today between striking cotton mill workers and the police.

Juan D'Dassemcau, a grocery store clerk, was shot to death as he sat in the seat of a delivery truck when police in charge of Mayor Robert Kenyon swept a gathering of more than 3,000 strikers and sympathizers with riot guns.

D'Dassemcau leaves a wife and two children in Portugal. Faschalo, who was married yesterday, will recover.

At Providence Governor San Souci today called out all available militia to restore order in Blackstone and Pawtuxet valleys. Martial law will not be declared, the Governor explained, as no provision is made for such action in Rhode Island's statutes.

HOW RIOT STARTED.

Today's riot here was precipitated by an angry woman striker who attacked Police Sergeant Timothy Flynn after Mayor Robert A. Kenyon had read the riot act and ordered the strikers to disperse. During the rioting Mayor Kenyon was himself attacked and beaten over the head with sticks.

He remained on the spot, however, until quiet was restored.

Mayor Kenyon went early in the Jenckes Spinning Mills when it was reported strikers were interfering with those who were going into the mills to work. He took twenty-five police, under command of Lieutenant Denis F. Ballou. When they arrived there was already rioting going on and girls who were entering the mill were being mauled by the mob.

READS RIOT ACT.

The Mayor read the riot act at once and then spoke to the police. He said:

"Keep calm. Do not get excited. Do your duty—and shoot only if you are interfered with or shooting becomes necessary."

Even while he was speaking sticks and stones were flying. Mary Almo-

Mary Garden May Be Geraldine Farrar's Successor

By International News Service.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Future operatic plans of Mary Garden, director and prima donna of the Chicago Opera Company, were matters of deep concern for opera lovers here today.

Reports from Philadelphia, where the Chicago company is now appearing, indicate Miss Garden may quit her post as artistic head of the company.

It is understood that a contract has been tendered her, conditional upon the success of the endowment fund now being raised for the opera organization. One report here said Miss Garden might transfer her allegiance to the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, taking the place vacated by Geraldine Farrar.

"SHOPLIFTING QUEEN" IS TRAPPED AGAIN

New York, Feb. 21.—Admitting that she was known to the police of Boston, Philadelphia, Worcester and other cities as "Sylvia, the Shoplifting Queen," Miss Catherine Wilson, thirty-eight years old, was arrested today as she walked out of a department store with a new dress she had not paid for. She was held in $10,000 bail, after she had admitted having been arrested fourteen times and spending five years of her life behind the bars. She promised "never to do it again."

HELD FOR GRAND JURY IN O'KEEFFE ROBBERY

Ralph Rich, aged twenty-one years, giving his address as No. 2179 Washington street, Roxbury, was held for the Grand Jury in Roxbury Court today on a charge of robbery. He waived examination.

Special Officer Wall of Station 9 charged that he was one of the men that robbed Stephen Tierney, a collector for M. O'Keeffe of 14,000 in Roxbury a week ago yesterday.

FOUR SHOT IN WEST VIRGINIA MINE FIGHT

Wellsburg, W. Va., Feb. 21.—Four men were wounded, two of them seriously, in a revolver battle early today between a guard at Labelle mine No. 4, of the West Virginia Pittsburgh Coal Company, and a score of striking miners. The battle took place on the Pennsylvania railroad bridge at the approach of the mine near here.

COLLINS CONCEDES DEFEAT

"Ireland Will Soon Be Free," Says "President of Republic"

By International News Service.

Dublin, Feb. 21. — The De Valera party in the Ard Fheis was the first victory today when that body voted in favor of open balloting, which had been advocated by the former president.

The figures on this decision indicated a majority for the anti-treaty party of several hundred. It is possible that many uncommitted delegates voted for open balloting as a matter of principle.

Dublin, Feb 21.—Michael Collins, in a statement to the International News Service this afternoon, conceded victory to Eamon De Valera upon his motion in the Ard Fheis stating that the Sinn Fein could not accept the Anglo-Irish treaty.

De Valera proposed a resolution that the Sinn Fein could not support

ARMY DIRIGIBLE BLOWS UP

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 21.—The army dirigible Roma, purchased by the United States government from Italy, and only recently commissioned, was destroyed by an explosion today while operating over the Hampton Roads naval base. The airship, believed to be carrying a number of passengers, landing in flames near the naval base. Soon after she fell four men were taken off alive. The heat of the flames was so intense that those near when the craft landed were unable to approach. The four men rescued were badly burned.

Washington, Feb. 21.—A report to the Navy Department said 35 persons were killed when the Roma blew up.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Unless something intervenes, President Harding will go before a joint session of Congress with his "remuneration" proposal for the rehabilitation of the merchant marine "within a few days," it was stated at the White House today.

HELD IN HAVERHILL FOR OKLAHOMA POLICE

Haverhill, Feb. 21.—The police today arrested Leroy Rubin, a shoe cutter, on charges made by the Nowata, Okla., police that he has uttered fraudulent checks in that State. He was held in $500 bail to await the appearance of officers from Oklahoma.

You Ought to Have One of These Good Automobiles

So many good machines are being offered for sale now, in many cases because the present owners would like another make or later model. The ones they are offering through the "Automobile Exchange" columns are practically new so far as looks and serviceable qualities are concerned, but that is your gain.

It makes it easy for you to own a good-as-new car at a very material price reduction and to enjoy right now the pleasure which car ownership makes possible.

Read the bargains today and investigate their merits. They will most surely appeal to you.

'ERIN SOON WILL BE FREE'

the treaty under the articles of the Republican constitution and forecasting that "Ireland soon would be free."

"It would be better for Ireland to have two armies working for her than one divided against itself," said De Valera, in moving his resolution. "No power on the part of England could divide myself and Arthur Griffith (founder of the Sinn Fein). Although we are now separated, we could come together on essential matters."

"Only by a resistance to Britain and not through co-operation can Ireland gain her freedom."

He urged a policy of passive resistance if the Sinn Feiners felt that active resistance had failed. De Valera and his political rival, Michael Collins, evinced no personal animosity towards each other. Before the meeting they met and shook hands, clasping together a two-fisted grip.

Arthur Griffith moved a resolution calling upon the Sinn Fein to support the treaty in his speech Griffith said:

"If the English remain in Ireland it is the fault of the treaty opponents. We won full freedom under the treaty and must face the reality that Ireland cannot defeat England in warfare."

The delegates of the Ulster Sinn Fein as a caucus agreed to vote individually instead of en bloc. John Milroy, one of the Ulsterites, said he estimated (three-fourths of the Sinn Feiners from the North favored the treaty.

Speaking of the delegates in support of the treaty, Collins urged Irish unity, saying that he believed that " would eventually join the Free State.

"...believe it is possible to attain this and I ask the supporters of Mr. De Valera not to obstruct," said Collins.

26 Captured Unionists Not Yet Returned

By Associated Press.

Belfast, Feb. 21.—Twenty-six of the Unionists captured in the recent raids in northern Ireland have not been returned, the Ulster Home Office announced today.

Of these men, fourteen are Class "A" special constables and eleven Class "B" specials. The other missing man is Ivan Carson, former high sheriff of Fermanagh, who was kidnaped at Clady February 3.

Ulster Sends Wilson to House of Commons

Belfast, Feb. 21.—Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, former chief of staff of the British army, was returned unopposed today as Unionist member of the House of Commons for North Down.

Announcement was made on February 8 that Field Marshal Wilson would join the Ulster party upon his retirement as chief of staff.

Three days later he was endorsed as the Unionist candidate for the vacant seat in Parliament for North Down. Indications in recent dispatches have been that he will be a strong supporter of the policies of Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster.

Charitable Irish Society Sends Cable to Collins

Members of the Charitable Irish Society at their monthly meeting, held at the City Club, became involved in heated discussion over the wording of a cablegram addressed to Michael Collins endorsing the Irish Free State. After a lengthy argument proponents of the measure compromised for the sake of harmony on a cablegram of a much more general nature than was at first offered.

The following message was indorsed and sent: "The Charitable Irish Society sends its congratulations to the Irish Free State for the achievements thus far secured, and may God in his wisdom direct the Irish people to solve the problems now confronting Ireland."

MRS. MARGARET O'LEARY SEEKS MISSING BROTHER

Mrs. Margaret O'Leary of No. 37 Carney street, Charlestown, has asked the Boston American to aid her in finding her brother, Joseph Foley, last heard from at the Troy Club, Troy, N. Y.

Foley left Ireland when only ten years old and came to live with Mrs. J. E. Quinn of Williamstown. He remained there for a time and struck out for himself. Since then his relatives have heard little of him.

Mrs. O'Leary is the mother of six small children and Foley is her only living relative in this country.

COAKLEY PAYS $561,000 TO THE TREMONT TRUST

Indebtedness to the Tremont Trust Company in the amount of $561,000 has been settled by Daniel H. Coakley, who has turned over cash and securities for that sum. He has, however, filed claims totaling for $70,000 which he alleges to have lost while assigning to keep the trust company above water. He will probably bring suit within six months.

QUIET OPTIMISM MANIFEST IN IRELAND

Development and Expansion of Trade Expected to Come Slowly

(This is the sixth of the series of articles on present conditions in Ireland by Robert J. Prew, following his tour of the country for Universal Service. Mr. Prew's articles are authoritative and lucid).

By ROBERT J. PREW,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1922, by Universal Service.)

Cork, Feb. 21.—There is a good deal of speculation all over the world about Ireland's economic and financial future, and there is almost as much uncertainty about it here as there is in the United States or in Australia.

In discussing the possibilities with various commercial manufacturers and shipping men, I find a quiet optimism in the gradual development and expansion of Irish trade, but no belief in the suggestion that there is going to be a spectacular bounding into unprecedented prosperity under the Free State government.

In considering Ireland's economic future it is just as well to get rid of the notion that what is good for one country is necessarily bad for another.

It requires no great stretch of imagination to picture a group of American, or Irish-American, bankers, organizers and efficiency engineers told of the great undeveloped resources of the country and speedily placing its agriculture and industries on a modern basis; establishing new steamship lines to all part of the world; developing its harbors, railways and automobile roads; completely remodelling its methods and handling goods; harnessing the untouched water-power of the country; building new industrial plants and running up canning factories for the fisheries; eliminating London and Liverpool banks from the credit and shipping operations of the country; and so on.

FEEL WAY CAREFULLY.

Judging by the standards of an efficient industrial state, Ireland needs all these things to be done, but the picture will remain but a picture for the present.

Irishmen admit that there is room for a lot of improvement, development and expansion of trade and business efficiency within the four provinces, and they are not going to set their faces against such desirable things. But they would rather feel their way carefully and build slowly on a sure foundation. They do not intend to be stampeded into a swift prosperity that might be followed by a yet swifter collapse.

This is not showing business timidity, but just elementary prudence, which is deemed to be all the more necessary in view of the bankrupt condition of Europe and the chaos in Russia and in America and the dark uncertainties of Russia and Asia.

RICHARD WHORISKEY, PROFESSOR, IS DEAD

Durham, N. H., Feb. 21.—Professor Richard Whoriskey, head of the department of foreign languages at New Hampshire College here, died today of pneumonia. He had been ill for three weeks, but death was not expected until pneumonia developed yesterday. Professor Whoriskey was a native of Boston and was graduated from Harvard in '97. Since his graduation he has been connected with New Hampshire College. He lived with his sister, Mrs. Anna Morgan. John Whoriskey, the singer, is a brother.

'Stole My Heart and My Money, Too,' Said Fiancee

"Judge, he not only stole my heart, but he stole my money," exclaimed Annie Krainik of No. 28 Bradford street, today, in Judge Dowd's court. George Jakinchuck, Annie's truant fiance, was on trial for absconding with $100 which Annie had given him to buy refreshments for the wedding.

"Judge, she talks too much," replied Jakinchuck. "I said to myself, why should I marry a woman who talks and talks and talks? I didn't want to tell her she was foolish, so I go away."

A woman made restitution for Jakinchuck and the case was filed. Patrolmen Louis diIesso and James O'Neill offered their services as best men at the wedding, but the offer was spurned.

CONSOLIDATED ACQUIRES TWO GAS PLANTS

East Boston and Newton & Watertown Companies Merger Approved

A merger of the East Boston Gas Company and Newton & Watertown Gas Company with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company was approved today by the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities.

In concluding its decision the commission says: "In view of all the circumstances we believe not only that no serious embarrassment will result, but that the interest of the whole area supplied by the three companies will, on the whole, be promoted by the consolidation and the relations of the companies to the public improved."

Under the plan as approved the Boston Consolidated will take over the others. The Consolidated company will issue $1,350,000 in additional common stock. All sell gas at the same price, $1.35 a thousand cubic feet.

"For more than fifteen years," says the decision, "the Boston Consolidated has furnished the Newton company all of the gas which the latter company distributes. For a like period the Boston company has supplied the East Boston company with a substantial part, and for the past four years with all of the gas which the latter distributes.

"The capital stock of all three companies is owned by a holding association known as the Massachusetts Gas Companies. For all engineering and operating purposes the three properties have been developed and handled as integral parts of one system.

"Possibly the consolidation may not extend the provisions of the sliding scale act to East Boston and Newton companies, and it is possible that some future complications with respect to the selling price of the Consolidated company may result."

DEPUTY MARSHAL TIGHE MARRIED IN CHICAGO

Chief Deputy United States Marshal James A. Tighe of No. 1464 Commonwealth avenue and Mrs. Mariam F. Ronninus of No. 139 Glenville avenue, Allston, were married last night in Chicago, according to word received today at the Federal Building. The bride is about thirty-five years old while the groom is forty-five years old. The ceremony was witnessed by Arthur Rhinnern, a Boston newspaperman, and his wife.

LEGION MEN AT FUNERAL OF J. P. HOLLAND

Impressive Military Services for East Boston Former Lieutenant

Attended by representatives from nearly every Greater Boston post of the American Legion, the body of former Lieutenant John P. Holland, of No. 786 Saratoga street, East Boston, was laid to rest today with an impressive military funeral.

After lying in state during the night, the body was carried on a caisson of the Coast Artillery Corps to St. Mary's Church, Star of the Sea, East Boston. As the cortege passed Fire Station 11, the members stood at attention.

The mass was in charge of Rev. Richard S. Millard, as celebrant; Rev. Bennett J. O'Brien, deacon, and Rev. Thomas Brennan, sub-deacon.

The body was then carried to Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, where a firing squad from Company C, 101st Infantry, under Captain Frederick Breen, and augmented by a squad from one of the harbor forts, performed the last military rites.

The funeral was in charge of the Lawrence J. Flaherty Post, American Legion. Among those who took part were James T. Duane, State commander of the Legion; Thomas Banigan, past national vice-commander; Colonel Thomas Foley, of the 101st Infantry, and Major Charles Fouhy of East Boston.

Captain Judson Hannigan, representing General Edwards; Colonel S. J. Herbert of Worcester, Mayor McPhetres and his secretary, William Connery of Lynn; Dr. Arthur Brides, head of the Veterans' Bureau; Commander Ray Shaw, of Orient Heights Post; Matthew Boyle, commander of Flaherty Post; Dr. Eugene McCarthy, State commander of the Hospitalization Committee; City Councillors Gillody, Brickley and Moriarty; Senators Thomas H. Green and Thomas F. Donovan, and Congressman Peter F. Tague attended.

SHIELDS NAMED EMPLOYMENT SECRETARY

Curley Chooses Reprisal Worker for Post in New City Bureau

Luke E. Shields of No. 81 Circuit street, Roxbury, was today appointed by Mayor Curley to be secretary of the new City Employment Bureau at a salary of $3,000.

Miss Margaret M. Furie of No. 14½ Mount Vernon street, Charlestown, was appointed telephone operator in the Public Buildings Department.

John J. Herna was named as an officer and baker at the House of Correction at $1,200 a year. He takes the place of Lawrence Robertson.

William R. Regan of the central office of the Public Works Department received an increase of $100 a year, when he was transferred to the place of Philip A. Chapman, who was also transferred. The salary is $1,500 a year and he rates as a clerk.

Shields, the new city employment secretary, was formerly connected with the Boston Reprisal Committee, in the boycott of English-made goods.

SALES TAX PLAN MOST FAVORED IN CONFERENCE

House Ways and Means Committee Acts to End Uncertainty on Bonus Operation

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Congressional revenue hunters resumed their hunt today for means of financing a soldiers' bonus, determined to reach an agreement and bring an end to the embarrassing uncertainty which has kept things in a turmoil in the House for several weeks.

The sales tax plan advocated by President Harding was the generally acknowledged favorite when the tax division of the Republican membership of the Ways and Means Committee met again today. The sales taxers found renewed hope in the fact that a "protest meeting," called by anti-sales tax members, brought only 22 members, whereas a week ago it was known that at least 100 members of the House were opposed to the plan.

An endeavor will be made to make the insurance feature of the bonus bill so attractive that most of the ex-service men will take it instead of cash, thus relieving the burden on the treasury.

With the idea of reducing the number of beneficiaries, the committee also had under consideration a plan to deny the cash bonus features to officers who had no overseas service.

The belief prevails among House leaders that the bonus bill will pass the House if the Ways and Means Committee adopts the sales tax plan and decides to push it through.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon told the Congressmen today that the establishment of a sales tax to provide funds to meet the soldier bonus presents "enormous difficulties of administration" and is inadvisable at this time.

Sales Tax a Success in West Virginia

Charleston, Va., Feb. 21.—The sales tax law in operation in West Virginia since July 1st, and similar in principle to that recommended by President Harding for raising money for a soldier bonus, is working out successfully in this State, according to Tax Commissioner Walter Hallanan. The commissioner is backed in his views by Governor E. F. Morgan.

Both express the opinion that it will more than meet the expectation of its advocates.

Commissioner Hallanan declares it is the most equitable, fairest and simplest form of taxation that exists in any State, and while it is an experiment he says its success seems assured. He estimates that its yield this year will be around $3,500,000, but in normal times it will be close to $4,000,000.

The yield has been no more discouraging and perhaps, in proportion, not nearly as much so as the acute business depression for the past six months would have affected the yield from any other taxation measure," said Commissioner Hallanan.

The rate on coal, oil, gas and limestone is two-fifths of one per cent. more; on all general businessone-fifth of one per cent. with the exception of wholesalers, who pay one-third of one per cent. on gross income. All businesses are exempt up to $10,000.

"The State's finances are now considered in a satisfactory condition, but if the State had depended upon the revenue based upon the net income it therefore our financial situation would now be perilous. The smooth operation of the law is among its strongest recommendations."

HELD IN $5,000 FOR BELMONT SHOOTING

Vincenzo Maggnferro, charged with shooting Thomas Merl of No. 123 Jerome street, West Medford, on Lake street, Belmont, last Sunday, was in East Cambridge District Court today. He pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault with intent to kill and was held in $5,000. Macri, who was wounded in three places, is at Symmes Hospital, Arlington, where it is said he will recover. He claimed Maggaferro opened fire without provocation while he was walking on Lake street.

PETITION TO CONGRESS

For Action on Soldiers' Bonus With Sales Tax to Pay It

WE respectfully petition Congress to pass the soldiers' bonus act without further delay and also to levy a sales tax to obtain the money to pay the bonus, for the following reasons:

FIRST: Public opinion throughout the United States is undeniably in favor of the soldiers' bonus as shown by the decisive majority in every State in which a popular referendum has been taken: in Maine by 3 to 1; New Jersey by 3½ to 1; New York nearly 2 to 1; Rhode Island 6 to 1; Wisconsin 3 to 1; Oregon 2 to 1; Washington 2½ to 1, and so on.

SECOND: We believe that Congress if permitted to vote on the soldiers' bonus bill will favor it with even greater unanimity, regardless of party, than the popular majority by which the people in twenty-two States have already approved it; we believe that the soldiers' bonus cannot and ought not to be defeated and that the longer it is postponed, the greater the injustice.

THIRD: We believe the new tax scheme proposed by the Ways and Means Committee is only a little less objectionable than Secretary Mellon's proposal for three cent postage and for a new three-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline. Proponents of such taxes oppose any soldiers' bonus whatever and hope by linking it with such new destructive and unpopular taxes to kill the proposition altogether.

FOURTH: If the soldiers' bonus is not only right, but inevitable, and if the United States is not to lag behind England, France, Italy, Canada and Australia, which have already paid liberal soldiers' bonuses, then our payment is already long overdue, not as a debt (for our debt to the soldiers can never be paid), but as a just tribute to the valor and the sacrifice of the men who won the war.

FIFTH: The only question that remains is: By what system of taxation shall the money be raised? Not by bond issues, because it is against the traditional policy of the United States to increase debt in time of peace. Not by any irritating, unreasonable or destructive tax on individuals, business or industry, because we already have too many such taxes. A small general sales tax will raise more than enough to pay the soldiers' bonus. It will bear heavily on no one. If the experience of Canada and our own Philippine Islands, where the sales tax is in operation, is repeated, the system will meet with such favor that it will become one of the approved methods of raising necessary revenue after the soldiers' bonus has been paid.

POISONED, TRIES JUMP OUT OF WINDOW; FAILS

Rescued by Hotel Maid, Victim Is Revived at Hospital

Hannah Ryan, a chambermaid at the Quincy House, heard groans in a room at noon today and, rushing in, found the body of A. W. L. Patrouel, fifty-two years old, hanging halfway out of the window.

She called for aid and the man was removed to the Relief Station, Haymarket square, where it was found that he was suffering from the effects of ten strychnine tablets, as well as two cuts on the top of his head, sustained when he had attempted to throw himself out of the window of his room when the poison began to work.

Later he was pronounced out of danger.

On a table near the bed of his hotel room were found two notes. One was addressed to C. M. Foocher, a fellow-employe of the Pittsburgh Steel Company in Wilmington, Del., where Patrouel lives.

The note read, in part:

"Please do something for Louise and Mabel. I can't."

EX-DIRECTOR OF WAR INSURANCE BUREAU DIES

Colonel Cholmeley-Jones Had Been Twice Rejected for Military Service

New York, Feb. 21.—Colonel R. G. Cholmeley-Jones, formerly director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, died at the Presbyterian Hospital early today. He had been ill of heart disease at the hospital since October 30, last.

Colonel Cholmeley-Jones, who was thirty-eight years of age, was twice rejected for military service during the war, but the government, recognizing his ability as an organizer, gave him a captain's commission in the Adjutant-General's department, and sent him overseas with the war risk bureau. In this work he was a colleague of the late Major Willard Straight.

Shortly after he arrived in France, Colonel Cholmeley-Jones became chief of the War Risk Bureau in the American Expeditionary Forces, remaining in France until 1919.

Upon his return to America, he was called to Washington by the Secretary of the Treasury and became director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, his task being the reorganization of the work being done by the bureau. He continued at this work for almost two years, when he resigned to become vice-president of the Finance and Trading Corporation of this city.

Colonel Chomeley Jones brought about the reform which resulted in the consolidation of the War Risk Insurance Bureau, the Federal Board for Vocational Education, and a medical section of the U. S. Public Health Service into one organization known as the Veterans' Bureau.

He was known by the disabled heroes as their great friend. Upon his retirement about a year ago his efforts in behalf of the disabled were warmly praised by the national organization of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and by hundreds of local posts throughout the country.

For several months after leaving the government service he lived in Arizona in an effort to recover his health. While there, he had a complete nervous breakdown and was taken to the hospital here. It was said that only his remarkable will power kept him alive so long.

SENNETT DENIES HE IS ON TRAIL OF SANDS

Declares Great Injustice Has Been Done Mabel Normand by Dispatches

New York, Feb. 21.—An emphatic denial of the widely published report that he was coming East in search of Edward F. Sands, suspected as the slayer of William Desmond Taylor, noted film director, was made by Mack Sennett, head of the Mack Sennett productions, upon the arrival here from the Coast today.

Mr. Sgnnett said that he knew nothing about Sands beyond what he had read in the newspapers, and that he personally had no fixed theory as to Taylor's slayer.

He did declare, however, that in his opinion Miss Mabel Normand, the movie star, had been done injustice by the dispatches involving her name.

"I believe a great injustice has been done Miss Normand," he said. "It was a most unfortunate coincidence—coincidence, I should say—that she happened to be the last person, besides her chauffeur to see Mr. Taylor alive.

"It will be remembered that Taylor walked from the door of his bungalow to the curb and helped Miss Normand into the car. Then her chauffeur drove away."

"What took Miss Normand to Taylor's home at that particular time?" some one asked Sennett.

"She went to the Taylor home to get a book, according to what the authorities brought out," he said. "This statement has been proven to be correct.

DEFENDS MISS NORMAND.

"We in the moving picture industry feel, and the authorities of Los Angeles, we believe, have brought out that Miss Normand knows nothing about the death of Taylor. Miss Normand is a hard worker and a conscientious artist.

"I know positively that Miss Normand at the present moment is doing everything she can to help the authorities solve the mysterious death of Mr. Taylor.'

As to the rumor he had decided to make a personal search for Sands, the murder victim's valet, Sennett had this to say:

"If I knew who killed Taylor I would seek the $4,000 reward that has been offered in California. I might add that, if I could solve the mystery, I would not claim the $4,000 reward. I want to do everything I can, and so do all the other movie people I know, to help unravel the mysterious death of Mr. Taylor."

Mr. Sennett told reporters he had come East merely to look after his business interests and was greatly surprised at the scribes representing him as being bent on the capture of Sands.

UPHOLDS FILM COLONY.

The producer also improved the occasion to enter a vigorous defence of the film colony in the West—after his attention had been called to published "revelations" of conditions out there.

"The people in the moving picture industry, both men and women, are clean living workers," he said. "They work from early morning until late in the afternoon and frequently late into the night. They have to look after their health. They have to preserve their personal appearances to be successful. Despite what has been printed to the contrary, there are certain ideals that are lived up to by the men and women in the moving picture industry.

"The majority of them live good lives, are domestic and home-loving and are most charitable. Why single out a few?

"I say Taylor as I know hundreds of others—slightly," he said. "I am told he was a hard worker, well liked and respected in the community in which he lived."

The producer said he felt nothing was being left undone by the authorities on the Coast to clear up the mystery. He declared he was not "up in the air" today as to the identity or motive of the slayer, because as he was on the day of the tragedy.

Mr. Sennett arrived here on board the Twentieth Century limited today, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Ince. He went direct to the Hotel Commodore.

ELOPERS NOTIFY GIRL'S MOTHER IN LETTER

Spencer, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Wilfred Rivers, nee Miss Harriet Viste, today notified her mother by mail that she and Rivers had eloped to Chatham, Ct., and were married there. Mrs. Roger G. 'I'M VICTIM OF IMPOSTOR,' SAYS 'BRIDEGROOM,' BALKED AT ALTAR

BRIDE TO 'WAIT 100 YEARS'

Despite the fact that their wedding was interrupted at the altar rail by the intrusion of a police inspector, pretty nineteen-year-old Helen Marie Boates of Waltham and Elmer Ralph Antcliffe, her thirty-one-year-old sweetheart, spent the morning in the girl's Waltham home.

Appearing undisturbed by the prospect that Antcliffe may be arrested on charges of perjury, the two are facing the future with hopeful faces.

When a reporter called at the home today Miss Boates was doing the housework in the living room, applying a dust cloth and broom with a cheerful demeanor. Antcliffe was seated in an arm chair smoking a cigarette, pausing at times to cross the room and kiss his sweetheart.

"I am the victim of an impostor," he declared. "The woman in the case, whom the police accuse me of marrying and deserting, is a Maud Greene of Newton. She was married in 1909 to a man who used my name. Later she went to Philadelphia. I don't know where either of them is. I would like to find them and get this straightened out."

TO WAIT 100 YEARS.

Miss Boates believes his story implicitly, and asserts that she is willing to wait "one hundred years, if necessary," for the police to drop their objections to the wedding. Antcliffe is insistent that he was never married before and declares with heat, "this little girl is the only little girl I ever loved."

It was said the couple had kept from Miss Boates' folks the news that the wedding had been stopped.

When a newsboy appeared at the front door to deposit a paper telling of the sensational charges one or the other of the two lovers would seize the paper and hide it, so that the family might not know. And every so often Mrs. Boates, or some other member of the household, would look into the room and beam happily on the supposedly newly-wed pair.

Police meanwhile are trying to locate Antcliffe's "first wife." They refuse to state whether or not they will swear out a warrant for him, saying that they cannot tell until they have obtained more facts in the case. They have thus far been unable to find the woman to whom they claim Antcliffe was married.

PRIEST SETS TRAP.

The police give credit for the halting of the girl's wedding to Fr. Baxter, who learned that the groom was already married and caused Police Inspector Tracey to be at the rectory when the couple with their attendants arrived.

The bridal party drew up to the rectory and the couple, wreathed in smiles, stepped out of the automobile.

Accompanied by their attendants, Miss Josephine Gilson as bridesmaid and Leverett Cooke as best man, the couple entered the rectory. A crowd of school children gathered to watch the picture taken and cheered them as they went in.

They were ushered into the presence of Father Baxter, who, apparently was ready to marry them. Inspector Tracey then stepped between the priest and the couple.

Brusquely he asked of Antcliffe: "Is this your first marriage?"

"Yes," answered the prospective groom with a smile on his face.

"How about this copy of a marriage license filed with the city clerk in Newton that says you were married to Miss Maud Greenough?"

The groom-to-be paled. "Oh, she's dead," he said.

"Then you lied when you state in your intention for this marriage that you were never married before?"

The groom was nonplussed. His "bride" hanging on his arm grew pale. She began to cry. Then, Antcliffe, taking his arm from within that of the girl's stepped toward the policeman and declared: "It's true. It's all my fault. I'll take the blame."

As Miss Boates began to sob and fell to the floor in a state of collapse. The policeman turned to go, but stopped and remarked on the state of the weather and the romance was ended.

EATON BATTLES FOR FREEDOM FROM WIFE

Wants Marriage Annulled on Ground He Was Deceived by Bride

Echoes of the marital troubles of Melville Baker, scion of a wealthy Boston family and a former flyer with the Royal British Flying Corps in France during the World War, were heard when the suit for annulment of marriage brought by Sherbourne Eaton against Olive Mills Beach Eaton of Cambridge, came up in the New York State Supreme Court today.

In the papers in the annulment suit Eaton avers that he and Mrs. Eaton were married in Cambridge in September, 1919, and that at the time he believed Mrs. Eaton to have been unmarried. Later, he declares he learned that she had been the wife of Melville Baker, whom she is alleged to have married in 1916, and that the Baker marriage never had been dissolved.

Eaton also claims in his suit that he found Mrs. Eaton had also been married to John A. Christy of Boston, whom she is alleged to have married in December, 1910.

Revelation of the separation of Baker, whose family was engaged in the wholesale grocery business, and the woman who is now Mrs. Eaton, came about in 1918, when Attorney Thomas H. Bliodeau of Boston brought suit for the recovery of nine tons of coal valued at $90 from M. Henry Norris of No. 9 Newton street, Cambridge.

The then Mrs. Baker claimed that the coal had been given her by her father-in-law when her husband left her to go to Europe to enter the English army, and that she in turn had given it to Norris.

Judge Burke in the Municipal Civil Court, before whom the case was tried, found a verdict in favor of the defendant.

REVEAL BIG DECREASE IN THE U. S. DEATH RATE

Washington, Feb. 21.—The death rate in the United States decreased to 1,396 per 100,000 population in 1920 from 1,496 per 100,000 in 1910, according to figures announced today by the Census Bureau.

All age groups showed a decline in death rate, but the most pronounced decrease was recorded in the figures covering infant mortality under one year of age, the 1920 rate being 9,460 per 100,000 compared with 12,083 per 100,000 in 1910, a decline of about 22 per cent. The rate for the group above seventy-five years of age decreased from 14,269 to 13,490 per 100,000.

CONGRESS TO HAVE SAY ON ALL "AGREEMENTS"

Washington, Feb. 21.—A reservation to "the four power treaty, providing that no "adjustment or understandings" reached under its provisions shall be binding without the consent of Congress, was debated for two hours by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today without action, but with a majority of the members indicating their general approval.

MOTHER AND 3 CHILDREN LOSE LIVES IN FLAMES

Aiken, S. C., Feb. 21.—Mrs. E. E. Mounts and her three children, Hamar 12; Clarence, 13, and Eugene, 2½ years old, were burned to death, and E. E. Mounts, husband of the woman, is in a critical condition in the Augusta hospital, following a fire which destroyed their home here today.

OSER SEEKING VILLA FOR BRIDE

Riding Master Plans to Retire From World When He Weds Miss McCormick

Zurich, Feb. 21.—Max Oser, the riding master, who is betrothed to Miss Mathilde McCormick, granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, is not worrying over the report that the world's richest man wishes his prospective grandson-in-law to become an American citizen.

Oser is going ahead with his preparations for a quiet home life in his native Alps. For several days he has been busy winding up his livery stable and riding school business and negotiating for the purchase of a secluded villa where he may retire from the world with his beautiful young bride.

Announcement of his engagement has caused little change in the personal habits of the riding master. He still retains his bachelor quarters adjoining his stable, where he has resided for some time.

Tongues in Zurich are wagging stories of the "American princess." Among the tales being told are of Miss Mathilde's being beloved because of her interest in the children of the city that she rules. She is beloved because she speaks their tongue, and augmented her youthful friendship by distributing many goodies during her stay.

Max Oser, who is a member of the Cavalry reserve, has been called Major Oser since conducting his riding academy. He is of medium height, strong and athletic. A short cut moustache adds to his cavalry appearance.

It is said Mathilde's mother took her to America because she objected to the seriousness of the romance that was blossoming between the "Major" and Miss Mathilde.

McCormick Says Oser Is Only 40 Years Old

By Universal Service.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Max Oser, Swiss riding master, whose engagement to Mathilde McCormick, sixteen-year-old granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, has just been announced, is only forty years old, not forty-eight to fifty-seven, as previously reported, Harold F. McCormick, Mathilde's father, said here.

Mr. McCormick denied that Mr. Rockefeller, in giving his consent to the match, stipulated that the couple would have to live in America. "Mathilde and her husband will live in Switzerland," Mr. McCormick said.

GEORGE WASHINGTON AS A REVOLUTIONIST

"George Washington was the first revolutionist in America and we spoil this word with a capital 'R,'" said Rev. Dr. Samuel McC. Crothers, pastor of the First Parish Church, Cambridge, in his noon-day address in King's Chapel. "We cannot understand him, until we begin to understand him as a revolutionist," he added. "He was always pleading and fighting for a new order of things. All through his campaign as a revolutionist, he carried on a guerilla war."

FEDERAL CASE AGAINST THOMPSON IS DROPPED

The Federal Court case against Daniel Thompson, former Superior Court officer, charged with attempted jury fixing, has been not-pressed, Assistant United States Attorney Thomas H. Abbott announced today. He said this action was taken because the Federal Court had withdrawn in favor of the Commonwealth. Thompson was charged with accosting a juror, Geo. Ellis in the corridor of the Federal Building last October, on the promise of influencing a jury.

$5,000,000 FOR CROP FAILURE DISTRICTS

Washington, Feb. 21.—Immediate appropriation of $5,000,000 to purchase seed grain for relief among farmers in crop failure areas was unanimously approved today by the Senate Agricultural Committee. The committee authorized Senator Ladd of North Dakota to report favorably a bill sponsored by his colleague, Senator McCumber, placing distribution of funds in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture.

WILLIAM McCARTHY, LAWYER, FOUND DEAD

The body of William McCarthy, sixty years old, an attorney with offices at No. 17 School street, was found lying at the foot of a flight of stairs in the Hotel Washington, formerly the Hotel Langham, on Washington street today. The body was removed to the morgue. Heart disease is believed to have been the cause of death.

THREE MORE CASES IN U. S. BANKRUPTCY COURT

Louis E. Ackerman, Springfield, was petitioned before the United States Bankruptcy Court today by three creditors, whose claims, total $6,563.41. A creditors' petition was also filed against the Allen Spool & Woodturning Company, Boston, claims totaling $5,400. Joseph J. Friedman, Howland street, Boston, tailor, filed a voluntary petition, admitting liabilities of $6,956.41 and no assets.

RICH NEWPORT WOMAN FACES EJECTION WRIT

Newport, R. I., Feb. 21.—Execution was granted by the District Court today of a writ of trespass and ejectment for non-payment of rent against Mrs. James J. Brown, wealthy society woman. da, a striker, assaulted Sergeant Flynn, the police said, and he shoved her under arrest. He was then knocked down by a mob.

About the same moment other officers were attacked by men armed with clubs, stones and stumpshots, and Lieutenant Ballou gave the order to fire.

After six or seven rounds the police ceased firing. The mob had begun to disintegrate and only the more hardy men held their ground. Those the police attacked with their clubs and the butts of their guns.

The dead and wounded were gathered up after the arrests and sent to hospitals in a moving van which was passing. They were:

Juan D'Assemont, killed.

Tony Regosa and Joseph Dias, mortally wounded.

Several others were less seriously hurt and were taken away by their friends. All of those named were shot, except Khamahan, who was battered over the head with the butt of a riot gun in the hands of a policeman.

The prisoners were in Judge Leland J. Tuck's Court shortly after the riot. Miss Almeda Emelia D. Consecanco, Joseph Martins and Anthony Pereira were held in $1,000 each for a hearing on March 6 on the charge of rioting. Arthur Lafonte and Joseph Timetel were each fined $20 for refusing to disperse.

The strikers contradict the police explanation of the fatal affair and charge the trouble started when Police Sergeant Flynn struck Mary Almeida, aged nineteen, with his club, knocking her down.

Another policeman, they charge, hit the young woman with a revolver butt as she lay on the ground.

It was at this point, according to the strikers and their sympathizers, that the Mayor rode up in his automobile. They claim the Mayor lost his head and, taking a revolver from his pocket, fired it into the air.

Cavalry Keeps Crowd Moving in Natick, R. I.

By Associated Press.

Natick, R. I., Feb. 21.—While striking textile workers and sympathizers jammed the streets of this village today waving small American flags, but preserving silence, mounted cavalry troops and police patrolled the streets, forcing the throngs to keep moving.

Meanwhile in the other Pawtuxet valley village of Pontiac, eight miles away, people remained in their houses with the blinds drawn down under orders from troops who patrolled the deserted streets.

MOTHER AND HER BABY KILLED BY FUMES

Another Overcome in New Bedford by Fatal Gas From Charred Chicken

New Bedford, Feb. 21.—Fumes from a burning chicken today caused the death of Ermellia Costa, thirty-two years old, wife of a barber and poolroom proprietor in Belleville street, and her two-year-old baby, Antone.

Another child, Florence, five days old, barely escaped suffocation through the fact that a portion of the cover on the bed upon which the mother and other baby were lying had slipped over the infant's face, protecting it.

A cousin of Mrs. Costa's, Firmina Costa, was overcome by the fumes and was with difficulty resuscitated with a pulmotor.

Costa returned to his home, No. 161 Coffin avenue, shortly after midnight and found the place filled with the smoke and acrid fumes of a chicken that had been burned to a coal on the gas range in the kitchen. He first stumbled upon the unconscious form of the cousin, Firmina, who was acting as nurse for Mrs. Costa, while the latter was confined to her bed.

He then felt his way into the bedroom, and there came upon the bodies of his wife and child.

His cries alarmed the neighbors and the police were summoned to aid. Doctors from nearby offices were called and worked for nearly two hours attempting to revive Mrs. Costa and Antoine, but vainly.

Meantime other physicians and patrolmen were at work upon Miss Firmina, who gradually was revived.

Captain E. G. Davis Dead

Fall River, Feb. 21.—Captain Elijah G. Davis, retired captain of the New England Navigation Company steamer, died at his home in Swansea today at the age of ninety years. He was a native of Somerset and had seen forty years' service on the Fall River line boats.

NAMES NEGRO.

Edward R. Hudson of No. 394 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, testified that on October 4, in the evening he saw Mabel Duncan and "Honeydew" Clark, a negro, together on Washington street, near Elliot street. He kept them in sight until they walked to the Back Bay Hotel on the corner of Dartmouth street and Columbus avenue, saw them enter and go upstairs. He said that he knew Duncan, his wife and Clark, and followed Clark and Mrs. Duncan out of curiosity. Mrs. Duncan swooned while Hudson was testifying.

Probation Officer Dennis J. Kelleher said he had known Mrs. Duncan for twelve years, that he never knew her to drink intoxicants and would be very much surprised to learn that she had drank to excess.

ACCUSES DUNCAN.

William J. Hyde of Winthrop, a neighbor of the Duncans, testified that he had been in drinking parties with "Billy" Duncan. He said that Duncan lied to his testimony yesterday when Duncan said that it was Hyde and not himself that went away from a Lexington street drinking party with Eva Lovett. He said that Billy Duncan did not properly provide for his wife, and that he once saw Duncan forcibly take $5 from Mrs. Duncan.

LAW LETS GIRL WED AND KEEP $60,000 GIFT

Worcester, Feb. 21.—Eleanor Katherine Codding, who came before the public eye when she announced she would sacrifice a bequest of $60,000 by marrying her employer, Raymond Goding, will not lose one cent of the bequest, according to present conditions.

The girl declared at the time the money had been left her in a will by a former sweetheart, Charles A. Hamilton of Chicago, who had stipulated she would lose the money if she married.

Now it develops that in the Illinois courts, where the will was said to be probated, provisions of that nature, when applying to unmarried persons, have no standing, and are not allowed to interfere with freedom of action of the beneficiary.

All of this is the opinion of her counsel, who said she would not only receive all of the $60,000 she was thought to be "sacrificing for love," but perhaps get more.

Despite efforts conducted unceasingly by every newspaper in Chicago, they have found no one who was acquainted with Hamilton. The girl married Goding last Saturday.

MRS. DUNCAN SHRIEKS IN COURT

Upset by Story of Servant That They Drank Whiskey Together

Mrs. Mabel M. Duncan of Winthrop, who is suing William W. Duncan for divorce and custody of their four-year-old daughter Marie, was led shrieking from the Suffolk Superior Court room today. Mary Elizabeth Allen, a former colored servant of the Duncans, was testifying to drinking whiskey with Mrs. Duncan.

The case is on trial in Judge Flynn's civil session. The Allen woman had told of Mrs. Duncan's producing a half a pint of whiskey from the bosom of her gown, taking a drink herself and offering the bottle to the witness. Attorney John D. Ford, for the plaintiff, was cross-examining the witness. He asked her who drank the most of the whiskey and the witness replied that she did not.

Mrs. Duncan then startled the court by screaming:

"Oh, my God, I can't stand it! Oh, please, please, I can't. Please let me defend myself, please."

Attorney Ford and court officers went to pacify her, but she continued to cry. She was taken from the room, shrieking hysterically.

Mrs. Duncan was smartly dressed in blue broadcloth gown, with opossum furs, low shoes and gray spats, and wore a blue hat.

Judge Flynn declared a recess to permit the plaintiff to compose herself. She was in a highly wrought state, trembling and sobbing. After a short period she seemed more composed, but upon returning to the court room she swooned.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND AT CAMDEN IDENTIFIED

Camden, N. J., Feb. 21.—The body of the woman found frozen in Forest Hill Park last Friday has been identified as that of Miss Julia Tate, forty years old, formerly of Bridgeport, Ct. The identification was made by Mrs. Helen Schubert, who said Miss Tate formerly lived here. There was no evidence of foul play.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY PELLETIER, FOUND GUILTY, IS OUSTED

Convicted of Conspiracy and Extortion, He Is Ousted from Office for Public Good unoffending old woman." The court finds that Pelletier's use of machinery of criminal law to terrorize Mrs Chase "shocks the moral sense of every right-thinking person."

DANIELS CASE—Conspiracy with Coakley to extort $10,000 from Warren G. Daniels, dealer in securities, by threat of criminal prosecution.

METROPOLITAN MOTORS—Conspiracy with Coakley and Corcoran and others to extort $10,000 from the company by threat of prosecution. Of this the court says "it is utterly inconceivable that an honest man should not have denied the accusation."

DOROTHY COTE LAWRENCE CASE—Conspiracy with Coakley to force Mrs. Dorothy Cote Lawrence to force a suit for $5,000 against an automobile by threat of prosecution.

MEYER BERMAN CASE—Extortion of $24,000 from Berman, a hotel keeper, under threat of criminal prosecution on charges that he allowed his hotel to be used for immoral purposes. Coakley was Berman's attorney. Of this the court finds that: "Pelletier consciously used his official power to aid in extorting money."

BUCKLEY CASE—Richard F. Buckley was charged with assault and battery on December 11, 1920. Pelletier was alleged to have failed to prosecute. The court finds the "evidence irresistible" that Pelletier was guilty.

PRENDERGAST CASE—John Prendergast was alleged to have been guilty of accosting and annoying Miss Agnes Bennett on April 7, 1921. Pelletier was charged with having failed to prosecute. Of this case the court says that "almost conclusive" is induced the district attorney to act as he did. This was a "gross case of an outrageous insult to a virtuous and honest working girl."

"CORRUPT RELATION."

PETERS CASE—Frank Peters was indicted on a statutory charge. Of this the court says that Pelletier and Coakley procured the "snuffing" of the indictment and that the case is an "incident of the corrupt relation between Pelletier and Coakley."

PISCOPO CASE—Benjamin Piscopo, a wealthy business man of Laconia, N. H., was charged with extortion through extortion to which Pelletier was a party. The court says of this case that it was an illustration of "Pelletier's wrongful use of official power to extort money for his own enrichment."

IMPROPER CAMPAIGN UTTERANCES—At a public meeting Pelletier was alleged to have said: "Tell the man who says I am going to resign to go to hell. Back up your statement and I'll not prox the case."

OTHER CHARGES.

The court found that there was insufficient evidence in the Shute case, the Charlotte Bread case, the Noe burglary case and the Perry case, to prove any guilt on the part of the district attorney.

THE GRAND JURY.

The Cookran had not been proved by the State and that there was "absence of evil purpose" in the Stone case, "though there was no justification for not pursuing the matter."

In the Mary Fuller alias Brownie Kennedy case the court found Pelletier not guilty, saying that there was evidence that Pelletier knew Mary Fuller to be Brownie Kennedy, but that she was a "notorious offender."

"Suspicious circumstances" were found in the Ingle Macdonald case, but the court decided that there was not enough evidence to show that Pelletier knew of the conduct of Assistant District Attorney Gallagher.

The decision pertaining to Joseph C. Pelletier from the office of district attorney of the Grand Jury court is down today by the full bench of the State Supreme Court, in absolutely final and subject to revision by no higher court in the land.

The announced purpose, voiced during the trial by Pelletier and, his council, to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court, can never be carried out.

For the decision, written by Chief Justice Rugg with the other justices concurring unanimously, hold that the Massachusetts supreme court has jurisdiction, and that no exception can be taken to its findings.

In opening, the decision, which covers more than seventy typewritten pages, finds that the proceedings against Pelletier are disciplinary and, in character, and decides against the defence's plea that they should be tried either in a criminal court or in the State Senate as impeachment proceedings.

AUTHORITIES CITED.

The decision then rules conclusively that the Supreme Court is the proper body to try an official for removal on the grounds of misconduct in office, and cites numerous authorities to support its contentions.

After disposing of legal technicalities in connection with the taking of depositions outside of the State, the treating of the two informations filed against Pelletier by Attorney-General Allen as one document, the alleged indefiniteness of the charges against the defendant, and various other points raised during the course of the trial, the decision enters into a critical survey as to the duties of a district attorney in connection with his dealings with the Grand Jury.

In beginning this discussion, the decision rules that it was entirely permissible for the State to call members of the Grand Jury as witnesses, and quite the statute provisions that such persons shall keep secret the proceedings in the Grand Jury room. The testimony given by these witnesses, it is ruled, is not in conflict with that statute.

Then comes consideration of the charges that an assistant district attorney, while the Grand Jury was deliberating, told the jurors that but one assistant whom the inquiry was being directed was a brother of an attache of the district attorney's office, and also discussed the evidence with them.

"It is the duty of the district attorney in appropriate instances to advise the grand jury concerning the law," declares the decision. "But the district attorney cannot lawfully usurp the province of the jury in the performance of their duties. He ought not to express his own opinion or to make any arguments. He violates his own obligations when he does any of those things. The statement of the assistant district attorney was highly improper."

CAN LEGALLY TESTIFY.

In remarking that the jurors can legally refer to minutes of such matters, the decision asserts that "any other principle would permit a dishonest, corrupt and vicious district attorney to use the great power of his office and his influence with the grand jury as an engine of oppression, and be entirely safe from inquiry under a seal of secrecy which would prevent investigation."

After considering the legal aspect of Pelletier's connection with the grand jury, the decision moves to a consideration of the legality of admitting evidence regarding financial transactions between Pelletier and Attorney Daniel H. Coakley.

Admitting that nothing really final was proved to show that Coakley gave Pelletier money, the court goes on to point out that enough was proven to admit of a strong inference as to what may have happened.

Under this head comes the fact that Coakley's withdrawals of money coincided in date so closely with Pelletier's deposits that the latter's deposits were made in bills, an unusual thing for a lawyer, who is usually paid by check; and that there were accompanying circumstances of an independent character "tending to show wrong-doings."

The right of the court to consider testimony concerning Pelletier's alleged interference with certain civil suits is also upheld.

"NO RELIGIOUS HATRED."

Pelletier's failure to call any witnesses or to appear in his own defence counted heavily against him, according to the decision, "which declares that "refusal to testify himself or to call available witnesses in his own behalf under such circumstances warrants inferences unfavorable to the respondent. It is conduct in the nature of an admission."

The decision adds that the charge, raised in final argument by Pelletier's counsel that the attempt to remove him was actuated by religious or racial bigotry and hatred, "is not supported by a shred of evidence."

After disposing of these legal questions, the decision takes up findings in regard to facts. The first case to be considered is the Emerson Motor Company, when Pelletier is charged with having conspired with Coakley to extort $20,500 from that concern by threats of prosecution.

The decision first outlines the train of events in the case. It describes how one Matchke, in June, 1916, was engaged here in selling stock for the Emerson Motors Company, and how he engaged Attorney Carroll to organize a corporation for promoting the sale of his stock. Matchke rented space from and advertised extensively, the decision continues, until he learned that the local police were investigating certain phases of his business.

Then, says the decision, he consulted Attorney Carroll, who retained Coakley, to see what was being done. Coakley told the New York attorney for the Emerson Motors, it continues, that an indictment was pending and that the company was in trouble, but that he was a friend of Pelletier and that he might be able to help.

Coakley is then alleged to have asked $20,000 as a reward for quashing the indictment, and after some time this was paid. Of this sum, he gave $5,000 to Attorney Carroll, depositing the remainder. A few days later he cashed a $5,000 check, and

JOSEPH C. PELLETIER

"All the circumstances called on him to speak. . . . He silence upon the vital points of the conversation, and his seizure upon the fictitious and immaterial items of dissolving with lawyers as to fees, constituted strong evidence against him.

"We find that these charges are supported. The conspiracy is established."

Disposing thus of the Daniel case, the decision comes to the Dorothy Cote case. Miss Cote, it was charged, was compelled by Coakley, with the assistance of Pelletier, to drop a civil suit for an automobile by threats of criminal action against herself.

A man named Lawrence, with whom she had formerly been more or less intimate, was said to have given her an automobile, which the manufacturing company refused to deliver to her, and she retained an attorney named McCallum.

Lawrence, in turn, went to Coakley. McCallum was called on the telephone by Pelletier, the decision recalls, and informed that Pelletier had been consulted in the case by Coakley. A conference was then arranged between McCallum and Pelletier, and at this conference, testimony showed, Pelletier accused Miss Cote of trying to blackmail Lawrence.

McCallum thereupon pointed out, the decision continues, that the suit which Miss Cote was preparing to bring was directed against Lawrence, but against the company. Coakley then remarked that he had received a $1,000 fee from Lawrence's brother, and that he proposed to have criminal action taken against the girl by the district attorney.

PROCEEDINGS DROPPED.

After this, it was shown, suit against the company for conversion of the automobile was actually instituted by Miss Cote. Shortly after this was done, it was testified that Pelletier informed Attorney McCallum that he was beginning Grand Jury action against the girl, and that he believed that McCallum himself was involved.

The result of this, the decision continues, was that Miss Cote, against her attorney's advice, dropped her suit and returned to Coakley jewelry which Lawrence had given her. Coakley, in turn, informed Pelletier that Miss Cote was "a perfect lady," and that he wanted the Grand Jury proceedings dropped. This, it is added, was done.

In summing up the Cote case, the court finds that she dropped this suit because of her fear of prosecution, possibly also because of a hope of reconciliation with Lawrence. (The two were eventually married.) In concluding its treatment of this case, the decision says:

"Even if he (Pelletier) had not succeeded in making her give up her civil action, he had given her up for some other reason than his threats, the respondent nevertheless would have been guilty of a combination with Mr. Coakley to use criminal means to effect the desired result, and of the actual abandonment of his powers to that end. The respondent is guilty of the charge."

In this case a conspiracy on the part of Pelletier, Coakley, William J. Carter and Daniel F. Sullivan, deputy of Middlesex county; and others, to extort money from Curtis W. Emery, Elizabeth Emery and Jennie S. Chase, was alleged. It was also charged that, further to promote this conspiracy, Pelletier procured an indictment against Robb, Emery and Coakley. The facts in the case are summarized in the decision as follows:

THE EMERY AFFAIR.

A man named Papineau was married to a daughter of Mrs. Jennie S. Chase. After they had a child, the wife fell ill, and Mrs. Chase, Emery, and Mrs. Papineau subsequently obtained a decree nisi of divorce, on November 15, 1912.

On December 21 of the same year she married Emery, and in June of the year following a child was born to them. They had a second marriage ceremony performed in August, 1918, and at the same time, approximately, Papineau brought legal action against them concerning the custody of the children. He also sued Emery and Mrs. Chase for alienation of his former wife's affections. These suits and actions were settled out of court.

In the fall of 1915 Papineau consulted Coakley in regard to a legal matter, outlining the case to him, and mentioning that Emery was possessed of property worth some $300,000. As soon as this sum was mentioned Coakley became interested and took Papineau to see Pelletier, who promised to "get something right for you." Coakley is said to have told Papineau not to worry about the fee, that if things came out as expected there would be no occasion for worry.

Following this, it is related by the decision, Coakley called on District Attorney Corcoran, and had conference summoned before the Grand Jury of Middlesex county. Subsequently two indictments were returned, one against Emery and one against his wife, the latter Mrs. Papineau, charging a statutory offence.

It was at this point that Daniel J. Gallagher, an attorney, was retained by Emery. Gallagher and Coakley, the decision shows, had a series of conference with Corcoran, and on one occasion Coakley told Emery that he had telephoned Emery and told him that only payment of $40,000 to Coakley could save him and his wife from long terms of imprisonment.

Although Gallagher advised a settlement on Coakley's terms, the case was not settled, and Emery later withdrew this attorney from his employ. At this time Emery engaged one LeClair, a private detective, to watch Papineau. LeClair was said to have been a double-agent, the man who was really in the employ of Coakley, and as a final result Emery, LeClair, and Curtis W. Robb, retained by Emery, were indicted by the Suffolk Grand Jury for conspiring to accuse Papineau falsely.

INDICTMENTS NOL PROSSED.

No money was ever paid Coakley by or on behalf of Emery or any of his associates, continues the resume. And, finally, in 1917, the indictments in Middlesex County were filed, while two years later the Suffolk County indictment were not prossed.

The evidence convinces us that a conspiracy was formed by Messrs Coakley, Pelletier and others to extort a large sum of money from Mrs. Chase, an unoffending old woman," the decision reads on conclusion of its consideration of this case. "Papineau was used merely as a tool to this end. The scheme to wring money from Mrs. Chase was devised or satisfy the greed of others than Papineau."

"The use of the machinery of the criminal law to extort money even from Emery would have been an abuse of official power by the respondent. To set it in motion to terrorize or to injure Emery and Mrs. Chase shocks the moral sense of every right thinking person. The processes of law, which are designed to defend the innocent and to protect society against the wrongs of the criminal, have been used as instruments of oppression in an attempt to wrest money from the blameless and the guilty. The respondent is guilty on these charges."

The decision then goes on to a consideration of the Morrill W. Shute case. Pelletier was accused of having failed, from improper motives, to prosecute Shute for embezzlement; of having made false statements concerning the case, and of having caused docket entries to be changed.

Shute had confessed to the embezzlement from an aged woman who lived in Revere, and had attempted to bring Shute to trial until certain steps which he had taken failed. Pelletier finally entered a nolle pros in his case.

COURT NOT SATISFIED.

The decision declares that the court is not satisfied as to Pelletier's connection with the alteration of records, but that "there is not such room in regard to the other part of the case" presume a guilty mind. The corrupt motives have been shown, and that, since the burden of proof is on the respondent, he has not satisfied us these charges ar proved."

The decision next considers the allegations that Pelletier allowed various persons to use the authority of his office to compel others to settle civil claims or to give up money. In this connection the first case to be mentioned was that of Benjamin Piscopo.

Piscopo had had business dealings with Attorney Daniel V. Melisaac. During this time, the decision says, representing him in a divorce tangle, he paid out more than $10,000 as attorney and support for his children. Then Melisaac, it was testified, demanded $35,000 as his fee. On his refusal to pay it, Piscopo was brought before Pelletier and warned that failure to pay would mean that his bail in Boston would be the subject of investigation. Piscopo, on Pelletier's agents, and that the district attorney's office would make a lot of trouble for him. Eventually he paid something over $21,000 to Melisaac, on behalf of Piscopo, it is said, to settle.

"The conduct of the respondent," says the decision, "was a bald use of his official position for his private financial profit." After mentioning that Pelletier did not take the stand to deny Piscopo's accusations, the decision concludes by saying, "He is guilty of this charge."

The same consideration of the charge that Pelletier conspired with Coakley to extort money from Frank Peters, a local wool merchant. Peters, it seems, had entered the apartment of a newly married couple, and subsequently, attempted familiarities. Shortly afterwards he was informed by Pelletier that he would be indicted for assault, and advised him to see Coakley and "have it fixed up."

"CORRUPT RELATIONS."

After Peters refused to pay Coakley $50,000, an indictment was returned against him. Coakley again went to him to see Coakley, and this time Peters paid the latter $10,000. Immediately afterwards the case was not prossed.

In commenting on this case, the decision says:

"Here again are the incidents of the corrupt relation between the respondent and Mr. Coakley to the use by power of the office of the district attorney to secure the settlement of civil claims to the satisfactions of Mr. Coakley, and the instant extinguishment of the criminal proceeding when the civil settlement has been secured.

"The respondent finds words for his victim, informs him of the impending criminal prosecution, advises settlement with Mr. Coakley, when that is not made procures an indictment, and immediately upon such settlement snuffs out the indictment.

Then comes the case of Meyer Berman. In 1916 Berman was proprietor of the Higgins Hotel here. Pelletier sent a police officer to the hotel and had a register seized and brought to him, after which he advised Berman to "see Coakley." Berman did so, and Coakley in his presence telephoned to Pelletier asking him to withhold indictments.

This had hardly been done when Corcoran, then district attorney for Middlesex County, appeared and informed Berman that it would cost him $50,000 to avoid a claim and suit for a statutory offence which was alleged to have been committed in the hotel.

Corcoran threatened Berman with indictment, and the latter accordingly paid Coakley $35,000. Thereafter Coakley withdrew $5,000 from his bank, and on the following day Pelletier deposited a like sum. Still later Coakley approached Berman with a second fee of $15,000, saying that another indictment on a similar charge was pending, and again Berman paid.

WRONGLY USED POWERS.

In summing up this case, the decision declares that "it is unthinkable that an intelligent district attorney should have done what the respondent did in the way and under the circumstances shown, except for the sinister purpose of aiding in the extortion of money.

"The facts, in view of the refusal of the respondent to offer any explanation by his own or other testimony, indicate that he received $5,000 of this money. . . . . We find that the respondent consciously used the powers of his office to aid in the extortion of this money and that the respondent is guilty of this charge."

In the case of Walter A. Buckley, Pelletier is found guilty of a similar charge. Buckley, employed at a high salary by a local firm of leather merchants, had a dispute with his employers in regard to compensation and brought suit against them through his attorney, Edward L. Logan. His employers retained Coakley.

Pelletier then claimed to have come into possession of stenographic reports on certain conferences that involved Buckley, and remarked to him, "I have indicted people for less than this."

The affair ended in Buckley's dropping his case against his employers. Then the employers paid Coakley $15,000. Coakley drew out $6,250 from his bank, giving all but $2,500 to Attorney Goulston, who had worked with him. The next day Pelletier deposited $1,000.

The decision points out that no evidence was introduced to show that Buckley had committed any crime, and concludes by remarking that "the inference is irresistible . . . that the respondent is guilty on this case."

In the Edward C. Tripp case Pelletier was charged with having connived with Coakley in an attempt to extort money from Tripp. Tripp was being sued for breach of promise by a young woman represented by Coakley. Pelletier informed Tripp's attorney that, while he hardly thought the public good required an indictment, it would be advisable for him to settle with Coakley and "call him off."

Tripp, however, refused to settle, and Coakley never secured any money from him. No indictment was returned in the case. Despite the fact that various circumstances surround this affair, says the decision, the evidence shows that Pelletier apparently was satisfied to let the matter drop without an indictment, and had a register seized and brought to him, after which he advised Berman to "see Coakley." Berman did so, and Coakley in his presence telephoned to Pelletier asking him to withhold indictments.

This had hardly been done when Corcoran, then district attorney for Middlesex County, appeared and informed Berman that it would cost him $50,000 to avoid a claim and suit for a statutory offence which was alleged to have been committed in his hotel.

'Facts Carry Their Own Mandate,' Says Decision

Every presumption of uprightness, rectitude and innocence, which commonly characterize the conduct of men in public station, has been invoked in favor of the respondent.

The compelling nature of the evidence has constrained us to make the finding stated. One conclusion alone is possible on the whole evidence. The facts carry their own mandate. It is plain. It cannot be escaped. It is imperative. The findings make clear beyond peradventure of doubt that the respondent is unfit to hold longer the office of district attorney.

Official corruption is sufficient cause for the removal of a district attorney. When private favoritism and personal aggrandisement are placed above principles of obvious justice and consideration of the general welfare by a district attorney, the public good requires that he be removed.—From Supreme Court's decision ordering the removal of District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier.

Coconut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified coconut oil shampoo is the best thing for the hair (entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and then rinse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every trace of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

Clogged Air Passages Open at Once—Nostrils Cleared

If your nostrils are clogged and your head stuffed with catarrh or hay fever or a cold, get Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this pure, antiseptic, germ destroying cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head and membranes. Instant relief.

How good it feels. Your head is clear, your nostrils are open. You breathe freely. No more hawking or snuffling. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up, choked up and miserable. Relief is sure.—Advertisement.

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to end dandruff at once; and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get some ordinary liquid arvon (a common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and dirging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.—Advertisement.

How I Increased My Weight and Energy after Pneumonia

Gained 15 Pounds in Less Than Three Weeks' Time

"A severe attack of pneumonia pulled me down to the very bottom. When I got up my weight was reduced to sunken, my cheeks so hollow and my whole body so weakened, that my children acted afraid to be near me. I was unable to recognize in the very ghost of my former self. Need of nourishment for blood, nerves, made me feel that I must get back to work quickly, and despite my condition, back to work I went.

"Now after several weeks I look and feel far better than before I was sick—I have put on over 15 pounds of firm, solid flesh, have a healthy color and I get up in the morning full of pep and energy. I attribute this amazing return to health chiefly to the fact that I took, with every meal, two of MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS. Their quick up-building effect is truly remarkable."

This letter from a New York man clearly shows of what tremendous value are those muscle, bone and blood-building elements contained in concentrated form in MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS.

If you feel lost weight and energy through sickness, worry or overwork, if you are nervous, haggard and drawn, you owe it to yourself to make this simple test: Weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next take MASTIN'S VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue using MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS until you are satisfied with your health, strength, "pep" energy and improved appearance.

You must say MASTIN'S to get the original and genuine VITAMON—the world's standard—recommended by physicians and druggists. It is powerful. Beware of imitations, cheap substitutes or so-called "yeast vitamine tablets."

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS are sold and guaranteed in every town. At all good druggists, such as Hughton & Dutton, Riverside Pharmacy, Brookline; Mason's Pharmacy, Newton; Stores, Lippett's, The Shepard Drug Stores.

COURT DECISION FINAL; APPEAL IMPOSSIBLE

Pelletier Cannot Take the Question to the United States Supreme Court

to four months' imprisonment. He appealed. Miss Bennett was asked by numerous persons to drop her complaint, and was followed at night by strangers.

Twice she went to see Pelletier to find when the case would be tried, and each time she was put off with evasive answers. Finally the case was hot pressed without her knowledge or consent.

"SINISTER INFLUENCES."

Declaring that "this is a plain case of an outrageous insult to a virtuous and honest working-girl on a public street in Boston," the decision declares that "it is manifest to us that influences sinister in their nature alone could have led the respondent to treat as he did the crime committed against Miss Bennett.

"Whether those influences were political, social, financial or other need not be proved. No explanation has been offered by the respondent. No upright prosecuting attorney could permit such a crime to go utterly unpunished, such a defendant to be set absolutely free, and vouchsafe no explanation to the insulted and injured young woman.

"The case is an illustration of the truth that, when the power of a district attorney is perverted from its true purposes of protecting the public and is prostituted to the dispensation of favors and submission to those incapable of exercising influence, it is the poor, the obscure and the blameless who suffer. That law which ought to be the shield of honesty and the guard of innocence becomes the protector of lawlessness and the weapon of oppression.

"The respondent is guilty on this specification."

The specifications referring to investigations of automobile thefts are next considered. Admitting that Pelletier did not secure indictments even thought there was ample evidence, the decision nevertheless says that the charge is not proved.

In the case of Thomas Nee, indicted for breaking and entering, a similar finding is made, although the decision questions the propriety of ordering a nol pros for a hardened offender because of the death of a witness for the government. The charge is dismissed as not proven, however.

Nathan A. Tufts, deposed district attorney of Middlesex County, is mentioned in consideration of the next case. Tufts was counsel for a Mrs. Stone, who was suing her husband, Arthur L. Stone, for divorce. Stone was convicted on a statutory charge in the lower court and appealed to the Superior Court. While his case was pending Tufts informed Pelletier that he was no longer interested in the case and a nol pros was entered by the Suffolk district attorney.

FOUND NOT GUILTY.

Pelletier is found not guilty on the charges in connection with this specification—the first charge in the entire list on which he is definitely found innocent.

Pelletier is again found not guilty in the case of Charles E. Corkran. Corkran, an official for the American Woods Corporation here, was accused of peculation of many thousands of dollars. Officials of the concern went to Pelletier and sought his indictment, but Pelletier refused, saying he believed it a civil case. The officials then went to the municipal court and had Corkran arrested. Corkran was promptly bound over to the grand jury.

The last two pages of the Supreme Court's ruling are labelled by the court "conclusion," in which it sums up its findings, as follows:

"The facts found with reference to the several charges have been stated at length. All the material evidence and all the circumstances have been taken into account and weighed with care.

"Every presumption of uprightness, rectitude and innocence, which commonly characterize the conduct of men in public station, has been invoked in favor of the respondent.

"The compelling nature of the evidence has constrained us to make the finding stated. Any conclusion alone is possible on the whole evidence. The facts carry their own mandate. It is plain. It cannot be escaped. It is imperative. The findings make clear beyond peradventure of doubt that the respondent is unfit to hold longer the office of district attorney.

"The Superior Court, in the lawful exercise of the power conferred upon it by the Constitution, has imposed upon us the duty to remove a district attorney, 'if sufficient cause is shown therefor, and it appears that the public good so requires.' General laws, chapter 211, paragraph 4.

"Official corruption is sufficient cause for the removal of a district attorney. When private favoritism and personal aggrandisement are placed above principles of obvious justice and consideration of the general welfare by a district attorney, the public good requires that he be removed.

"No discussion is needed to demonstrate that under the findings of facts set forth at length no other course is open except to perform the duty of removal imposed on us by the statute. Therefore the following order is made:

ORDER OF COURT.

Now on this twenty-first day of February, in the year of our Lord nine thousand nine hundred and twenty-two, and before a majority of justices of the Supreme Judicial Court, namely, Arthur P. Rugg, Chief Justice, Henry K. Braley, Charles A. DeCourcy, James B. Carroll and Charles F. Jenney, associate justices, upon the information brought by the Attorney-General of the commonwealth against Joseph C. Pelletier, after hearing all of the relevant evidence offered on behalf of those interested herein, and listening to arguments, and after due deliberation and consideration, and all and singular the premises being seen and understood and it being made to appear to said court that certain of the allegations of said information are proved to be true as set forth in the judgment filed and that sufficient cause is shown for the removal of said Joseph C. Pelletier from the office of district attorney for the Suffolk District and that the public good requires such removal; therefore, it is considered by said court, all of said justices concurring, and they being a majority of the justices of said court, that the said Joseph C. Pelletier do not in any manner concern himself further about holding or exercising the said office of district attorney for the Suffolk District; but that he be and is hereby removed therefrom and forejudged and excluded from holding or exercising said office."

4 MENTIONED TO SUCCEED PELLETIER

Collins, Sullivan, Logan or Jordan Likely to Be Named by Cox

The names of four men, all well-known Bostonians, were mentioned about the Courthouse and State House today as possible successors to Joseph C. Pelletier as district attorney of Suffolk county.

It was understood that one of these men would be the appointee of Governor Cox, who will select Pelletier's successor next Thursday.

The four were Walter L. Collins, former president of the Boston City Council; John A. Sullivan, former corporation counsel of Boston; Edward L. Logan, judge of the South Boston Municipal Court, and Michael J. Jordan, a prominent Boston attorney.

The well-informed declared that the field of candidates, conscious or unconscious, for the office of district attorney of Suffolk County, had narrowed down to these men. It was pointed out that all were well qualified to fill the office from which Pelletier was removed by Supreme Court decision. It was reported at the State House that Jordan has been endorsed by the Boston Bar Association.

Collins has had many years' experience in an executive capacity with the City Council, and is considered to be a man of breadth and capability. John A. Sullivan, as corporation counsel and member of the Finance Commission, has handled many important matters for the city. General Logan, former commander of the 101st Infantry, in addition to his prowess on the bench, is considered an attorney of ability.

Hurwitz Finds Pelletier's Desk Cleaned Out

On assuming the office of District Attorney today Assistant Attorney-General Hurwitz found that Joseph C. Pelletier's desk had been cleaned out.

Pelletier himself did not appear at the courthouse, but the news of the decision was telephoned to him at his Beacon street home by Assistant District Attorney Sheehan. After breaking the news Sheehan is reported to have said: "Never mind, Joe, we will come back next Fall and clean them up." Pelletier merely laughed in reply.

Hurwitz's first official act after taking control was to confer with Judge Bishop and Fessenden in the first and second sessions of the Superior Court. He had been welcomed to the District Attorney's office by Assistant District Attorney Sheehan, who said that the entire staff had been instructed by Pelletier to be of every possible assistance.

In the second session of the Superior Court it was learned that a Spaniard, facing trial and unable to speak English, had no counsel. Hurwitz interested himself in the case and Attorney A. R. Shrigley volunteered to appear for the man.

While Assistant District Attorneys Kinney and Sheehan were not discharged, they were told to suspend all activities as assistant district attorneys, which is equivalent to notification that they are through.

Decision Purifies Public Service, Says Parker

Former Attorney-General Herbert Parker of Lancaster, when interviewed at the State House today relative to the removal of District Attorney Pelletier, said:

"It is a decision of lasting importance to the people of Massachusetts. It should have a salutary effect and will without doubt bring about a purification of public service for generations to come."

WANT TO KEEP PUPILS IN SCHOOL TILL 16

Dr. Alice Hamilton, only woman on the Harvard Medical School faculty, today argued before the Legislative Committee on Education in behalf of the bill raising the age limit for compulsory school attendance from fourteen to sixteen years. She told the legislators that to remove the child of fourteen from school and place it in industry means impairing the health of that child at a critical period. Mrs. Louis Hanson, representing the Woman's Trade Union League, argued that children who remain in school until sixteen have a far better chance to make good. Richard Stanley, speaking for the Arkwright Club, opposed the bill, declaring that many industries have been "forced out of the State by the so-called social laws enacted here."

ESSEX JURY INFLUENCED, DECLARES R. S. BAUER

Charging that the Grand Jury which investigated the administration of Essex County was influenced, Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn at a hearing before the joint Counties Committee today urged the appointment of a committee of unusual powers by the Legislature. This committee, he said, would be patterned after the Lockwood Committee in New York States, and would be composed of eleven members of unlimited powers, to investigate the financial administration of Essex County. The bill provides for the appointment of three Senators by the President of the Senate, five Representatives to be appointed by the Speaker of the House and three citizens to be named by Governor Cox.

JAKE COXEY'S 40-MILLION SCHEME IN CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 21.—Congress was asked today to give "General" Jacob S. Coxey, who once led an "army" of the unemployed to Washington another chance to help the jobless. In a bill introduced by Representative Gahn, Republican, Ohio, the Secretary of the Treasury would be authorized to issue $40,000,000 in new currency for use in buying 133 Shipping Board vessels. Once bought, they would be sold to General Coxey and Theodore D. Wells, who would give the government a mortgage lien on the fleet. The "general" would operate the ships and provide jobs for the idle.

Vista Cakelet
A tea Cakelet in which a hint of cocoanut predominates the other mingled flavors of caramel and butterscotch. But even before you taste, your eye will marvel at the design which sets a new standard in the artistic embossing of biscuits. 32¢ the pound.

Crest Cakelet
A "Short Bread" of most attractive quality. Butter and eggs are used in liberal proportions. Baked as only a biscuit can be baked in KRACKERLAND. Appropriately named since the sprinkling of sugar glistens like beautiful jewels in the crown designs. 34¢ the pound

Floret Butter Cakelet
Looks buttery. Tastes buttery. The two outer layers of this delightful Cakelet are simply "bursting" with fresh, creamery butter that makes them especially rich when blended with the delicious layer of vanilla cream by which they are joined together. 37¢ the pound

Floret Chocolate Cakelet
Designs of fourteen different flowers—from them the name is derived. A little sandwich Cakelet—cream filled with cocoanut butter, milk chocolate and sugar. Say "how!" a few times. The name tastes almost as good as what it stands for. 37¢ the pound

Butter Kremox Cakelet
Petite and dainty in size and shape. Beautifully embossed. Two crisp outer layers in the making of which fine butter and eggs are used in generous quantities. The filling is pure vanilla flavored cream. Nothing nicer with tea or desserts. 37¢ the pound

Chocolate Kremox Cakelet
Just enough for about three delicious bites. Color as dark as the rich sweet chocolate from which the two biscuit layers are made. Filled with pure vanilla flavored cream. It would be difficult to imagine a more pleasing combination. 37¢ the pound

Consul Chocolate Cakelet
A tea Cakelet of very inviting quality, both as to its appearance and taste. Handsomely embossed and about as thin as such a dainty could possibly be. Crisp and delicate in texture, and wondrously rich in the flavor of pure sweet chocolate. 29¢ the pound

Consul Vanilla Cakelet
In design and thinness—identical with its namesake described above. But the color is light, and the flavoring a vanilla of finest grade. Another Cakelet which will find immediate favor in the appreciation of all who take a cup o' tea. 29¢ the pound

Mello Kremox Cakelet
A Bon-bon Cakelet—rich pound cake made of butter, eggs, sugar and milk. You would look far for as delightful a dainty with its filling of cream—two kinds, chocolate and vanilla, blended together into a rich combination of enticing flavors. 37¢ the pound

Kre-Me-Butter Cakelet
The largest of the Cakelets. Embossed with artistic designs which suggest fine engraving on money. Crisp and candy-like in texture and taste, and you note the slight suggestion of ginger which stands out from the mingled flavors of fine syrups. 31¢ the pound

FEELS FRESH AND HAPPY AS A GIRL AGAIN

"I Could Just Feel Myself Getting New Life And Strength With Every Dose of Tanlac," Declares Mrs. Edith McFadden.

"I just can't praise Tanlac enough, it certainly has been a wonderful blessing to me," said Mrs. Edith McFadden, 94 Sawyer street, Boston, Mass.

"I was in failing health for nine years and finally got so weak and nervous that I was on the verge of a breakdown. I am sure that my troubles had their origin from my stomach as for years nothing I ate seemed to agree with me.

"I had tried so many medicines without getting any relief that I had almost given up hope, so what Tanlac had done for me is all the bigger surprise. I feel like a different person now altogether. I could just feel myself getting new life and energy from every dose of Tanlac. My digestion is perfect now, I sleep all night long without waking and get up in the morning feeling refreshed and happy like I used to do when I was a girl. The good Tanlac has done me couldn't be measured in dollars and cents."

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital, internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness left. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless in the stomach, inexpensive to use and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who report their meals without fear of indigestion.—Advertisement.

Easiest Way to Remove Ugly Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture)

Here is a method for removing hair from arms, neck or face that is unfailing and is quite inexpensive: Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water and spread on hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes, rub it off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. No harm or inconvenience results from this treatment, but be careful to get genuine delatone and mix fresh.—Advertisement.

Fresh From Paris—

Paris, France.

THE morning promenade becomes, at first budding of Spring, a matter of energetic little trotteur and spirited hat. In a black crepe marocain frock designed for such an occasion, the black bead girdle is placed at a line deeper than the low waistline we have grown accustomed to. It finds itself more decidedly in the vicinity of the hips, which is the latest word in silhouettes. Another new feature is the use of panels of pleated crepe at each side of the frock. These are attached half-way down the bodice, are bloused over the bead girdle and reach to the hem of the skirt. Notwithstanding its tunic and pleated panels, the skirt retains an air of slenderness accentuated by the width of the blouse.

If one does not walk, on a morning, unquestionably one spends it at the links or the tennis courts, which are very similar, so far as making a charming background for an intriguing sports coat is concerned. Of turquoise blue jersey cloth, this model has its standing collar and the slender lapels, as long as the coat itself, but in one with its body. Then there are eccentric patches, where the pockets would be if there were any, of white wool, tasseled in white. A white wool skirt, of slender appearance, but cut full enough to enable the wearer to move quickly and easily, and a white wool beret trimmed with pleated white ribbons, follow this vivid jacket around to keep it out of mischief!

MAYOR APPROVES PAY FOR CABLE TO PREMIER

Ends Dispute Over Message Protesting Against Treatment of Mayor MacSwiney

The long standing argument as to whether the city should pay a bill of $10.10 for the cablegram sent to David Lloyd George, Premier of England, protesting against treatment of Terrance MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, by Councillor James T. Moriarty on September 4, 1920, during the absence of Mayor Peters, was today approved for payment by Mayor Curley.

Mayor Peters refused to pay the bill, acting on advice of Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill, that the Council went beyond its powers in sending such a telegram, as it was not public business.

Some time afterward the Loyal Coalition, it is said, threatened to bring an injunction restraining the city from settling the cable bill. The matter has been hanging fire until today, when Mayor Curley took action.

POSTAL OFFICIALS SPLIT OVER CURLEY

The State and city health boards have no more jurisdiction over the central postoffice or any other Federal building than they have over the District of Columbia or the Charlestown Navy Yard, said Harry M. Voss, assistant custodian of the Federal Building today, in commenting on the announced intention of Mayor James M. Curley of "looking into sanitary conditions" in the central postoffice. Postmaster Baker, however, declared he would place no obstacle in the way if Mayor Curley wished to make an investigation.

HOUSE GETS CHARGES AGAINST GOV. REILLY

Washington, Feb. 21.—Within an hour after the administration of Porto Rican affairs, under Governor E. Mont Reilly, had been warmly defended in an official statement at the White House today, Felix Cordiva Davila, resident commissioner of Porto Rico, announced he would go before the House this afternoon to demand a congressional investigation looking to removal of Reilly from office.

Davila is understood to have prepared a list of charges against Reilly, which he will lay before the House in asking the investigation.

STUDENTS GUARD COLLEGE FROM FIREBUG

Hartford, Ct., Feb. 21.—Trinity College buildings were patrolled during the night by relays of college students in an attempt to prevent destruction by fire of the college buildings and if possible apprehend the pyromaniac who is believed to have set five fires on the campus, one of which on Saturday destroyed Alumni Hall, with a loss of $40,000. State police and city firemen are assisting in the hunt for the supposed firebug.

When at midnight last night the fifth fire was discovered in the room in a college dormitory occupied by William Hunkins of Brooklyn, N. Y., the guard of students was increased. How the firebug eluded the watchers in the building was a mystery. The door had to be broken down and the fire put out by fire extinguishers.

MOTHER BURNED AT GROVELAND SAVING BABY

Plunges Through Flames in Burning Home to Rescue Child in Carriage

Groveland, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Albert Stromaco was severely burned here today when she rushed into the parlor of her home, which was in flames, and rescued her three-months-old baby from death.

Mrs. Stromaco smelled smoke and opened the door of the parlor, where the baby was asleep in a carriage. She was met by a burst of flame which burned her hair and face, but closed her eyes and ran through the fire to her child.

Covering the baby with a blanket, she again plunged through the burning doorway to the front door and out into the street.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Jobey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—Advertisement.

'POT LUCK' AT ST. JAMES THEATRE

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"Pot Luck," a play by Edward Childs Carpenter, author of "The Cinderella Man," was presented by the Boston Stock Company at the St. James last night.

It seems that Miss Clara Moores appeared in the leading role of this piece in New York last Summer, which is probably one of the reasons this attractive young leading woman is now in stock, for "Pot Luck" had no luck as a road attraction.

The reason is obvious. It is an amateur variation of the "Turn to the Right" theme. The crooks invade a rural community and undertake to get the small fortune of a girl verging upon spinsterhood by the device of marrying her to one of themselves and departing with all her possessions not nailed down. But one of the crooks has a misfit heart—never aimed assimet than sinning. He reforms and his career instantly becomes interesting, like all reformed crooks.

In no time he is selling stories to the Saturday Evening Post and is nominated for Mayor of the town. And when the first, and unreformed, crook returns for his 50 per cent. of the loot, the reformed crook deftly counts him out of it with the full sympathy of the rest of the cast and the audience.

Mr. Carpenter is not as snappy a writer as most of those who write crook comedies. Perhaps his dramatis sags woefully in the middle. The boys and girls in the St. James company worked very hard to put "Pot Luck" over, and they're a capable lot, too. But the going was poor. Mr. Hector's orchestra entertained between the acts. It's the best theatre band in this town.

Arlington Theatre

The opening play by the new stock company at the Arlington Theatre tomorrow evening, Washington's Birthday, will be "The Virginian," a play of the ranch country of the West that has always been extremely popular with theatregoers.

The new company is headed by Charles Bickford, who will play the title part and Miss Florence Johns, who will be leading woman. Special scenery has been prepared for this production which promises to be an adequate one in every respect.

'FOLLY TOWN' SCORES AT GAYETY

Galaxy of Clever Stars and Good Chorus Feature Cooper Show

With Gus Fay, Johnny Walker and Lynn Cantor as the stellar attractions the performance is little to be desired in the way of comedy and syncopation. The action is well placed and the sixteen scenes serve only to make a show which merits the approval showered upon it.

Ruth Rosemond, Lucille Harrison and Leda Errol join in plotting a chorus of charming misses. The costuming is unusually gorgeous and the ensemble reflects in a host of catchy song and dance numbers a splendid drilling.

Winning and clever as ever Virginia Ware, billed as "The Musical Miss," provided a welcome specialty, while the California Trio also deserved its warm reception. The double quartet of male voices was another feature deserving of mention. Lester Dore, James Holly, Ben Joss, Jim Hall and Harry Burt contributed materially to the entertainment.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS—If the enthusiasm displayed by large audiences that attended the Somerville Theatre can be taken as a criterion, it is safe to predict that Superior Patter," the musical comedy sensation which was superbly staged by the Somerville players, will prove the most notable attraction of the current season. The play is adapted from William Collier's success, "Caught in the Rain." In order that its presentation may offer complete satisfaction the management has especially engaged Miss Jean Whyte, a New York prima donna, so sing the leading role.

BOYNTON SQUARE THEATRE—Harry Carey, the screen hero, was seen in person at the Bowdoin Square Theatre and it will be remembered that he scored a big success in "The Prey" and other productions of the Western type.

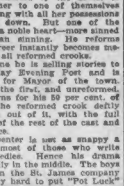
BOSTON THEATRE—"The Silent Call," a diminution of "The Cross Trail," an amazing romance, heads the bill at the Boston Theatre this week. It is a unique picture, with some wonderful animals as well as an unusually capable cast.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

By FRIEDA DAVIS

WESLEY BARRY'S rating as a movie star has been firmly established. Judging from the crowds at the Park, Modern and Beacon theatres yesterday, afternoon and evening, the latest Barry picture, "School Days," is being shown, like Abou Ben Adhem it leads all the rest. None of the most popular fresh-looking boys of the screen is more wholesomeness. It is somewhat of a relief to find a film in which there is no problem beyond that of getting gracefully and effectively out of a session of school.



The children were out in full force yesterday afternoon and wriggled impatiently through the companion picture, "The Golden Gift," and greeted the headliner with storms of laughter. But "School Days" was not filmed merely for the children. Older people rocked with glee. It is a far safer way to renew youth than accepting the monkey gland theory, and equally effective.

In this production freckle-faced Wesley Barry, with his faithful hound, spends his time plotting mischief and then carrying out his plots. One leaves with a firm conviction that it is wisest to be wary of all small boys, particularly when they look innocent and when they have dogs. Harry puts tacks on chairs, ties his neighbor's coats to the toe of the barefoot boy propped nearby, trips up an enemy with a bucket of water, and eventually leaves school for the river and a fishing rod.

He meets a stranger who has been in New York. To him Barry confides that when he becomes rich every day will be Sunday, the chickens will bring more than their necks to the dinner table, and he will go to New York and stay there. The stranger, it develops, is his uncle who has made a lot of money. He sends Barry to New York, where the boy finds that gilded youth that glitters is not very companionable, and he leaves for his country home in a "ride door Pullman."

One of the most enchanting scenes in the picture is that in which Barry, home from the city, sees his dog across the river and both impulsively plunge in after the other. They meet for a reunion in midstream.

"School Days" and take the children.

ALICE LAKE'S PICTURE.

THE companion picture, "The Golden Gift," is a Metro production starring Alice Lake. One of the important things about it is that it was adapted by Jane Mathis. It is not often that a scenarist is so able that her personality can be felt through the screen and whose continuity and titles are so smooth and full that they attract notice. Miss Mathis, responsible, too, for the screen work of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and quantities of other Metro successes, ranks among the very best in her line of work, and it is small wonder that Famous Players has an option on the lookout for exceptional talent, snapped her up at the first opportunity. She is at present exercising her understanding of the Spanish on a second Ibanez story, "Blood and Sand," for Rudolph Valentino and May McAvoy.

But to get back to "The Golden Gift." This gift, we judge, is not the remarkable voice which has won her fame in opera, but the little daughter she has given up for her career. Eventually, of course, she and the hero and the daughter come together for a last ecstatic close-up.

"The Golden Gift" is a not a startling story. In fact, it is hardly unusual. Neither is Miss Lake unusual as the opera singer, but in spite of this there is something eminently satisfying about her work. She is very pleasing without being in the least clever.

That Maxwell Karger directed the film is kept constantly in one's mind, for the lighting, as in all his work, is exceedingly dim. Dim lighting has its good points, no one can deny. It is artistic and it gives a softness to the entire action—but it is nice to be able to distinguish the players clearly occasionally. And the most artistic of dim lighting grows monotonous.

A WORD FROM "F. J."

F. J., of Boston, sends in his little speech regarding the motion picture industry.

"Dear Miss Davis," he writes, "I wonder if any of the other readers of your interesting column have as decided a preference as myself regarding the type of pictures they like to see?

"On one hand there are what might be called the 'high society' pictures, filled with wealthy elders, limousines, golf, and snappy scandal. These films usually have a very poetical introduction explaining how 'fate' is going to interfere in the wasted lives of these scions of leisure and make them wrench their ears.

"Again there are pictures like 'Miss Lulu Bett,' which to my mind are far more satisfactory, because they deal with people and conditions familiar to our own lives.

"Possibly the ladies enjoy the elaborate garments of the clothes-horse heroines and the matinee-set faces of the society dames more than they do a simple, convincing story of home life. I wonder? Personally, I am tired of them. Don't you think we have altogether too many?"

Elaine McKusick to Dance at Fair in Medford

Elaine McKusick, seven years old, a clever little fancy dancer, pupil of Miss Audrey McClinman, will present several new dances at the Universalist Church Fair, February 24, at Community Hall, Medford Hillside, that the Miss McKusick is known in Medford and Somerville, where her work has won her much praise.

Other Theatres

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Embracing in its cast two notable screen stars like Elsie Ferguson and Wallace Reid, it was to be expected that "Forever," a Paramount picture, adapted from Peter Ibbetson, would score emphatically, as it did at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. The scenes of this meritorious production are laid in Europe and tell a dramatic and absorbing story. The work of Miss Ferguson and Mr. Reid is, as usual, artistic and praiseworthy. They are competently supported by George Fawcett, Elliott Dexter, Montagu Love, Doris Pawn and Theodore Roberts.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH—There's much more in paint than appears on the palette. There's more in evening dress than may appear on the spotless surface of a full dress suit. If doubt exist upon this score Charles Ray steps forth in another comedy picture to prove the case. The production at issue is "R. S. V. P.," his latest laugh-getter, which was the feature attraction ushering in First National Week at Gordon's Old South Theatre.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—A miniature farce which told with sparkling humor of the predicaments into which a man fell when attempting to deceive his wife, his stenographer, and a picture is the chief offering in the production at issue is "R. S. V. P." his latest laugh-getter, which was the feature attraction ushering in First National Week at Gordon's Old South Theatre.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—A miniature farce which told with sparkling humor of the predicaments into which a man fell when attempting to deceive his wife, his stenographer, and a "Prevarication" and it was presented by Bert Baker and company.

GORDON'S STRAND—Twenty-five years old, but his eyes had never beheld a woman. That was the strange case of Jacques Leiter, the hero of "The Lotus Eater," an Associated First National attraction, presented at Gordon's Strand. John Barrymore plays the part of Leiter. Other attractions on the same bill include Herbert Bosworth in "The Sea Lion," the latest news and comic pictures, and organ recitals by Arthur J. Martel.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—A novel three-act farce for the delightful miniature musical comedy, "Mother Goose," the headline vaudeville attraction at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia. This presentation, starring J. C. Mack, noted musical comedy favorite, portrays the trials and tribulations of the famous nursery rhyme character, the woman who lives in a shoe with her many children, thereby becoming the first landlords' trust buster.

PARK, MODERN AND BEACON—Every theatre has its boy, every man who remembers his boyhood, will recall some delightful memories after seeing Wesley Barry in "School Days," which has the distinction of heading the bill at three theatres this week, the Park, Modern and Beacon. The picture reveals the pranks, the disappointments and the glory of an untamable, irresponsible boy, Spock Brown, played by the freckle-faced star. And Spock fairly revels in his portrayal. He is first seen among rural surroundings and later he gets a taste of private tutoring that is accorded children of wealthy parents in big cities.

HOWARD THEATRE—Jack Dempsey, the greatest of all ring generals and one of the most popular men of the roped arena, was accorded a big reception at the Howard, where he is appearing in an athletic sketch, in which he shows with his sparring partner, Larry Williams, and his manager, Jack Kearns. This is Dempsey's first Boston appearance. I. N. Webber of New York says that Dempsey will remain champion for years, and there is no fighter in sight to beat him. The reception accorded Dempsey was greater than any attained by any other fistic star that ever appeared at that theatre.

BURLESQUE AT WALDRON'S IS FULL OF PEP

By FRED J. McISAAC,
Dramatic Editor.

Barney Gerard's "Follies of the Day" company, the biggest show in all burlesque, is at Waldron's this week, together with a heterogenious collection of vaudeville and motion pictures, the entire show taking five hours to pass a given point.

It's probably the biggest theatrical bill of fare ever offered in Boston. When you take into consideration that the Gerard show was said to have cost $227,000, including scenery and costumes, you have some idea of what is being given away by Monsieur Waldron.

The truth is that Gerard's show is last year's Follies, painted by Urban, for Gerard, and the figure regarding its cost is no exaggeration of the nimble press agent.

Gerard has replaced the Ziegfeld girls with his own bevy of dainty triphammers, steppers and warblers, his own inimitable comedians and his own snappy form of entertainment. It is a very classy show.

It is the common belief that the chorus in burlesque shows are there for the purpose of being gazed upon rather than anything else. In this show it's decidedly different. One can gaze upon any member of the chorus and suffer no pange of regret and, on the other hand, one can listen to their combined warbling and enjoy it immensely as there is considerable vocal talent among this attractive aggregation of femininity.

The entire feminine part of the show is strong. There's Gertrude Hayes, Jr., for instance. Miss Hayes is a bundle of pep, gracefully interpreted. She can sing, dance and give three times as much entertainment as the average burlesque soubrette. She is closely crowded for honors by Mae Dix, a lively individual just chock full of jazz. Jule De Cameron, the prima donna, is of a type seldom seen in burlesque. She is an attractive and refined appearing young woman with a highly cultivated soprano voice. Her numbers accord tremendous hits, particularly with last night's audience.

TURKEY-WORCESTER TRIP TOOK 60 DAYS

It took Miss Ruth Woodis, a Near East relief worker, sixty days to make the journey from Harpoot, Turkey, to Worcester, Mass., where relief funds are supporting 3,100 children in thirty-eight orphanages, to her home in Worcester, so she reported to the Massachusetts Committee. Miss Woodis has just returned from fifteen months' service. Harpoot is 600 miles from the railroad, and the first stage of the journey was made by motor truck. She is a high school teacher, but says that the situation in the Near East is so critical as a result of the famine that she may return.

Seats for "The Circle"

Seats went on sale this morning at the Selwyn Theatre for the important engagement of John Drew and Mrs. Leslie Carter in "The Circle," opening next Monday night. It is known Somerset Maugham's comedy proves worthy of the cast of pearls, not only as an example of good-play-writing but as a hospitable entertainment.

DANCING ACTS ARE FEATURE AT KEITH'S

Mabel Ford Revue, William Rock and Others Headliners of Good Bill

In a bill of unusual merit, three dancing acts probably stand a little above the others at Keith's this week. Early in the program is the Mabel Ford revue. This talented dancesne, assisted by her own orchestra, briefly reviews dances of the last several decades.

William Rock, with Nancy Walford and Helyn Eby, gives an assortment of songs, dances and character studies. Last night they saved their best number for the final score. It was an interpretation of a vaudeville sketch by classical dancers.

Those who departed before the final act missed a bit of delightful versatility by Lola and Sesia, particularly the toe dancing of Miss Lola.

Tom Smith, who bills himself as an "artist, gentleman and a scholar," is an artist chiefly in getting laughs. Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barry are back at Keith's this week with the same rube act, except for a change of song.

Marion Harris sings pleasingly and generously.

Others on the program are: Frank Davis and Adele Darnell in a talking skit, "Birdseed," all ten about the Murray Girls, singers and entertainers, and Wilson Aubrey Trio, comedy gymnasts and wrestlers.

Plays That Remain

WILBUR THEATRE — "Lilion," with Joseph Schildkraut and Eva Le Gallienne, is enjoying prosperity at the Wilbur.

SCHUBERT THEATRE—McIntyre and Heath in "Red Pepper," are now in their eighth week in Boston.

GLOBE THEATRE—This is the farewell week of the brief return engagement of William Fox's supreme spectacle "Queen of Sheba" at the Globe Theatre, where this picture may be viewed any day during the week from 10:30 in the morning until 10:30 p. m. at popular prices.

SELWYN THEATRE—"Back Pay" will terminate its engagement at the Selwyn Theatre next Saturday night. Washington's Birthday will be commemorated with the customary Wednesday matinee, tomorrow.

TREMONT TEMPLE — Another week of record breaking audiences began at the Tremont Temple where "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" is being shown.

LAUGHING BILL IS MAJESTIC OFFERING

Marie Nordstrom, the Famous Hanneford Family and Other Acts Please Audience

Bluebert Majestic Theatre produces another laughing bill this week for both young and old vaudeville lovers. It is well balanced and includes some clever acts.

Marie Nordstrom, in "Tick Tock," was well received and deserved her many encores. James Watts, with Rex Story, in a "Treat in Travesty," brought a laugh from every one in the house from the time they appeared in their original costumes, dance and monologue until the end of their act.

Then, too, there is the Hanneford Family with "Poodles," the riding comedian. He is the star of baresback riders.

Other acts include Mlle. Anne Codee with her partner Frankie Max Ford and Victorine in a dance revue; Appolo Trio, in bronze reproductions; Hubinoff in smoke etching, and a song bird whistling act.

Doctor at 82 Finds Mothers Prefer His Formula to New-Fangled Salts And Coal Tar Remedies for Babies

Judgment of 1892 vindicated by world's approval of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a simple vegetable compound for constipation—So safe thousands give it to babes in arms—Now has largest sale in the world.

WHEN a man is in the 83rd year of his age, as I am, there are certain things he has learned that only time can teach him. The basis of treating sickness has not changed since I left Medical College in 1875, nor since I placed on the market the laxative prescription I had used in my practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of my Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other mild laxative herbs with pepsin.

Recently new medicines have been brought out for constipation, like mineral oil, calomel, which is mercury, salts of various kinds, minerals, and coal tar. These are drastic purges, many of them dangerous, and the medical profession

$10,000 Worth of Syrup Pepsin Free

From a recent portrait of DR. W. B. CALDWELL Founder of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Born Hushville, Ill., 1839

In remembrance of my 83rd birthday I have set aside the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars to be given away in half-ounce bottles of my Syrup Pepsin. Only one free Trial bottle to a family. All are constipated now and then, and here is an opportunity for you and others to try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE! Ask for your free bottle today, simply sending name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 514 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Do not postpone this.

is warning the public against them. Certain coal tar products will depress the heart; certain salts give rise to intestinal poisoning, impaction and rupture of the intestines. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why risk chances with pills and powders and strong drugs, even if disguised in candy? My remedy costs less than most others, only about a cent a dose. A bottle such as you can get at any drug store, will last a family several months, and all enjoy it. It is good for the babe in arms because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially liked.

The formula of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is on the cover of every bottle, and the ingredients have the endorsement of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia.

SLAYER STARVES SELF TO CHEAT THE GALLOWS

FROM PINK TEAS to Pink Frocks! Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss, Chicago society woman, like many of her sisters of Boston, New York and Philadelphia, has "gone into trade." She has "designs" on the fashion business.

"THERE'S No Place Like Home, Be It Ever So Dry!" James F. Pershing, Jr., nephew of General Pershing, who has accepted appointment as assistant to New York State Prohibition Director. (Wide World)

PARLOR MOVIES! M. Charest, French theatrical man, has invented a "moviescope" which is capable of projecting a film of the regular size on a screen three inches wide. The portable machine, which weighs but thirty-one pounds, is modeled after the regular projecting machine. Photograph shows the inventor with his "brain child." (International).

RARE AND RACY! Mlle. Juge, who won the mile and three-quarters race for the Shackleton cup at St. Cloud, Paris, after dashing through hampering mud. (International)

FUN, MIXED WITH A LITTLE DASH O' SPEED! Are you on tight? Then, let's go! Sled races enliven the day for the Winter sport lovers at St. Moritz, Switzerland, and the camera man caught this group ready for a two-mile dash down the hill. (Wide World)

SOMETHING DIFFERENT! Mitty and Tillio, Paris dancers, gave London something between a shock and a thrill with their new steps. Here they are in the finale of one of their interpretations. They have been naked to come to America. Gosh! (International)

DOGGING ALONG! Swiss boys and girls are adept at taming King Winter, and one of their strange sports is ski-dogging, with Bruno furnishing the "horse power." These lovable animals have been trained to obey every command. (International.)

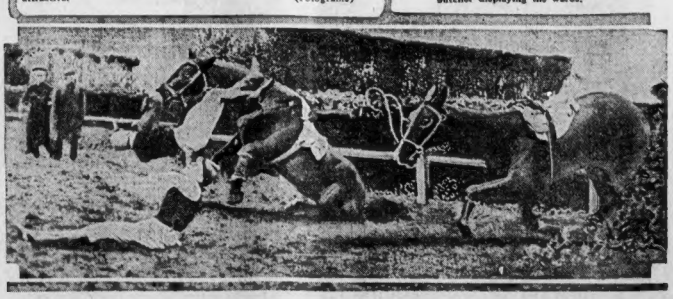
WITH THE HOODED FIGURE IN THE OFFING! Harvey Church, the Chicago youth who was convicted of slaying two men for the possession of an automobile, has gone on a hunger strike. Jail doctors are forcibly feeding him and say he will live to go to the gallows. Photo shows jailer reading death warrant to him. (International)

FASHIONS ARE THE EARLIEST SPRING BUDS TO BURST! Particularly sweet and neat is this blouse of navy canton crepe, with sleeves trimmed with interwoven checks and with beads at the end of the tassels. The cut-out flower effect on front of the blouse is attractive. (Fotograms)

WHY THE WAVES GET WILD! This couple wanted their marriage to be "different"—something to tell their grandchildren about. So they were made Mr. and Mrs. Del Carmen while garbed in their bathing suits on the beach at Los Angeles. The Rev. C. D. Colas did the "knotting."

LEADING A "DOG'S LIFE" WITH A VENGEANCE! Cows and sheep are scarce in Sumatra and the most of those animals is quite beyond the means of the working classes, hence dog meat is consumed in large quantities. A regular trade in dogs for human consumption is carried on. Photograph shows a dog meat butcher displaying his wares. (Gilliams)

"PEACE!" PRESIDENT HARDING was presented this old-fashioned cornsob pipe by a delegation from Missouri. Mrs. T. Zahn of Hillsboro, Mo., made the presentation. (International)



EVERY MOVE A PICTURE! Steeplechases in England must have a certain number of spills (sometimes they are fatal) or the spectator feels that he has been cheated. In the "Prince of Wales Steeplechase" at Sandown Park, England, there were plenty of thrills and spills enough for the most rabid of fans. This remarkable action picture caught Jockey O'Sullivan, on "Wing Commander" (at the right) and Captain Collan on "Mabu," doing Annette Kellermans over their mounts. Nobody was hurt. (International)

NICE DOGGY! This gentle canine is said to be the only dog that will swim into deep water and DIVE nine or ten feet to rescue a drowning person. He has already saved two lives in this manner. The dog is owned by W. J. Cassidy of Fort Worth, Texas, and his breed is Australian Chesapeake. Here he is pictured with one of his admirers. (International)

PRINCESS MARY TRIES ON HER WEDDING GOWN

Series of Parties Before King and Queen Give First of Ceremony

London, Feb. 21.—This was Princess Mary's big day before the wedding. That most important duty of all, trying on the wedding gown, took place today. The remainder of her trousseau has been in readiness for several days.

The king and queen this afternoon gave the first of a series of wedding parties. Everyone who has the slightest claim to distinction in governmental affairs hopes to be invited. The wedding rehearsal, a pageant which is expected to rival the actual performance in splendor, will take place the latter part of the week.

Viscount Lascelles has changed his plans and instead of having his brother for his best man that office will be filled by Major Sir Victor Mackenzie, Scots Guards.

Forces of soldiers and police will line the route between Buckingham Palace and the Abbey on Thursday, Feb. 23, the day of the romantic event. There will be four processions into the Abbey. The first will be that of the royal family and representatives of foreign courts with Queen Alexandra, grand-mother of the bride as the central figure. Her escort probably will be the Duke of Connaught.

The second procession will be that of Queen Mary attended by ladies of her household and walking with the Duke of York, brother of the bride. Behind them will come Prince Henry and Prince George. Then will come the short procession of the bridegroom and those who will attend him at the altar. Lastly there will be the procession headed by Princess Mary who will be escorted by her father, the king. She will be followed by eight bridesmaids.

URGES JAIL FOR LAW-BREAKING BANKERS

Representative Hannagan Files Minority Report After Hearing

State prison sentences for bank officials who break trust with depositors were urged today before the legislative Committee on Banks and Banking by Representative William J. Hannagan, a member of the special commission on revision of banking laws. He filed a minority report, urged the elimination of fines.

Senator Wellington Wells, chairman of the special commission, urged heavy fines and imprisonment. He said he believed a more drastic law was needed. He said that the reason the majority of the commission favored fines and imprisonment was because it had been learned by experience that juries will not convict in cases where there was no alternative between a fine and imprisonment.

Henry Parkman and G. W. Tibbets, Boston bankers, expressed different views over the bill limiting interest payments in the savings departments of trust companies and in savings banks. The bill would forbid payment of a dividend of more than 6 per cent. while there are losses in the bank or bond depreciation equal to the undivided profits exclusive of the guarantee fund. Mr. Parkman thought the new interest rate might be better put at 4½ per cent., while Mr. Tibbetts though 4 was sufficiently large.

WORLD COMBINE IN DYE TRADE ALLEGED

Washington, Feb. 21.—A world combine of American and British exporters, involving the Dupont de Nemours Company, is seeking international control of the dye industry, it was charged today by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, before the Senate Judiciary Sub Committee probing an alleged dye monopoly and lobby in the United States. He declared the combine was based on a contract covering ten years, signed by the Dupont interests and the Levinstein Limited of Manchester, England.

King read the alleged contract declaring it proved the Dupont concern was implicated in the American monopoly. He previously had said that President Dupont be subpoenaed to appear before the committee. The contract, according to King, gave to Levinstein, Ltd., exclusive trade rights in Great Britain, Ireland, India, France, Italy, Spain, Belgium, Holland, Portugal, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, with full use of all the Dupont "secret processes" and patented inventions.

HARDWARE MEN OPEN ANNUAL CONVENTION

The twenty-ninth annual convention of the New England Hardware Dealers' Association opened today in Mechanics Hall to continue through Thursday. Among the events of convention week is an illustrated lecture tomorrow afternoon on New England's beauty spots, to be given by the official photographer for the Boston & Maine railroad. The opening of the convention was preceded by a smoker in the Boston Athletic Association clubhouse, featured by songs and moving pictures.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Hunnewell-Amory Engagement Arouses Interest

By BETTY ALDEN

THE high spot in yesterday's activities of Boston society was the announcement made by Robert Amory of Brush Hill road, Readville, of the engagement of his sister, Mary Copley Amory, to Arnold Welles Hunnewell of No. 361 Commonwealth avenue.

Miss Amory, who lives at No. 279 Beacon street, is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Robert Amory. The latter was, before her marriage, Miss Katharine L. Crehore. Miss Margot Amory, a member of the Sewing Circle of 1917, and Mrs. James R. Hooper (Katharine Amory) are sisters of the bride-elect, who is one of the most popular of the younger set.

Mr. Hunnewell is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hunnewell, and the brother of Miss Louisa Hunnewell, Francis W. Hunnewell, Walter W. Hunnewell, and Mrs. Sydney M. Williams, who was Miss Mary P. Hunnewell.

He is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1913, and a member of the Somerset and Tennis Racquet clubs, the Harvard Club, the Porcellian Club and the Hasty Pudding. The date for the wedding has not been set.

Mrs. James G. Mumford, who will be married to Mr. Richard H. Dana in Emmanuel Church next Saturday, is being widely entertained in Boston this week. She is the house guest of Mrs. James Jackson, since she left Mrs. Thomas Chandler Thacher, who has been entertaining her since her arrival in Boston.

The wedding on Saturday will bring a number of distinguished persons to Boston. The ceremony at the church will be very simple, for Mrs. Mumford will have no attendants. The Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Samuel S. Drury, rector of St. Paul's School in Concord.

A luncheon at the Chilton Club will follow the ceremony. Some of those who are coming for the wedding are Miss Mary Aldrich, Miss Rebekah Caldwell, Mrs. Elihu Chauncey, Mrs. Gilbert Montague, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Satterlee, Mrs. Robert Sturgis, and Mrs. Tracy, an aunt of Miss Anne Morgan, a close friend of the bride, who will be unable to be on hand.

Mr. Dana and his bride will sail for Italy a week from Saturday to be gone until Fall. They will visit the devastated regions of France in particular, for Mrs. Mumford has been actively interested in reconstruction work there.

Plans are practically completed for the mammoth aviation ball to take place at the Copley-Plaza on Friday night. This promises to be the most stupendous affair of its sort to be given. The plans call for the best of everything. There will be special orchestra, while the decorations, in the hands of John Lavalle, will be even more unusual and artistic than those of last year. The favors, too, are destined to be a great surprise and a novelty.

Mrs. F. H. Putnam and Mrs. John Chipman Gray will receive, beginning at 10 o'clock, and will be relieved at 10:30 by Mrs. Ralph Bradley, Mrs. George Richmond Fearing and Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell will take the stand at 11, and half an hour later they will be replaced by Mrs. Arthur Dupee and Mrs. William A. Gaston.

There will be a number of dinners given prior to the dance as usual, two of the largest being arranged by Mrs. Russell S. Codman and Mrs. George Richmond Fearing. Mrs. Codman, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. H. H. Fuller, Mrs. Everett Morse, Mrs. Carl Kaufman, Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno, and Colonel W. D. Sohier have taken boxes for the evening.

The Hundred Club dance, usually given on Tuesday nights at the Copley-Plaza, has been postponed until Thursday night of this week. The executive committee of the club will be in the receiving line.

The dancing will start at 9 o'clock and the prize dance will be directly after the supper dance at 12:30. Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell, Mr. Frederick Ayer, Mrs. B. H. Draper, Mrs. Lester Harding, and Mr. Tarrant P. King have already made reservations.

MISS MARY JAMES

Miss Mary James has returned to her home at No. 46 Mount Vernon street, from Baltimore, where she has been visiting her cousin, Miss Olivia D. Wheeler. Miss James was widely entertained during her stay in the Southern city

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

MRS. BAYARD TUCKERMAN, JR., formerly Phyllis Sears, returns today from Aiken, S. C., in order to show her entries in the dog show, which opens at Mechanics Hall today and continues through tomorrow and Thursday. The Tuckermans will be well represented by their kennels at South Hamilton.

The Junior League event today is a luncheon with Mr. Robert Kelso, executive secretary of the Council of Social Agencies, as the guest of honor. He will speak on the subject of "The Community Chest."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Beal, Jr., of Chestnut Hill have leased a bungalow at West Manchester for the coming Summer. They will be a popular addition to the social colony on the North Shore. Before her wedding in Sherburne, Vt., last August, Mrs. Beal was Miss May L. Morgan.

Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, 2d, of Boston is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell, at their cottage at Palm Beach. Mrs. Shaw was Miss Naneen Mitchell. Mr. Louis Agassiz Shaw is visiting at that Winter resort, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Hamlin and their daughter, Miss Anna Hamlin, are in Washington after their sojourn in Bermuda during the Winter months. They have taken an apartment at No. 1355 Sixteenth street.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Murray Forges of Wellesley are the latest Bostonians to leave for a trip South. They expect to be away until late in the Spring.

HUSBAND SENTENCED FOR ATTEMPT AT KIDNAPING

Attleboro, Feb. 21.—Manuel and Mary Sousa of Fairhaven, father and mother of seventeen-year-old Emily Sousa; John Sousa of New Bedford, her husband, and Joseph Lousa of Fairhaven, her brother, were arraigned in the District Court before Judge Charles C. Hagerty on charges of disturbance of the peace and assault in connection with the attempted kidnaping of the girl from the Bristol County Tuberculosis Hospital at Briggs' Corner, Sunday. All pleaded not guilty.

John Sousa, the girl's husband, was given three months in the House of Correction in New Bedford, and appealed, being held in $300 bonds furnished by Manuel Sousa, and the charge of disturbance was filed. Joseph Sousa was given a suspended sentence of six months in the House of Correction.

"SALLIES" TO OBSERVE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

The Salvation Army will commemorate Washington's Birthday with its thirteenth annual young people's demonstration, to be held tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in the Shawmut Congregational Church, Tremont and West Brookline streets. Five hundred young people and many officers connected with this branch of the Army's activity are coming from all over New England to participate in the event. Officers' councils, presided over by Brigadier William C. Crawford, general secretary, will occupy the morning and afternoon sessions. The principal feature of the occasion will be the young people's entertainment in the evening.

TWO MORE NEW YORK BROKERAGE FIRMS FAIL

New York, Feb. 21.—Another tidal wave was swept up Wall street by the turbulent sea of high finance and two more big brokerage houses were cast high on the rocks of bankruptcy.

The latest financial derelicts are Kohler, Bremer & Co., of No. 32 Wall street and F. Oppenheimer & Co. of No. 50 Broadway.

The failure of the two Wall street houses occasioned little surprise in financial circles as stock trading conditions have tightened to such an extent during the past few weeks that many operators will be unable to keep their doors open longer.

Who said the housewife of New England does not discriminate?

In January we reduced prices on all our brands, except HATHAWAY'S CREAM BREAD. We explained that the extra price of this famous loaf was due to the extra cost of the fresh, rich milk and other superior ingredients we use in its manufacture; that the price today was only 3 cents higher than the lowest price it ever sold at and we could not make it cheaper at present without impairing its wonderful food value.

We felt sure that you supplied your table on the basis of commonsense rather than impulse or mistaken economy. Our sales prove that the New England housewife agrees with us that real economy in bread, as often in clothes, lies in demanding real quality.

We thank our customers for their kind and unanimous support which makes it possible for us to give you the richest and most nutritious loaf in the country—HATHAWAY'S CREAM BREAD.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

JACK WILL FIGHT WILLS IF SOME PROMOTER WILL STAGE BOUT

By JACK DEMPSEY

(Heavyweight Champion of the World.)

It is natural that I should think a lot about John L. Sullivan while in Boston as this was the home of the former heavyweight champion of the world. I shall always have a warm spot in my heart for Sullivan as he was a real champion who was always willing to enter a ring with all comers.

It would be a very unfair person who would not give full praise to Sullivan. He was a fighter. He knew little about so-called scientific boxing and cared less. He believed that the fans appreciate two-handed fighting much more than they do fancy boxing, in this respect I agree with Sullivan.

* * *

I would rather be in Boston preparing for a real fight than appearing on the stage twice daily. I believe that a champion's place is in the ring battling the best of the opposition.

* * *

I don't want to be a moving picture hero. Neither do I care to win a title as a vaudeville performer. I don't care a whole lot about appearing before the footlights, but as I cannot get an opponent I must keep busy.

There are some people who contend that a champion is unwise to spend any of his time on a theatrical tour. I disagree with these individuals. A box three tough rounds twice a day besides doing some shadow boxing before my act goes on.

* * *

Since I have come to Boston I have been asked to tell my plans for the future to several hundred different people. I have tried to answer all the questions as best I could, but this opportunity of writing daily stories for the Boston American enables me to make my answers a little more specific.

* * *

If I have my way I shall meet all rivals as fast as the promoters can book the shows. I shall fight Harry Wills, Fred Fulton, Luis Villard or any other man the public demands me to meet provided some reliable promoter agrees to stage the match.

There is a great deal more pleasure in fighting than there is in appearing on the stage. When I am showing before the footlights I am obliged to be around the theatre for the greater part of the afternoon and evening.

I would prefer to be spending my time at a training camp. I would then have the pleasure of looking forward to a test in the ring. And I am confident enough in my own ability to feel that I can turn back any of the heavyweight contenders.

For a time it looked as though I would be signed to battle with Fulton again. The public, however, did not get very enthusiastic over this match.

* * *

Jess Willard was then suggested as a possible opponent. The former champion has had an idea he would defeat me and I stand prepared to give him the chance he desires. If a promoter can be found to promote such a contest I am ready to give Big Jess the chance he desires.

* * *

Harry Wills has been clamoring for an opportunity to win the heavyweight championship. Wills recently engaged in a couple of poor bouts, but I will meet him in the event he can get a promoter to stage the affair.

There have been newspaper stories to the effect that I have been offered many thousands of dollars to clash with Wills. To date neither Jack Kearns, my manager, nor myself has received a legitimate offer from any promoter.

In the event that I am unable to get a bout in this country, I shall probably go to Europe where I may battle Georges Carpentier. There are some people who still think the Frenchman can defeat me. I am willing to be shown provided I am paid what my services as a boxer are worth.

* * *

It will not worry me if Jack Kearns slips me to fight once a month. Fighting is my game and the sooner I am using my tools as it were, the better pleased I shall be.

This is the house that Jack built—for his folks—but rumor has it that he will soon occupy it himself with a bride.

TECH CREW CANDIDATES IN FIRST SESSION THURSDAY

The first call for crew candidates at Technology has been issued by Manager Roscoe H. Smith and Captain Horace H. McCurdy for 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when all men interested in rowing will report for the first big mass meeting of the season.

Manager Smith will outline the program and Captain McCurdy and several veterans of last year will give short talks, urging as large a turnout as possible.

Dr. Allen W. Rowe, secretary of the Alumni Council on Athletics, will address the meeting on crew work in general and will probably make some announcements concerning the B. A. A. boathouse which Tech recently bought.

Preliminary work in the form of workouts on the track and in the gym will be immediately started and as soon as the weather conditions permit the crews will take to the water.

The call for crew has been sounded earlier this season than usual, due to the acquirement of the new boathouse.

Dr. Rowe expects that when new boats and other equipment are obtained over 400 men will be out on the river daily, but at present the capacity of the boathouse is limited to one hundred men. It is therefore probable that the first cuts will be made early.

The large number of men out for competition for the varsity shells, Captain McCurdy, Newell, Valentine, Mollinar, Keane and Woodruff, veterans of last year, return to the first boat.

From last year's freshman outfit, Prouty, Greatwood, Thomas and Dunleavy are available. Dunleavy contained the sophomore crew on field day last November, and was stroke for the cubs last year.

H. P. Kepple, a former Navy star, who was unable to compete last year because of the one year transfer ruling, will also be available for the first boat.

Owing to the cancellation of the Yale race on May 3 two major regattas remain on the schedule: Harvard on May 13 on the Charles, and Columbia on the following Saturday on the Harlem River. Yale meets Columbia the week previous to the race scheduled with Tech, and on the following week the crews are entered in a triangular race with Princeton and Cornell.

There coming between the two major events on the program would interfere with the training of the first crew, but since the date was only tentative, the Yale manager offered to substitute the second boat, which Tech has accepted.

It is possible that a race will be arranged with either the Union Boat Club or with Annapolis for May 30.

The first freshman crew will race with Harvard '23 on April 30 as a preliminary to Harvard-Penn race.

ARLINGTON TOWN TEAM PLAYS THE COMEDY FIVE

The big holiday sporting event in Arlington will be a basketball game for the championship of the town in the Old Town Hall at 8 p. m.

In this contest of which John "Buddy" Dain is the sponsor, the Arlington town team will oppose the "Comedy Five."

HARVARD FRESHMAN NINE GETS BATTERY MEN OUT

Twenty-five candidates for battery positions on the Harvard freshman nine reported to Coach Bill Young in the baseball cage on Soldiers Field.

Among the prominent schoolboy flingers out were George Krovition, formerly of Middlesex School; Sol, Cordongley of Browne & Nichols, Tousmin of Country Day, Ernie Gebelein of Wellesley High, Bewell of Country Day, and Burns of Boston Latin.

Bill Cantillon of Exeter was among the seven catchers on hand.

Galveston, Texas, Feb. 21.—Marty Burke, New Orleans light-heavyweight, won the referee's decision in twelve rounds over Harry Krohn, Akron, Ohio, middleweight.

OPEN HOUSE BY AUTO DEALERS TOMORROW

New Cars Will Be Exhibited by Many Firms in Annual Holiday Exposition

The automobile dealers along the row will keep open house tomorrow, following a custom long since established as the "Opening Day" for motor car buyers.

Most of the dealers have new cars on their floors, and this holiday, coming only a few weeks before the Boston show, is an opportunity for many to inspect their favorite models before they are displayed to the public at Mechanics Building.

Some of the dealers have made elaborate preparations for entertaining the prospective buyers, and flowers and decorations are seen in many of the windows.

VIM EXHIBITION.

The Vim Motor Truck Company of Commonwealth avenue is to hold an exhibition of used motor trucks. There will be about thirty trucks which have been selected for this sale from the entire stock of used trucks on hand and these will be displayed in an attractive manner.

Both the new and used car salesrooms will be given over to the display of these trucks on this day and the entire sales force will be on hand to take care of visitors and answer and give any information.

Prices have been greatly reduced and there are many positive bargains among the cars to be shown and any man who is contemplating purchasing a used truck at this or any future date will find it well worth his while to make a visit to the Vim showrooms on Washington's Birthday.

SHOWING OF DORTS.

The Utterback-Gleason Company, New England distributors of Dort cars, will keep open house, and the salesrooms have been fittingly decorated for the occasion. Since the announcement of the cut in prices the interest displayed in the new Dort models has increased. The new model T Sedan and Coupe is coming in for a whole lot of attention, and at the prices offered makes a very attractive buy.

The whole "Dort" family will be on exhibition and the new models make an attractive display.

The 1923 Dort models carry many new refinements and features, which were reflected in the heavy sales at both the New York and Chicago shows, and it is expected that the Boston Show will also show a wonderful sales record in both retail and wholesale business.

FACTORY IS BOOMING.

Both Mr. Utterback and Mr. Gleason are very much pleased with the conditions at the factory, which is working a larger force than has been possible for several months past.

The manufacturing conditions of the country are today much better than they have been for months and in this renewed prosperity the Dort Company is participating equally with any other manufacturer.

It has gone through the hardest period with remarkable success and is confident that with the coming months business will materially increase and that Dort will attain even greater success than marked its progress at the height of the motor industry.

STAMFORD YACHT CLUB WILL HELP BUILD BOAT

Stamford, Ct., Feb. 21—The Stamford Yacht Club has accepted the invitation of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club of Oyster Bay to build a six-meter boat to be entered in the elimination trials for the contest with a British vessel of this type to be held next season.

TONRY CAPTAIN OF THE B. U. ELEVEN

Former Boston College Player Wins Election to the Surprise of All

Although "Buster" Williamson and Wesley Bunker were the popular candidates on the slate for election, Tonry surprised all and walked off with an unexpected victory.

"Babe" Tonry in his high school days at Winthrop was a star on the varsity football team. And he continued his good work into Boston College from which he transferred to Boston University. He didn't play last year so that he is eligible for captain. Tonry was a fullback.

BOSTON TIGERS PLAY AGAINST THE FITTONS

Tomorrow night the Fitton A. A. basketball team will clash with the strong Boston Tigers, colored champions of New England, at Symmes Hall, East Boston. The colored players have just returned from a successful invasion of New York State, where they won the majority of their games and made such a hit that they were booked for a return trip.

In the Boston Tigers have one of the fastest men playing the indoor game, and he is also the high scorer of the team, Galloway, the old Fennsylvania League will jump centre. Crosson, formerly of Chelsea, and "Hooker" Thomas will play the back position.

MIDDLESEX CALLS OUT CREW AND NINE BOYS

The first call for candidates for the baseball nine and the crew will be issued at Middlesex School this afternoon.

Robert F. Foster, who will coach the baseball team, will call out the baseball boys for work in the big glass cage at the school, with its regulation diamond.

The oarsmen will work out on the rowing machines in the school gymnasium, under the direction of Faculty Coach Charles W. Locke.

DEMPSEY AS POPULAR AS JOHN L. SULLIVAN IN HIS PALMY DAYS

By JACK CONWAY.

Jack Dempsey today has a grip on the hearts of the boxing fans of Boston and New England equal to that held by John L. Sullivan, when that famous ring warrior was crushing all opposition under the power of his terrific punches.

Dempsey came to Boston a quiet, unassuming individual, met the fans at the Old Howard and put himself in solid everywhere by his magnetic personality, natural modesty and desire to be gracious and accommodating to all those who came in contact with him.

As an actor, Dempsey rivals Jim Corbett. He does better on the stage than any boxer who has been before the footlights during the past fifteen years with the possible exception of Corbett.

* * *

Of course Dempsey would rather be fighting than touring the country with a show. He frankly states he hates being an actor, but as he is an actor for the time being as a result of the lack of suitable opponents in the heavyweight division, he intends to be a good one.

* * *

Jack Kearns, the man who pilloried Dempsey from the ranks of the unknown to the heavyweight championship, appears with the titleholder. Manager Jack is the first to hop out under the calcium. He makes a short speech about the benefits of the ring game and then says a few kind things about Dempsey.

While Kearns was firing his opening shot at the afternoon show, Dempsey was pacing up and down behind the wings of the stage a few feet from where this writer was standing.

* * *

"I hate this stuff," said "Tiger Jack." "I would much rather be battling in the ring. It would be easier for me to hop out there mad wallop my way to a ring victory than it will be for me to hand out some of this stage chatter. In another minute I'll get on. You see, this is the first performance of my new act and I am a little bit shaky on some of my lines. There's my cue. I must now bust into the picture."

Dempsey's nervousness left him once he got out on the stage and received the plaudits of the packed house. The champion then went through his sketch with Kearns like a veteran stage performer.

* * *

"Tell them about that second round with Carpentier" is one of Kearns' bright lines.

"Jack likes to have some fun with me by recalling the second round," replied Dempsey. "I'll admit the Frenchman will have me backing away in the second, but in true American fashion I held my big celebration for the fourth."

* * *

"What's this about your going to get married?" asks Kearns.

"These chorus girls must think I'm home," retorts the champion. "All I know is a dozen of them are trying to sting me."

* * *

While a film was being shown which depicts the daily life of the champion, Tommy Jacks got into rough togs and did some strenuous shadow boxing before the curtain went up. He then boxed three fast rounds with Harry Williams of Bridgeport, who had his head protected from the champion's blows by a head gear. Lucky for Williams that he took this precaution, for Dempsey's blows had plenty of power behind them despite the fact he wore big gloves.

* * *

The workouts he has been receiving while on tour have apparently prevented him from putting on any excess weight.

* * *

It was a different Dempsey than the one we saw at Jersey City. On this occasion the champion was grim and determined and appeared intent upon a campaign of destruction. He didn't smile until after Carpentier had been counted out.

* * *

The Dempsey who is in Boston today is a smiling, gracious, happy-go-lucky boy. He acts as if he did not have a care in the world and as if he desired everybody to be his friend.

* * *

"Tiger Jack" posed for pictures until he was long weary, but he never complained. He listened to the queries of the sob sisters as well as those of the sporting reporters without once showing any impatience.

And so everybody Dempsey makes clear he is a fighting man at heart and that he would rather be in the ring, regardless of who his opponent may be, than doing his act before the footlights.

MIKE MORLEY DEFEATS BROOKLYN JIMMY WHITE

The large crowd which attended the weekly show of the Castle A. C. at Lynn witnessed twenty-seven rounds of indifferent boxing.

In the main bout, Mike Morley of Hartford received the decision over Jimmy White of Brooklyn. Morley, with a weight advantage of eight pounds, was in the lead from the start. He floored his opponent twice and appeared to carry him along.

Phil Bruno of East Boston proved no match for Frank Chaney, the classy Lynn boy, in the eight round semi-final which went the distance, much to the disgust of the crowd.

The curtain raiser, a six-round melee between Jack Dunn of New York and Bill Blakie of Medford, was the best and only real fight on the program. Every minute of the time the boys were in the ring was crowded with action. Dunn received the award, but a draw decision, if permitted, would have been much fairer.

The second bout, scheduled to go six rounds, was a short lived. Before the third round was over Gerry Stone had been knocked out by his hard hitting opponent, Tom Hart, who hails from Gloucester.

ALLEN AND RANDALL IN ST. JOSEPH'S TOURNEY

"Whitey" Allen, Hyde Park heavyweight, and Alvin Randall, South Boston heavyweight, will meet in the finals of the St. Joseph T. A. & B. amateur tournament tomorrow night at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square.

Bouts in the classes at 115, 126, 135, 147 and heavyweight, will be held.

All the headliners of the intercity show last month have taken out entry blanks and it is expected that the tournament will be one of the best ever conducted by the West End organization.

Shoot at Lexington

The Middlesex Rifle Club of Lincoln will hold a competitive shoot with the Arlington Rifle Club on the range of the Lexington Minute Men, at the Munroe Farm, Lexington.

O'KEEFE WINNER WITH ONE HAND OVER SILVA

Denny O'Keefe of Chicago jabbed his way to a clean-cut decision over the rugged Harry Silva from the West End last night at the Grand Opera House. It was Danny's first fight in Boston and he won the hearty approval of local fans by living up to his reputation as a clean-cut, fighting person.

It was evident early in the fray that Silva would have a tough job trying to locate his faster opponent long enough to register one of his heavy wallops, for Danny kept him off with straight lefts. The Chicago boy showed that he also packed a mule kick in his left, and he nearly fractured Silva in the fourth frame.

It was almost a one-handed victory for the visitor, for late in the fifth round he overreached a crushing right hand swing and injured his hand on Silva's head, and from then on he continually favored that arm, content with straight lefts, seldom using his right. Silva flashed late in the seventh and eighth rounds, but he was in such a weakened condition that the blows were ineffective. O'Keefe weighed in at 142½, Silva, 136.

In the eight round semi-final Jim Wright of Lynn boxed his way to victory over the hard punching Soldier Franks from Powtucket. Franks carried the fighting all the way and tried hard to turn out one of the best punch. In the second he knocked his sturdy opponent through the ropes, but the last named bounced right back to continue. The judges disagreed and Referee Phil Powers voted for the Lynn man.

Jimmy Edwards of Los Angeles proved too clever for Frankie Ryan, who was unable to continue after the third round.

Jack Mansfield of Lawrence bowed to defeat at the hands of Johnny Bevan in the first round. The towel saved the former from a knockout.

BELMONT SPRINGS PRO HAS THE LOWEST ROUND

Pinehurst, N. C., Feb. 21.—Bert Nichol, Belmont Springs Club professional, had the lowest round yesterday when he did a fine 69 on the championship course.

He did not start too well, taking three putts at the first and five at the second, before he was short with his second. His card: 5,5,4,4,3,5, 3, 36; 4, 4, 4, 3, 4, 5, 4, 3, 4, 38—69.

A letter was received here entering Willie Hunter, British amateur champion, in the North and South open and amateur championship.

HAINES SIGNED TO COACH AT PENN STATE

State College, Pa., Feb. 21.—The signing of "Hinkey" Haines as assistant football and basketball coach at Penn State for next year brings back to the Nittany institution one of the most popular all-round athletes turned out in recent years.

Announcement is made by Hugo Bezdek, director of athletics at Penn State, that Haines had been secured to replace "Dick" Harlow as assistant football coach, the latter having resigned to become head coach at Colgate University.

Haines will not report until next Fall, for he expects to go South with the New York Yankees on March 1 to try for a regular berth in the outfield.

He was graduated at Penn State and Dunn and immediately signed with the Yankees. After a brief try-out he was sent to the Newark club for further seasoning, but was recalled last Fall.

On the Southern trip he will be accompanied by Glenn Killinger, who also signed with the Yankees following his graduation last month. Haines and Killinger were both three-letter men at Penn State, and in addition, were the best of "buddies" in football, basketball and baseball.

Hinkle coached the backfield at Gettysburg College last Fall and helped to turn out one of the best teams in the history of that institution. He succeeded Penn State from Lebanon Valley College in 1918 and made his first varsity appearance on the 1919 eleven.

For two years he was a regular halfback in football, a guard in basketball and centre fielder on the varsity nine. He captained the baseball team last year when twenty straight victories were garnered by Bezdek's boys.

BARTFIELD WILL BOX WALKER IN NEWARK

Newark, N. J., Feb. 21.—Matchmaker Harry Blaufus of the Broad A. C. has signed Soldier Bartfield to meet Mickey Walker, "the Elizabeth Cyclone," Thursday. The last named two tough battles in Philadelphia within the past month and newspaper opinion was divided as to the winner. Walker last week knocked out Johnny Griffith of Akron, and feels confident of stopping the Soldier.

STECHER AND ZBYSZKO IN TITLE MAT BOUT

New York, Feb. 21.—Joe Stecher, the body-scissors expert, who formerly held the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, and Wladek Zbyszko, younger brother of the famous Stanislaus, will exchange grips and locks tonight in Madison Square Garden, when the contest is to be decided by the best two falls in three.

FRENCH AMATEUR WINS FROM OUR CHAMPION

Philadelphia, Feb. 21.—Edouard Roudil of France gave Edgar T. Appleby, American title holder, his first setback in the international 18.2 amateur balkline tourney by defeating Appleby, 300-128. Roudil made his best showing since coming to this country.

STAR HOLIDAY BATTLE FOR ST. MARK'S

Dorchester Boys to Take on Chittick Champions at Hyde Park

St. Mark's		Chittick K of C.
L-onard, lf.		r.b., Laughlin
Collins, rf.		l.b., Chisholm
Driven, c.		c., McConnon
Griffin, lb.		r.f., Lahey
McGonigle, l.b.		l.f., Green
Martin, r.b

The third and deciding game of the J. J. Chittick, K. of C. and St. Mark's C. C. basketball series will be played in Waverly Hall, Hyde Park on Washington's Birthday afternoon.

Each team has won a game, and from the interest that this contest is arousing the biggest crowd of the year should see the two teams fight it out for the supremacy.

Chittick five has had a very successful season and has not been defeated on their home floor since the first of the year. St. Mark's has been improving greatly in the last few weeks and hopes to make this contest the fifth straight win.

CLINTON STARTS TO TRAIN FOR CHAMPION

Johnny Clinton, the New England lightweight champion, has started in light training for his coming 10-round bout with Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, to be held at the Boston Arena on March 20. In about 10 days Clinton will leave for Diamond Hill, R. I., to start in hard work and be in prime shape the night that he crawls through the ropes with the champion.

ROUSH WILL PLAY WITH REDS OR NOT AT ALL

Fitchburg, Mass., Feb. 21.—Manager Pat Moran of the Cincinnati National League baseball club said today while on a visit to the old home town that Fred Roush, outfielder, will play with Cincinnati or not at all this coming season. He is asking for salary and contract terms that the owners of the club have definitely decided not to meet, Moran said.

MAKE FENCES HIGHER TO STOP BABE'S HOMERS

New Orleans, Feb. 21.—Fences at Heinemann Park where the New York Yankees will train this Spring, are being made four feet higher to curb the home runs of "Babe" Ruth, according to Julius Heinemann, president of the local baseball association.

LOOK FOR NEW RECORDS AT THE LEGION MEET

EVENT	FIRST	SECOND	THIRD
50-Yard Dash	Wefers, N. Y. A. C.	Carter, Brown	Kelly, N. Y. A. C
Gaston 600	Driscoll, B. C.	Stevenson, Prince	Leslie, N. Y. A. C.
Boston Mile	Ray, Ill. A. C.	Connolly, George	Davanney, Mill'se
Three-Mile Run	McMahon, B. A. A.	Henigan, Dor. Club	Fleming, B. A. A.
High Jump	Brown, Dart.	Lauden, N. Y. A. C.	Whalen, B. A. A.

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Those who spend tomorrow afternoon at the annual American Legion indoor games at East Armory may witness the establishing of three new world's records, for in at least that number of contests on the program are possible record breakers, and in each instance the competition they will face appears of sufficient quality to force these stars to new marks.

The events are the 50-yard high hurdles, the "Gaston 600-yard run," and the "Boston mile," and the respective leaders in each field are Bob Thomson of Dartmouth, Jake Driscoll of Boston College and Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C.

Each of the three already has one or more world's records to his credit. "Tommy" Thomson holds the existing marks in the 100-meter and 120-yard high hurdles, and is joint holder of the 70-yard, the 50-yard and the 45-yard hurdle events; Driscoll set the existing mark in the 600-yard run; Joie Ray, in the past three weeks has set new world's marks in no less than four events ranging from the 1000-yard to the 3000-yard runs. Ranged against Thomson in the timber numbay will be Dick Whitney, Harvard's hurdling ace; Joe Sullivan, formerly of Boston College, winner of several New England championships, and the man who defeated Thomson in a handicap event; Billy Meanix former holder of the world's 440-yard hurdle record and a member of the recent American Olympic team, and several others who are less well known to track fans but who are capable of kick-toppers nevertheless.

Jake Driscoll, fresh from the New York triumph which gained him permanent possession of the Archbishop Hayes 660-yard trophy, will face several of the men who forced him to within a fraction of a second of world's record time in the latter event. The "Gaston 600" entries include W. J. Stevenson of Princeton, who conquered Basil Rudd, the Oxford and Olympic champion last Summer; Sid Leslie of the New York A. C., a former national champion; J. W. "Billie" Burke of Harvard, who was middle distance champion of the Western Conference while a student at Notre Dame, and Dave Caldwell, the old warhorse of the B. A. A.

• • •

Except for the fact that Parson Hal Cahill will not be a competitor for the field for the Boston Mile is the same as that which reported to the mark for the Hunter Mile in the recent B. A. A. games, for in addition to Joie Ray, the favorite, there will be Jimmy Connolly, the Woburn and Georgetown star; Mike Devaney of the New York A. C., and Harry Shields of Penn State. All four starters were members of the American Olympic team, and thrills galore seem in store for those who pack the East Armory for this event.

• • •

It is possible also that the running high jump may produce a new mark, for entered in that event are Roy Brown of Dartmouth, winner of the B. A. A. high jump, Dick Landon of the New York A. C., who established a new Olympic record at Antwerp, and Walter Whalen, former national high jump titlist.

These special events, with their possible records, however, comprise but a small part of the afternoon's program. There are half a dozen schoolboy and handicap contests on the program, and a list of schoolboy, college and Legion relay events that should allow but few dull moments for the assembled fans

The two big relay events of the meet are the two-mile relay in which Boston College clashes with Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the medley relay in which the Massachusetts Legion team meets the New York State Legion quartet.

The order of events as announced by Johnny Lane, director of athletics of the Massachusetts Legion, follows:

• • •

Team race—South Boston vs. Hyde Park vs. Winthrop.
50-yard dash (schoolboy) final.
Team race—Newton High vs. Brookline.
50-yard hurdles (scratch) trial heats.
Team race—Boston University vs. Williams.
440-yard run (schoolboy).
50-yard hurdles (scratch) final heat.
1,000-yard run (schoolboy).
Team race—Holy Cross vs. Fordham.
Team race—Tufts vs. Brown vs. Clark.
880-yard run (handicap).
One-mile run (invitation) Boston trophy race.
Three-mile run (handicap).
440-yard run (handicap).
One-mile run (handicap).
Team race—Boston College vs. Technology.
Medley team race—Massachusetts Legion vs. New York Legion.

HARVARD PLAYS RHODE ISLAND STATE TONIGHT

Harvard's basketball team will take on Rhode Island State in Hemenway gymnasium tonight. Harvard appears to have somewhat the better record, but will meet an opponent of no little strength.

The Crimson will start the contest minus three regulars, Louis Gordon and Izzy Black, who have grip, and Roscoe Fitts, suffering with a bad leg.

HARVARD.	RHODE ISLAND.
Lowenthal, l. f.	r. f., Hodge
Miller, r. f.	l. f., Chandler
Tyson, c.	c., Hinckley
Buckley, l. g.	r. g., Hess
Miller, r. g.	l. g., Hodge

CHAPIN, HARVARD RUNNER, BADLY HURT IN PRACTICE

Harvard's chances to defeat Dartmouth and Cornell in the triangular indoor track meet Saturday were hurt when Vinton Chapin, the Crimson's star sprinter, was spiked during a practice on Soldiers Field.

Chapin had a good chance to win the 300 Saturday and looked good also for the 40-yard dash Coach Bingham may try to get Chapin into some kind of form in an effort to hold the visiting track men.

Harvard and Dartmouth agreed to meet in a two-mile relay run at the Knights of Columbus track meet in Boston on March 4.

ASK WAIVERS ON BARNES AND DOUGLAS

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN.

New York, Feb. 21.—The Giants cast a bombshell into baseball circles today when they announced that they had placed upon the open market Shufflin' Phil Douglas and Jesse Barnes, pitchers who won two games each for McGraw in the last World's series, setting the stage for Arthur Nehf to win the final and deciding game for the National League when Douglas and Barnes have been bodying out for consistant salaries and have failed to report at Hot Springs.

• • •

Beyond stating that Ed Roush, Cincinnati outfield star, who is holding out for a three-year contract for $54,000, was not being considered in any trade for the pitching staff, the Giant management gave no inkling as to what players it expects to get in exchange for them.

• • •

Several clubs are dickering for Douglas and Barnes and the Giant management expects to announce a completed trade within two days. The local club will demand pitchers in exchange for its star hurlers, and this narrows the field of possible trading clubs down to Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

• • •

The Giants would like to have Glazner, Morrison, Cooper and Lee Meadows figure in the Douglas-Barnes transaction. Although McGraw should have no trouble obtaining Meadows in exchange for either Barnes or Douglas, it is considered unlikely that Barney Dreyfuss will be willing to trade any of his star hurlers

• • •

Other clubs in the National League have little to offer for the Giant stars, but some rumors have connected Donohue of Cincinnati with a possible transaction

FEVER HEAT INTEREST IN BIG MAT TOURNEY

Interest is at fever heat and every indication points to a packed house at the big wrestling tournament to be staged by the Howard management at the Grand Opera House Thursday night.

George Calm will have a chance to prove to the public and his large Italian following in Boston that he is a real champion, as he has contracted to throw Pilkoff, the Russian Lion and Annibale Hizzo, the Italian heavyweight star, in a double feature attraction.

Pilkoff is a young giant, weighing 220 pounds and is 6 feet tall. He is well known to local fans, having defeated Dr. Roller in his last appearance here.

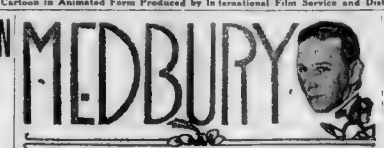
John Klionis is billed to meet Peter Goulete in a one fall finish contest. Harry Mamas, the rough house Greek will meet Paul Bowser of Boston in the other bout of the evening. Fans who saw these two men wrestle some weeks ago will surely be on hand to see the match, as their last battle was a hair raiser

HARVARD VOTES AGAINST BOXING FOR THIRD TIME

The Harvard athletic committee for the third time in as many years has voted against the adoption of boxing as an intercollegiate sport. The committee says that they are not willing, at present, to sanction the sport.

They also voted not to make an appropriation for the expenses of the Harvard tennis team to take a trip to England this Summer and in conjunction with Yale meet Cambridge and Oxford. This will probably cause the trip to be abandoned as far as Harvard is concerned.

MEDBURY



Says That Turkish Rugs Are Easy on the Feet, but So Are Taxicabs

Most every home has two or three Turkish rugs. A Turkish rug is a New Jersey carpet which has been abroad

It is considered valuable because it's worked its way from the kitchen to the parlor.

Every Turk who makes a rug weaves his family history into it. For all you know, you may have an Oriental scandal lying on your living room floor.

Each design means something, but the only sure way you can tell that it's real is by looking at the price

Judging from the price they charge for them, the guy who made them must have brought them over to this country personally.

Not only that, but he must have made the trip in a taxicab.

The same people who make them, make Turkish towels. This is the first time we knew that Turks ever had any use for towels.

They're also famous for their Turkish baths even if they don't take any themselves.

These Turkish rugs make a home look very Oriental, but it doesn't help the rugs any to drop Egyptian cigarette ashes on them

Cigarette ashes are good for moths, but who wants to feed them?

The rug may have been made in Persia, but the moths were born in this country.

While these oriental carpets are expensive a moth would be just as well satisfied with a tuxedo or a silk evening dress.

It takes a Turk fifty years to make one of these rugs and each one tells a big story, but the guy who sells it tells you a bigger one.

Each rug is guaranteed for two hundred years and if it only lasts a hundred and fifty you can take it back and get another one.

These Persian carpets are very easy on the feet. But that's nothing, so are taxicabs.

Still, they cost no much that it's just as cheap to ride around in a taxi as it is to walk around on a Turkish rug.

CHARLIE WHITE BEATS WILLIE JACKSON

Gets Decision in 15-Round Contest and Will Fight Benny Leonard

By Universal Service.

New York, Feb. 21.—Charlie White, of Chicago, won the judges' decision over Willie Jackson in their 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden White will meet Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, next month as the result of his victory.

For the first three rounds Jackson fought like a champion. He was in and out throwing rights and lefts to the jaw. White did most of his work inside, but White threw over his deadly left repeatedly which Shook Willie up.

• • •

In the second White landed a few tough hooks which shook Willie up, but the latter kept right in and repaid him with interest.

• • •

When the fourth started White rushed after Jackson and tossed his gloves at Willie's head. The Chicago lad was desperate

Jackson jumped all over him and smothered him with gloves. Then White drove in a few hard lefts. Jackson opened White's left eye in a very prominent manner. Then Charley came back and gashed Willie's right optic. A wonderful battle with both gladiators having gorey limpid orbs. White wouldn't open much for his glimmer was the worst. Willie kept pounding away as if on a king a beautiful painter were the best thing known. White kept up his good work in the sixth splashing and slapping away at the mashed window.

• • •

• • •

In the eighth White kept on top of Willie, sending him lefts and rights to the body in rapid succession. Willie seemed content to box at long range, but once rushed White to the ropes. Jackson made a target of White's bad eye, shooting two lefts to it, opening it again.

In the ninth they exchanged lefts to the face Charlie sent two hard lefts to the jaw, following with the right. White seemed to be doing the cleaner hitting. Jackson kept after White who danced out of harm's way when Jackson let go a wicked right. The round closed with White sending a straight left to the chin

• • •

A fast and furious mixup took place in the tenth. Willie was the first to break ground after this mixup when they followed in for a clinch. Jackson crashed two hard rights to the jaw at the bell.

• • •

In the twelfth, they clinched often Jackson received a left and right on the jaw at the bell

White set a fast pace in the thirteenth and Jackson was unable to get set for a punch. Jackson was twice floored but rose and fought back courageously

BECKER WINNER OF SENIOR GOLF TOURNEY

Pinehurst, N. C., Feb. 21.—C. L. Becker of Pinehurst won the senior's golf tournament with a gross score of 170 for the 36 holes of play Becker was 86 for the 18 holes played Saturday, and 84 for the final round

R. M. Gorman of Altoona won the low net for the round with a card of 84, 14, 70 and G T Dunlap, Canoe Brook, was second with 88, 12, 74. Forty competed.

Arlington Girls Will Play

The Arlington High girls' basketball five will play with Wellesley High girls this afternoon

The Arlington lineup will include Miss Virginia Wellington, captain, and Miss Braithwaite, forwards; Miss Grace Ogilvie, centre, and Miss Olive Moore and Miss Bourne, guards.

HONUS WAGNER HEADS AMATEUR ASSOCIATION

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 21.—Honus Wagner, former Pittsburgh shortstop has been elected president of the Greater Pittsburgh Baseball Association, an organization composed of most of the amateur baseball clubs of the city.

ANDOVER SENDS NINETEEN TO MEET MARCH 4

By FRED C. LANE.

The entry of Andover Academy, most important yet received by the Wide and New England Preparatory East Armory on March 4

In the same mail that brought the approval of the athletic board of the Andover Prep School were entries from Leominster, New Bedford, Sharon, Stoughton Arlington and Rindge, all newly made members of the Massachusetts Athletic Association

• • •

Judging from the talent that is named in the entry lists of these schools this meet bids fair to be the biggest in schoolboy circles this Winter.

• • •

No definite word has been received from Exeter or Worcester Academy but the entry from the latter is expected in a day or so. The sleet and sickness that attacked Exeter in the past two weeks will hamper efforts from that New Hampshire school.

Lynn English which by dint of years was a strong contestant at times without the services of Mel Taylor, is a team which will bear watching to win

To date entries have been received from Brockton High, Newton High, Hartford, Brookline, Fairhaven High, Arlington, Lowell, Lynn Classical, Lynn English, Wakefield, Winthrop, Cambridge Latin, Marlborough, Woburn, Bangus, Gloucester, Framingham, Wareham, Woburn, New Bedford, Sharon, Stoughton and Rindge Tech of Cambridge

• • •

The private school entry to date includes Andover, Dean Academy, Pushing Academy, Williston, Wilbraham, Noble & Greenough, Roxbury Latin, St. John's Prep, St. James High, Boston College High, Moses Brown, Dummer Academy, Browne and Nichols, Country Day, Milton Academy, Allen Military, Tabor Academy, Suffield School of Connecticut, Pomfret, Choate, Taft and St. George School.

• • •

The fact that three records went by the board in the Greater Boston meet augurs the appearance of competition as if the events whose athletes omitted their records will take part in the affair

Each school in each will be awarded points according to the number of points it scores while athletes in the various events will take part in the affair

• • •

The entry of Allen Military School was gladly accepted, for this will give Ralph Colson a chance to match his ability with that of the best prep school talent in New England

• • •

Joe Kelley of Medford one of the speed stars of the Greater Boston meet will perform over the 600-yard route. Kelley has cleared himself on several occasions with little support.

Medford has a contender for the 50-yard dash in Joe Fox, who has been one of the fastest sprinters in the Middlesex schools in the state. Medford has a contender for the 1000-yard run in Harold Moody, who has been one of the best performers in the state in this event. Moody has been out for a dark horse in the 1000-yard run, but has increased his mark to the point where he is considered a contender for the honors.

Harold Moody of Medford High will enter the high jump for Coach Mc-Dade. He has increased his mark to the point where he is considered a contender for the honors.

• • •

The American Legion meet scheduled for Mechanics Building on Washington's Birthday has several open events that the schoolboys of these parts will enter. Entries for these events, the 50, 600 and 1,000-yard runs will have the events of the runners at the starting mark.

JAPONETTE By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

A Charming Romance of Society and a Woman's Way With a Man, by a Master of Fiction

THE STORY SO FAR

James Edgerton, 3d, of an old and aristocratic New York family, returns to New York from abroad on hearing that the firm founded by his forebears has failed. He pays dollar for dollar and finds himself left with an inherited apartment luxuriously furnished, which an iron-clad will has entailed. With two dollars in his pockets he refuses the offer of an old-time friend to help, goes to the apartment, and finds it occupied by two charming young women, distant cousins, who beg him to forgive them for being there. They are as poor as he is and have advertised for a position, using the apartment as their headquarters. They ask him to let they stay until they get employment.

"NO, I don't. Besides," she added, naively, "she's out of town."

They all laughed. The germ of a delightful understanding was beginning to take shape; it had already become nascent and was developing in every frank smile, every candid glance, every unembarrassed question and reply.

"Is she no parents" said Diana gravely. "You have none, have you?"

"No," he said.

"Then it seems natural to me, our being here together, but—and Diana pointed sideways at Japonette—in the east, I believe people consider relationship of little or no importance."

He sapped his sherry, reflecting. "As a rule," he said; "but"—and he laughed—"if any Easterner even suspected he had two such Califor nia cousins, he'd start for the Pacific coast without his breakfast!"

"Did you ever hear anything half as amiable?" asked Silvette, laughing.

"I never did," replied Diana, "especially as we're probably his twenty-second cousins."

"That distance may lend an enchantment to the obligations of kinship" he said gaily.

"You don't mean that, do you?"

"No I don't." he said, reddening "If I did, the janitor ought to throw me out."

Silvette nodded seriously.

"We know you said it in joke, but the only straw to float Diana's idea is our kinship, Mr. Edgerton. And we grasp at it—for your sake"

"Please cling to it for your own sakes, too," he said, also very serious now; "it may become a plank to float us all. . . . I realize the point you are straining out of kindness to me. If I accept shelter here for a day or two, I shall know very well what it costs you to offer it."

"It doesn't cost us anything," interrupted Diana, hastily Silvette meant only that you should understand why our consciences and common sense sanction your remaining if we remain."

"You must remain anyway" he said

"So must you, cousin," said Silvette, laughing "Anyway, you're probably sent your friends that haven't you?"

"By jinks! I forgot that!" he exclaimed. "I believe that racket on the stairs means that my trunks are arriving."

It did mean exactly that. And when Edgerton went out to the landing he encountered two expressmen staggering under the luggage, and, behind them, the terrified janitor who had returned, and who, on the advent of the baggage, had hurried upstairs to summarily evict the illegal lodgers before Edgerton's arrival.

Now at sight of Edgerton himself, the Irishman turned white with horror and clung to the banisters for support; but Edgerton only said pleasantly "Hello, Mike! I hope you've made my cousins comfortable I'll be here for a day or two. Bring up any mail there may be for me, and see that the landing is properly dusted after that."

He came back to the studio intensely amused

"I thought that guilty Irishman would faint on the stairs when he saw me," he said. "I merely said that I hoped he'd looked out for my cousins' comfort. . . . You know," he added laughingly, "I'm anything except angry at him."

"Are you really glad to know us?" she asked curiously. "We've heard that New Yorkers are not celebrated for their enthusiasm over poor relatives from the outer darkness."

"New Yorkers," he said, "are not different from any other creatures segregated in a self-imposed and comfortable captivity. People who have too much of anything are spoiled to that extent—ignorant to that degree—selfish and prejudiced according to the term of their limprisonment. All over the world it is the same; the placidity of self-approval and self-absorption is the result of local isolation. We're not stupid; we merely have so much to look at that we don't care what may take place outside our front gate. But if anybody comes in, he'll have no trouble, because he'll be as much of a New Yorker as anybody really is."

"Is it," she inquired, "because we are merely attractive that you mention the relationship?"

"I'm afraid it's—partly that," he admitted, reddening and glancing askance at Diana

"Stop tormenting him!" said Diana. "He's candid, anyhow. It's very fortunate all around, anyway." she added naively "Enough exactly why she considered it fortunate to meet a man with two dollars in his pocket and the legal right to evict her she did not explain to herself.

THE SAG AT FORTY

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

UNTIL an active man reaches the age of forty his waist ought to remain smaller than his chest. If the waist at forty measures a little more than the chest, less harm will accrue if the increased girth is due to fat than sagging

Sagging indicates a loss of tone of the local muscles, and is an index of general loss of tone throughout the body. In such a case the individual is apt to realize the significance of these changes, for he is usually conscious of a loss of vigor. He has less "pep" than he ought to have

The after-forty sag is worse still Then the sag indicates an excess of blood in the digestive and associated organs and a deficiency of blood in the brain and muscles. All the muscles of the body are flabby Even the muscles of the cheeks sag Wrinkles and the double chin are due to retention

An active brain, it will be seen, depends largely upon an active body. Drowsiness is one of the results of a poor cerebral circulation Similarly, poor general circulation means lazy muscles and an inactive liver; all the vital organs, in fact, participate in the general let-down, and resistance, stamina and vital energy are lowered.

The reason why sagging shortens the wind is because of the downward drag on the diaphragm, the muscle which, when it can rise properly, ventilates the lungs and makes their normal action possible. Thus, there is not only a mechanical difficulty, but the poisoned air in the lungs is not forced out, and this adds to the individual's sense of fatigue.

The Debut of Spring

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

© 1922 BY INT'L FEATURE SERVICE, INC

THERE is a line that says, "Winter lingers in the lap of Spring." Well, there are days, too, when Spring, little blossom-hung, green-scarved Veridis, ventures out of a tree-hole and invades Winter's domain The air are lazy, sodden days when even a city dweller can smell the soft Chinook, can scent Spring flowers from far off, when the air is sweet and languid; those are the days when SPRING puts on skates and comes onto the ice.

And vigorous, young King WINTER, he comes along glittering in his fur and diamonds, his glittering crown of ice, his Russian boots, and skates rings all around her! For he's an old hand and can cut his name in the ice, and jump four barrels, and make a grapevine and spin like tee-totum—and Spring is an amateur. Sometimes he falls with a crack for the pretty little thing, swings closer and closer, with ringing steel, and at last is at her feet. Then Spring stays.

Those are the days when "a young man's fancy" lightly turns to bungalows, a car in the country and love —NELL BRINKLEY.

JUST LIKE PA

He was the son of an author who writes a very shaky and illegible hand.

The other day a fly fell into his inkwell. The boy discovered the unhappy insect, rescued it, and dropped it on a sheet of paper, where it recovered sufficiently to drag itself about.

The boy watched its movements for a while, and then:

Best Recipes

Apple Pie

Mix together about 1 quart of flour, 2-3 pound of lard, 1 teaspoonful of baking powder, a little salt and enough water to make the dough fairly soft, then roll out in 4 medium-sized pie plates with the above dough In each place 4 tablespoonfuls of sugar, also in each a small piece of butter and a little nutmeg After peeling and slicing the apples, fill each plate and cover with the balance of the dough. Then brush the tops over with milk The juice will not run out of these pies while baking, and will leave the oven with a golden brown crust.

Glorified Rice

Dissolve 1 package of lemon jello in ¼ pint of boiling water, add ¾ pint of canned pineapple juice When cold, but not stiff, beat until consistency of whipped cream Have 2 cups of cold boiled rice, cooked dry. Fold rice into whipped jello, add 1 cup of whipped cream. Add 4 tablespoons of sugar, also salt to taste. Set in cool place to harden. This will serve from 8 to 10 persons. You may omit cream, and it will still be a delightful dish.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

WHEN I was a little fellow how I envied hoary age, folks with judgment ripe and mellow, in the wise, dozing stage! How I loved to hear them scheming, mapping out their proud careers, and it always set me dreaming of the splendid, coming years. But when others spoke of labor, digging hard at thus and so, I'd no passion for the sabre, and no yearning for the hoe. Tho I heard my friends speak loudly of the power of the pen, while they boosted authors proudly, I'd scant care for writing men. I'd no wish to be a waiter or an artist or a bard; for I'd quite decided later not to choose a life as hard. Said I: "There's one situation that could never fail to please, so I'll choose for occupation sporting on those beds of ease" I had heard a lot of chatter of the flowery beds of ease, eating from a golden platter, hastening to purple dress. For my portion I selected some such sweet and simple life, and in hopeful vein rejected toil and hardship, care and strife. But I must admit it's funny, the I've traveled quite a jet, and in part the path was sunny, I've not found that easy spot. I have spent my days in hunting for my share of bread and cheese, and I've been too busy hunting to glimpse once those beds of ease.

A Good Ad!

"Waiter," growled a customer, "I should like to know the meaning of this! Yesterday I was served with a portion of pudding twice the size of this."

"Indeed, sir!" replied the waiter. "Where did you sit?"

"By the window," answered the customer

"Oh, that explains it!" said the waiter. "We always give the people at the window a large helping. It's a good advertisement!"

A Real Hair Saver

Get from any drug or toilet counter today a bottle of Parisian Sage and use as directed—there's nothing else so simple, safe and effective

Before going to bed I rub a little Parisian Sage into my scalp," says a woman whose luxurious, soft and fluffy hair is greatly admired "It keeps away all dandruff, my hair is never dry, faded or scraggy, but retains its natural color and beauty." Parisian Sage is inexpensive, and money refunded if not satisfactory. —Advertisement.

NATURE LOVES BRIGHT COLORS

We see the truth of this statement in the varicolored flowers, the vivid summer birds of brilliant plumage. But we never see it exemplified more attractively than in the person of a splendidly healthy woman. How does nature paint this health? Why, the rosy cheeks, the transparent skin, the smooth red lips of such a woman. And she molds it in firm flesh and rounded contours. The ailing woman is deficient in natural coloring, and she does not even appear to advantage in clothes that would set off her more attractive sister. Many women who long for glowing health will find that they, too, can have these charms if they will make a trial to that remedy which brings strength to frail women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. —Advertisement.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To chop jelly for decoration, have it rather stiff, turn it onto a sheet of waxed paper and chop it quickly and lightly, but not too small, with a sharp, clean knife.

A worn stair carpet may be much improved by having the surface darned with a rug wool. Be sure to match the color carefully.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED LIFE

Anne and Lyons Drive to the Park and Discuss the Problems That Hedwig Had Brought Up for Them

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1921, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"SO that's that," I cried. Then with a smile. I ventured to add "And, remember, I count on the friend."

Then I wisked into my office, brushed away a fugitive tear or two and powered my nose vigorously. All of which, with a hat to top it off, made me ready to go down to the street, where Lyons and the car were due at 1.

How I managed it, I don't know —but all thought of Carl in connection with his moment of madness was promptly wiped from my mind and I resumed thinking of him as a big brother who has never failed in a crisis. As to our little misadventure, it didn't touch Jim's wife. My only feeling about it is that Carl failed himself in a crisis, but that he'll somehow manage just because of it to be a stronger, sturdier man than he's ever been before.

"Where to, ma'am?" asked Lyons when I reached the curb, where he and the car were waiting precisely as I'd known they would be.

"First, I want a bite of lunch, then we'll inspect an office in this building," I said, handing Lyons the address of the place where Carlotta had taken the refusal of the third story for me. "And then, Lyons, we'll drive in that quiet path you know in the park and discuss the problems Hedwig has brought up for us."

A Hasty Lunch

Hastily I got through my lunch, sending Lyons at the same time, and over his protest, to have a bite also. Then we drove to the little three-story building where I was sure I was going to locate even before I inspected its roomy, sunshiny spaces. Next we drove to a place where second hand office furniture in good condition can be bought for a fraction of its original cost

MAKE HOME A DELIGHT

By Loretto C. Lynch—

"TO begin with," writes a correspondent who signs herself "A Mother-Failure," "I confess I have not willfully neglected my children, but it has been my ignorance that has caused me much sorrow. I thought it perfectly all right to let my boy go over to the kitchen each evening after dinner to study his lessons. I thought it all right to let his younger sister get extra fresh air by romping out in the street to play after dinner—in fact, I encouraged it. For it left John and me free to devour our newspapers, to comment upon the happenings of the day, to rest."

These followed in this letter in detail the story of tragedy which might have been averted if this home had been a social centre for the children. For the home that is a real social centre for family life will keep the sister and brother who work outside the home at home evenings under the loving guidance of parents

Such child can be trained into having an ideal of what is a "good time." The later in life the training starts, the more difficult is it, of course, to create that ideal. But it is never too late to start.

"You've not brought me out here to discuss your wife's squabble with Hedwig. I know you well enough for that. There's something behind this. What is it?"

"That sour-faced thing!" I cried spontaneously.

A Silent Vow

Grimly I set my lips and registered a silent vow

"Virginia Dalton, I saved you once from yourself and for Pat But that was after you'd played hob with Pat's happiness—and almost with his reason, too. But I expect a square deal — and some day I'm going to exact it. Not for myself, but for Phoebe and Neal —and Jim, perhaps. And when I demand payment, you're not going to refuse. So that's that—my Lady Disdain."

The car was spinning along as I reflected. Presently it slowed down a bit, turned a familiar curves and made its way into the little secluded birch-hung path which poor Sheldon Blake had striven to me in the first months of my marriage. In the most sheltered part of that quiet path Lyons came to a full halt, stepped out and stood, as once before board of Anthony Morrow car. He had stood, respectfully waiting for me to open the conversation.

"Well, Lyons, what have you to tell me this time? Is it news of Dick West—or only of Slim Darrow?"

I smiled reassuringly as I spoke, the reassurance was for myself as well as for the man standing in the path with one foot on the running board. News of Dick West or of Dad Lee was what I craved, but not even to the trusted chauffeur who'd elected himself my bodyguard could I mention Dad Lee's name.

"Tain't of neither of them that I want to talk to you, Miss' Harrison," said Lyons, fumbling with his cap. "But of the woman Hedwig. For, begging your pardon, ma'am, that old gal is—some gal."

In the language duly accredited to the mouth of a visiting potentate, I found myself whimsically reacting to Lyon's declaration that Hedwig was some "gal." With an inward chuckle, I reflected:

To Lyons, however, I made a far different retort, saying seriously:

"You've not brought me out here to discuss your wife's squabble with Hedwig. I know you well enough for that. There's something behind this. What is it?"

"That sour-faced thing!" I cried spontaneously.

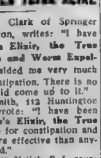
TODAY'S BEAUTY HINT

It is not necessary to shampoo your hair so frequently if it is entirely and properly cleansed each time by the use of a really good shampoo. The extent to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers is one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair and may be enjoyed at very little expense, by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox which can be obtained from any druggist, in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough for one application It is to all the hair instead of just to the top of the head. This, when rubbed into the scalp and onto every strand of hair, chemically dissolves all impurities. It is very soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to both scalp and hair. After rinsing out the hair as greated, you will find the scalp is fresh, clean and free from dandruff, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.—Advertisement.

Mrs. J. Emerson Tells How Cuticura Healed Salt Rheum



"I had salt rheum on my hands and under my knees. It broke out in tiny water blisters, and caused me much misery by night. It would crack and was so sore I could not bend my knees. The itching was terrible dreadfully, and sometimes I had to scratch in my sleep.

"I had the salt rheum for twenty-five or thirty years. I was told to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I did. They began to stop the itching at once and I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment, when I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Jesse Emerson, R. F. D. 1, Box 49, Palermo, Maine.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

* * *

* * *

The New York Stock Exchange has 1,200 members. Personally, I would be willing to do business with more than 1,000 of them. In fact, I sincerely believe that the number of dishonest New York Stock Exchange members is less than the number of dishonest concerns in any other line in which there are upwards of a thousand concerns.

* * *

* * *

We hear a lot about flimflamming by banks and trust companies, particularly things included in the vicinity of Wall Street. My experience is that New York bankers know how to look after No. 1 very well. When financial propositions, particularly promotions, are brought to them they usually insist upon terms which strike legitimate men as very stiff. But in their relations with their regular depositors and customers, discrimination is conspicuous by its absence. Broadly speaking, the public can feel absolutely safe in doing business with any established bank or trust company in the city.

* * *

On the Consolidated Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Market institution, there are also far more honest than dishonest brokers. Unfortunately, there are a few black sheep associated with these institutions, and when a broker is bad, he can be, and usually is, very, very bad. The exposures now being made regarding the buckeshop of orders for the buying and selling of stocks do not constitute pleasant reading. Moreover, there doubtless will be further revelations now that the criminal authorities have launched an aggressive campaign.

* * *

The unscrupulous operations of dishonest "brokers" have been facilitated in various directions. Certain advertising agencies have not been at all careful to inquire into the character of those whose advertisements they have put out. Certain newspapers, too, have made no attempt to exercise judgment with a view to distinguishing between legitimate houses and illegitimate fakers. It is common gossip among Wall Street's thoroughfares that certain financial writers have received above accepting financial favors to get the securities issued by fakers favorably commented on in newspaper columns.

* * *

Nothing could be more wholesome than to see Uncle Sam put a stop to the way of smoking out the pirates who infest the Wall Street district. Happily, the New York Stock Exchange, the Consolidated Stock Exchange and the Curb Market Association are all in sympathy with this movement and are lending their authorities every possible co-operation. The more thoroughly the housecleaning at this time the better it will be both Wall Street and the country at large.

* * *

Let us repeat, however, that there is no occasion whatsoever for suspecting that every Wall Street house is crooked. Nor is there the slightest reason for fearing wholesale failures among reputable brokerage firms. The concerns that are being forced by the present exposures are those that were bucketing their orders; that is to say, when they received orders to buy stocks they didn't buy them, and when the market has advanced so much, these bucket shoppers have not the means to purchase securities when customers demand them.

* * *

All through the upheaval which followed the bursting of the war boom the absence of stock exchange failures has been truly remarkable. The percentage of failures among legitimate brokers has been distinctly less than among merchants, manufacturers and other classes of business. So-called "commission failures" have lately been occurring at the rate of more than 100 every business day. There have been only two stock exchange failures of importance during recent months. The failures that are now taking place among brokers are members of the stock exchange have, generally speaking, been brought about by bucketing.

* * *

No, the percentage of honesty in Wall Street is quite as high as it is anywhere else in the country. Wall Street's unpopularity is due chiefly to the fact that so many people speculate in the stock market. We have no business whatsoever to speculate. And when they lose they do not blame themselves but berate "Wall Street." The ordinary citizen, possessing no special knowledge of finance or investments, should not speculate. Let him invest in high-grade securities. But let him beware of having anything to do with fly-by-night "brokerage" firms which importune him to buy tenth-rate stocks in this, that and the other project about which the most glittering promises are made. Such firms have no record of performance to their credit.

Canadian Discount Falls

New York, Feb. 21.—Further ease in discount rates in the United States and Canada is reverting to pre-war conditions, months say the Canadian dollar sold at a discount of 7½ cents in the market. Today the discount on Montreal fell to 2 15-16 cents, the lowest rate since 1919.

Holland Negotiates Loan

New York, Feb. 1.—It is reported that the Netherlands government has negotiated with New York bankers a loan to be offered in this country, it may run for thirty years and be offered to yield from 6 per cent. to 6½ per cent.

Stocks Closed Strong in New York Market; Call Rate Is Lowered to 4½%

U.S. STEEL RISES MORE THAN 3 POINTS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

The highest price level of the day was reached in New York in the last hour and that market closed strong and with gains ranging from fractions to more than three points. U. S. Steel was up more than three points at the finish. Low-priced rails were strong and active in late trading, several selling at their highest in a year or more.

The trend was upward during the forenoon when American Ice sold at a record high and American Locomotive at its highest price since 1920. So did U. S. Steel and Canadian Pacific. Steels and rails led the upward procession, two points. National Enameling recorded because of fear that its common dividend would be reduced. Its 1921 deficit is estimated at about $3,000,000. The market reacted a little in the midday hour, but rallied in the afternoon. U. S. Steel advanced almost two points. The selling of New York transactions was based upon their valuation by the Transit Commission at only $465,480,150, although carried on corporation books at $791,450,839. Cash money opened at 5 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were irregular as to changes, which were small.

HAD A GOOD START.

The market had a good start and displayed activity as well as strength at the opening. It remained firm during the first hour, motors, steels and rails selling higher at the end of that period than at the outset. Before noon substantial gains for more than a year had been reached by Baldwin, Steels, Motors, Some Mines, General Electric and American Woolen, while Steel and Foundry had established its top price for 1922 and Locomotives were strong as a class. Coppers were heavy. Sugars and tobaccos were dull, but Sumatra Tobacco made a gain. Oils ruled higher, but were not moved in so great an extent as yesterday. Studebaker, the active leader in the automobile list. Among stocks to advance from one to two points were General Electric, which did the best; Davison Chemical, American Can, Hide and Leather pref. and Baldwin and American Woolen. Among those to recede more than a point were National Enameling and Union Oil.

GRAIN HELPS STOCKS.

Higher prices for grain are helping stocks, as it is reasoned that increased buying power for farmers will help business in general. They being the greatest purchasing class and provided the bulk of the income for credit for order houses in particular. How wheat may help a stock was shown by Sears-Roebuck, which rose 3. It advanced about six points in a few minutes, being one of the first hour features. In three months wheat has climbed about 50 cents a bushel. This may have political as well as commercial influence. Agricultural prosperity will tend to soften grievances which are responsible for the "farm bloc." There seems to be no prospects of cheaper money for some time. According to a Washington dispatch, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon says no immediate consideration will be given further reduction of rediscount rates by Federal Reserve banks.

Broad Bend Market

New York, Feb. 21.—Exceptional breadth in the market today was responsible for the trend in the main being upward, especially the foreign list. Sterling, exchange on Paris and French government flux were at new high records.

Trading during the forenoon session, second and fourth six were strong, the latter including Woolen, while rail, tire, municipals and Chinese and Chilean bonds were in demand. Mexican Petroleum and its issues ruled heavy, the former losing 2 points and the certificates 3 points. Sinclair Oil was strong on the announcement of the local traction companies making a deposit of $1,000,000 to secure their 7 per cent. 1 to 4½ notice. Interborough Consolidated Corporation 5½ per cent. Washington dispatch. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon says no immediate consideration will be given further reduction of rediscount rates by Federal Reserve banks.

Broad Bend Market

New York, Feb. 21.—Exceptional breadth in the market today was responsible for the trend in the main being upward, especially the foreign list. Sterling, exchange on Paris and French government flux were at new high records.

ONE SICK CITY JOINS FORCES FOR REFORM

Spillane Tells Plight of New Orleans; Boston's Foreign Students' Dinner

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Philadelphia, Feb. 21.—New Orleans is seeing red because it has suffered enough from dilatoriness and procrastination at the hands of official and organizations. Its streets have been neglected in some degree and its sanitation has been as thoroughly as they should be.

Politics has been favoritism, it is alleged, to other parts of the country to the disadvantage of New Orleans which probably would not have been possible if the city's interests had been looked after in the proper form. The city requires a new charter which it has been promised over and over again, but hasn't got beyond the promise stage.

NEW ORLEANS SICK.

The Association of Commerce asked the people to serve notice on the procrastinators and "Alibi Ikes" of politics that a meeting would be held to be unity of action for the promotion of the city's interests. A statement of its good intention the association has made every head of a trade or civic body in the city a member of its board of directors. This means coordinated effort.

Confidentially, the association demands support from the public through 1,000 additional members to bring the association's total up to 6,000. There are various cities that would envy it for the same good purpose as New Orleans.

Oh!!! No.

The official program announces it was a "complimentary dinner to students from non-English speaking countries attending institutions of higher education in Metropolitan Boston," and that it was given by "New England industrial corporations" under the auspices of Minute Men, eligibles and escalators, of the Boston Chamber of Commerce for 1922.

The list of guests includes representatives from the Philippines, Japan, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland, Greece, Argentina, Russia, Puerto Rico, Spain, Palestine, Bulgaria, Switzerland, Denmark, Chile, Trinidad, Brazil, Italy, Siecho-Slovakia, Australia, India, Ecuador, Scandinavia, Belgium, South Africa, Armenia, Canada, Korea, Holland, Cuba, Dominica, Venezuela and British Guiana, Hawaii, Germany, Colombia, Turkey and Peru—truly a goodly representation.

PUZZLING FEATURES.

But there are several puzzling features about that official program. Even that non-English-speaking countries did the various guests named Bradley, Collins, Fitzgerald, Harrigan, Hennessy, Kane, Kelly, Mc-Bride, McCafferty, McGaffee, McKibben, McNeil and Murphy come?

Also, why the "New England industrialists, eligibles and escalators of the Boston Chamber of Commerce?" There are various persons who have not had the benefit of "attending institutions of higher education in Metropolitan Boston" who crave to know.

From the report of the French Minister of Finance it appears that more than 200,000 persons have failed to pay the income tax. Now he serves notice that if they do not settle with him in 90 days they will be fined an amount equal to that which they owe, and then if they do not pay, their salaries and other sources of income will be garnisheed.

One thing that can be said in approval of war taxes is that they are likely to make war unpopular. Were it not did the people know as now the cost of this purpose is.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Trading in stocks Monday was characterized by a fair increase in activity with the volume estimated at more than 800,000 shares, while the general undertone indicated firmness and resistance to pressure. There were features of marked strength which amounted in some cases to actual buoyancy, and while the list was not without its weak spots they were the exception and more due to special influences.

NEWS was conflicting. Sterling was strong, with another new high level, commodities were higher, with a sharp advance in wheat and a further display of strength in cotton. The call money rate, however, rose to 5 per cent., after renewing at 4½ advocates of the soldiers' bonus were reported to be as persistent as ever in their efforts to find some method by which they could carry out their plans. The news contained the threat of a coal strike possibility.

THE technical position of the market, however, continues to baffle the professional element by its display of strength. It seems quite to be being about advances than to force declines. With the exception of Sen-ate Copper, which was heavily sold on the announcement of another large block through Kidder, Peabody and National Enamelling, which broke on predictions of unfavorable dividend action, there were no features of exceptional weakness.

SENTIMENT was much more strongly impressed by the new high level for U. S. Steel and the advances in United Fruit, General Electric, Westinghouse, American International and Studebaker. Kelly-Springfield materially changed the general market tendency when it refused to decline in response to a threatened reduction in the rate of earnings.

THE low-priced rails appear to be attracting a public following. The real leaders were St. Louis & Southwestern, Frisco & Missouri Pacific preferred, although there was confident buying of Rock Island and other medium and low priced issues.

SO long ago as 1917 accumulation of Rock Island occurred. This accumulation took place between 16 and 20. Since then, the stock has been as high as 41, a quotation reached in March and October, 1920. Various Wall Street consultations, according to one who is familiar with the operations of this particular group, occurred during 22 and 23 and finally between 28 and 33. During all this time it has been possible to buy truthfully that denominations for powerful speculative interests was in progress. Until general business and market conditions were right did this group deem it best to show their hand. The public seems to be willing to engage in the market and of business conditions are quite propitious for an advance in the prices of the railroad stocks. Experiments have been made by several groups to test the possibility of obtaining a public following in their stocks. The process still is in progress. Upon the success of these present efforts will depend the market for railroad stocks for some time. According to some of those most interested, it may be said that the results so far obtained have exceeded the fondest hopes of some of these groups.

THE American Tobacco stocks, both A and B, were exceptionally strong, with sales of the former above 139 and of the latter near 135. Accompanying the advance were reports that the annual statement, presently to be made public, may show earnings of approximately $18 per share on the nearly $90,000,000 on both classes of common stock outstanding.

NATIONAL ENAMELLING AND STAMPING was the weak point in the day's market. The stock closed Saturday at 41¾ and before 2 o'clock sales were recorded at 33¾. The directors met today to act on the dividend, and the impression prevails that the payment will be passed. There was far from a unanimous opinion in the directorate which might refer to the annual statement to be published, but this was not taken seriously in usually well-informed quarters. It is believed that the annual statement will be made public today will show a deficit of nearly $2,000,000 as compared with net earnings of $1,782,000 in 1920.

PROFESSIONALS who continue to sell United Fruit short, again paid little or no heed to their activity when the quotation was advanced to 145, a new high record. The professional element has been on this stock ever since the capitalization was doubled a year ago.

THERE seems to be an element of mystery, according to gossip in the street, as to the dividend action of Jones Brothers Tea. An official statement said that the directors at their meeting last Friday did not take any action on the preferred dividend, but that action will be taken at a meeting scheduled to be held April 1.

THE sugar stocks were aggressively strong during the hours of the day's session, buying being partly for the account of shorts and partly for long. The raw sugar market is quarterly firmer, with substantial sales being made at 2¾ cents cost and freight.

Why the OIL STOCKS
Are Now Attractive

The critical season of crude oil depression has about run its course. From now on, with increased demand for refined products, the big operating companies will prosper.

Our carefully prepared pamphlet outlining many of the principal companies which should be favorably affected, is ready for distribution.

Rise Has Already Added Several Hundred Millions to Nation's Wealth

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Consumers of grain everywhere plus bad conditions in our Southwest are co-operating with dealers in exchange to make the two most prominent events in current economic history, the rise in grains and the advanced prices of foreign bills—not exactly co-operating, for the two do not know each other very well.

Yet the new high prices for the leading European exchanges today are a contradiction to the advanced figures for grain, inasmuch as the high-er the price of the export article the greater the amount of bills and log

The Famous Title Test!

OTHER LARGE REWARDS.

There are other substantial rewards, prizes of $750, $500, $400, $300, $200, $150, $100 and $50.

There is no question whatever but that the Book Test competent to "talk title tests" could, if he dropped everything else, march forth TODAY and in one week roll up such a tally of New Contestants as would win the $1,000 award.

There are some among you who today know that you have scores big enough to place you among the leaders. Why don't YOU get into the Membership Competition? What better selling argument could one have than "I feel absolutely certain that in the recent Book Test I have won at least a few hundred dollars, and I shall be glad to give you such help as I can." No reason whatever why the same individual may not take the $500, $750 or even $1,000 from each of these Tests.

And some folks complain that there are "no chances any more!"

SOMEBODY WILL GET IT.

If you do not want the money, don't take it. Somebody will get it, for it must be paid, MUST BE WON. At the same time, remember that the Test Editor has made a search for the quest of each one of you. ONE new contestant.

The largest number of Correct Titles thus far revealed by the checkers is 55. There are two 54's. And there is a definite dead-line. Note the figures, old timers. In the Song Title Test and in the Movie Test, you will remember, the high score was 53. The testers are doing better and better; the artist is stepping. Somehow or somebody will come through one of these tests with 56.

Book Test Editor:

The question of the hour is, "What will be the artist's method in the new Test?"

And believe me, he sure is some artist. I guess I am not the only old-timer who got shaded. On Saturday night, before the last, I had the 48 titles right. And I changed eight of them. My score should have been 54 or 55. Of course it would not have been fair to let the dictionary-hound grab off every contest, every many good scores. If this is your argument, I'll admit there is something to it, but why not say 50-50 on the Famous Titles Test and give us workers a show?

Your words to this effect caused me to change the titles. You said: "The animal is not walking your direct to the titles." I maintain, on the contrary, that his 48 pictures reprinted up to date were very easy. I picked those first-crack, without so much as turning a page of Webster's. So, in my opinion, the winners will be those who caught the answers at random, without a bit of digging.

Make it 50-50 then, so that those of us who work can do our part a little reward. This is no kick, except as I recall your repeated statement that these tests mean work. We did work, and with what result? Not a single genuine "striker" in the lot, up to No. 49!

It is fair, I admit, but let us have a few pictures where everybody wins and make EVERYONE work to carry away any dough.

Thank you for all good words, times and remember this: I shall have four sets in my family next time, four different heads to check Mr. Artist, and look out! I am bound to meet you next June.

Roxbury. C. W. P.

Your letter should interest those who found pictures among the 49 that should have been "thrown out of the Test as unfair."

GAVE SELF A SURPRISE.

Test Editor:

Your letter with the Enrollment Blanks received. I had begun getting names before they arrived and will have them back on time. Thank you. The Test is the best fine and then some. Not much of a reader, I have surprised myself by getting so many right. Keep them up.

G. B. D.

Dear Test Editor:

You are a good sportsman, No, there was nothing in the rules to suggest that you were "testy," although no one could blame you if you were at times. Say, "just a teeny bit," anyway. I do love to read the letters. I like the Test. It's the fun trying to catch them. If it did fall down on the "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," and that beauteous maiden on the hotfoot, I have no complaint. I entered the Test with the idea of writing titles without the aid of books of reference of any kind and, up to date, I am more than satisfied with the result.

Milford. O. B. E.

I observe your objection to the word "pine," in the "Lonesome" title. The dictionary, I feel sure, will confirm you that the "fir" is a member of the pine family.

QUALIFIES AS EXPERT.

Dear Test Editor:

Will you please tell me how one could possibly have No. 8 as an "Untilled Field." It certainly is a field or pasture, but a great deal of our pasture land is sown and must necessarily be tilled. No farmer or gardener would possibly attempt to sow the picture whether your field was a wild virgin growth or a cultivated one, and, consequently, a tilled field. I am afraid you and your artist do not know much about the fields. Also, the field might have been corn last year and could not therefore be an untilled field. Tilled is past tense and might have been tilled at any time. No one but an experienced city men could say with assurance, as you do, that the picture represented an untilled field.

H. A.

Nahant.

I am sending you the name and address of the tax collector in a certain little village. You will see that he does not inform you that the Test Editor qualifies as an expert on "untilled fields." Fields grow wild. See 50 original Book Test Drawings. And some of those drawings are little gems.

Can a person or object be in and out at the same time? I do not ask, you observe, whether part of a person or object can be in and part out at the same time. Are not "in" and "out" when predicated of the same person or object mutually exclusive and contradictory? And again, when did a part equal the whole? It used to be taught, when I went to school, that the whole was equal to the sum of ALL its parts. Drawing No. 46 denotes a woman's head, the lower part of the body is indoors. Is, therefore, the person both "in" and "out" of doors? I presume your artist has heard of the principle of contradiction, formulated many years ago and accepted ever since by the common sense of mankind as an axiom or self-evident truth. When you apply the title "Indoors and Out" to drawing No. 46 the fallacy is self evident.

If in Drawing No. 46 there is not represented a black, in a condition of fuss or disturbance which may be loosely described "Black Business," the word cannot be a misnomer as applied to the business in which we are engaged.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am loath to suspect anything phony, if you will pardon the word, but you can explain, perhaps. Let me say in conclusion that I have submitted this matter to persons whose knowledge and judgment I have every reason to respect. While they are not interested to the extent that I am, I feel that they as well as I will be interested to hear what you have to say in the matter.

J. J. M.

Lowell.

I follow you like a twin brother on the "predicated" and "mutually exclusive," but I wish you had not brought up the "principle of contradiction, formulated many years ago. There is your weakness! Joe Gooch fellow v. Pinehart, in 64 Minnesota. Read what Dr. Lorenz says. Give it a look in the Acts and Resolves of the Legislature of 1911. And have you forgotten the binominal theorem?

The drawing in question showed a woman leaning half way out of the kitchen window and were Correct Title is "Indoors and Out." Don't let 'em get you different.

ANY READER CAN TAKE PART.

Test Editor:

I would like to enter the Test that starts Monday. I am the Boston American and wish to ask what I must do to obtain Enrollment Blanks.

MRS. A.

Crompton, R. I.

Enrollment is NOT necessary. The Enrollment Blanks go only to those who took part in the Book Test, and who are getting New Contestants for the Famous Titles Test. ANY reader can take part in the Famous Titles Test, without enrollment.

Dear Editor:

If you would keep us kickers from kicking, in the next contest, try this: Instead of asking for that "one of these titles fits to days's picture better than any other," say "in today's list of Titles can be found the title we think fits today's picture best"—or words to that effect.

That would give us no chance for an argument. We want peace and so do you.

It certainly is hard to please us all, but we want to be pleased and you want us to be pleased and I firmly believe your form of statement, that one title fits the best, is an unwise one.

We all enjoy these tests and if you will remove this bone of contention we will have a better time.

B. L. H.

Hartford.

It probably is quite possible to "cut out the kicks." And do we really want to do so? Are they not instructive? Wouldn't the long wait be dull without them?

KICKS OVER NO. 45.

Dear Sir—I was convinced, but not satisfied on No. 35, but when you call No. 45 "Frank and Fearless" you either made a mistake, or your artist ought to be fired. The reason for this kick is that my selection for 45 was "Old King Clovis lived from 466 to 511. The suit of armor used in the picture was that of a French king of later than 1256, A. D. I think I've got you, this time, what do you say?

F. F. R.

South Lawrence.

In the upper right hand corner was prominently displayed the name Clovis. There was no other text. Clovis, first of the Franks. Given the title "Frank and Fearless" to illustrate, the distinguished savant who drawn these pictures naturally thought of Clothilde's husband as the "Frank," printed his name in letters a mile high, and then drew the picture of a great dressed up pork barrel hardware that he could afford to be "fearless." Be that as it may, Clovis was both "Frank and Fearless."

Dear Sir—After reading the many letters that have been published in your paper I should like to offer a word in praise of the Test artist. The pictures are very clever, artistic and clear, and to me seemed a decided improvement over the illustrations in the previous tests. In those, at times, the reading matter in the drawings appeared to be unrelated to the drawing.

Like so many others I have failed in this Test because I too often refused the Correct Title as "too easy." As to the much discussed No. 52, I selected "Wages of Sin." The wages of sin is death and the picture seemed symbolical of death, from the skull in the foreground to the death-dealing bombs and guns.

Expecting to do better in the next contest, which I am looking forward to with interest, and thanking you for a most interesting entertainment, I am,

R. E. W.

Winchester.

The artist is quite certain that a scene like that depicted today means "Bad Times." Any objection? The chair fears none.

And now, for one day, the Test Editor must ask for more indigence. A re-print of drawing No. 54 (in the smaller one-column size) would, considering its Correct Title, satisfy no one. For that reason No. 53 will be printed tomorrow and No. 54—alone—on Thursday.

Please don't forget that between now and Sunday you are expected to round up at least one New Contestant. "Just to show," etc.

Chinese Delegates Pleased at Conference Results

Much of Success in Getting Justice for China Attributed to the Hearst Newspapers

太平洋和會中國代表諸公見
美國深念友誼之助令列強前
日凌迫霸佔華土要區均已餐
約交還美邦仗義執言實為環
球無匹今我華府代表均已滿
意并感謝美邦諸報紙之力我
中外華人全体同戴斯德永世
不忘今特致言祷祝仰我中美
永為良好之友焉

The Chinese delegation to the Disarmament Conference is returning to China highly gratified by the results to their country which have been accomplished at the conference.

While China was betrayed and outraged with the consent of President Wilson at the conference at Versailles, public opinion in America compelled our representatives at the Washington conference to make some real effort to see some justice done to China and to prevent the assassination of that great people by Japan and Great Britain.

Dr. Hsu Ting Fan, counsellor for the Chinese delegation, expresses profound gratitude for the work the Hearst newspapers did to inform the American public of the treatment which China was receiving. To this work, the Chinese delegation attributes much of the success which it had in getting justice for China.

Dr. Hsu Ting Fan said:

The Hearst newspapers have been exceedingly kind to us and have helped us at the conference. Through their columns we have felt the friendly interests and the help of America and we go back to tell our people of the wonderful attitude and friendship of the Americans for the Chinese.

The world should let China alone to work out her destinies. The most dangerous thing to the peace of the world would be to permit Japan to get control of China and then to militarize her four hundred millions and turn them against the white race. Today the intelligent men and women of China hate the Japanese for years of wrongs done to China. But it would make little difference how much they hate the Japanese if once they were entirely under the heel of Japan's militarism.

It is a strange fact that in spite of all their terrible wrongs at the hands of Great Britain the roll of dead in Britain's most critical struggles have shown a predominance of Irish names.

Look Happy if Baby Cries!

But Frown When Its Mother Hits It

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

The first thing is to remember that the mother or father of a crying baby in a crowded car should be sympathized with and looked at kindly, instead of being hated.

You know how uncomfortable you feel in a car on a hot day when your collar pinches and your clothes stick. But you have no idea how miserably uncomfortable that poor little baby feels when it screeches and screeches and will not stop. It wriggles and jumps and is held in uncomfortable positions until its clothes get twisted so tightly around it that they hurt. Its weak little brain is frightened by the noise, by the strangers, and perhaps driven to desperation by a stomach ache.

If you saw a man with a young puppy in a car, you would think it quite natural that the puppy should whine and cry in its basket, afraid of the strangeness. Try to understand that a HUMAN puppy is bound to cry under the same conditions.

When you see a poor mother with a crying, yelling baby, don't frown or get up and change your seat, and look as if the mother and baby were murderers. Smile kindly at the mother, and try to look as though you liked a crying baby better than any other, and had plenty of them at home. Sometimes a poor mother, wearied by the evident annoyance of the passengers, is driven to whip her baby or shake it, in the effort to make it be quiet—a useless effort, for, thank heaven, the American BABY, at least, does not submit to tyranny without a protest. He is a better American than his father in that respect.

Few people appreciate the deep sorrows of babyhood and early childhood. The baby's griefs are real. No one knows what it suffers through inability to express itself or explain its wants.

If a man or a woman were sick in a car, everyone would be sympathetic and kind. Why not feel just as sorry for a crying baby? It needs sympathy, and IT INVARIABLY HAS A GOOD REASON FOR CRYING.

You can help to protect babies, also, by a clearly expressed disapproval of the mother or father that strikes a child or otherwise treats it cruelly in public. There ARE such mothers and fathers, unfortunately.

We'll use the puppy-dog comparison again. You would certainly look indignant if you saw a big, heavy hand striking a small, soft puppy, that didn't know any better than to whine. Try to look as indignant, or ten times more so, whenever you see a child struck.

Letters to the Editor

De Valera's Stand

Editor Boston American:

Ireland's foremost figure of the present day is Eamon De Valera. The events of the past few weeks have demonstrated beyond dispute the wisdom and expediency of his stand in the Irish crisis. Never wavering for a moment in his devotion to the cause of human freedom and to the principles for which Terence MacSwiney but yesterday made the supreme sacrifice, De Valera has refused to go down on bended knee before the British imperialists.

VICTOR GERTLIN.

Time for Recognition

Editor Boston American:

Allow us to congratulate you and all the Hearst newspapers for their attitude towards the sister country of Mexico.

Who have been benefited from the ten years of fighting Mexico has endured, outside of some arms and ammunition manufacturers and contrabandists? Think of the loss of American lives, the destruction of their properties. These are just some of the many reasons why the United States government should recognize that of Mexico. E. GARCIA LOPEZ.

ARE YOU SNEERING AT SOME "TIGHT-WAD"?

You consider So and So, employed right in the same shop you are, a tight-wad, a close-fisted fellow—a penurious woman, as the case may be.

Why? Because when money is collected for any purpose the so-called tight-wad of the place never chips in and helps out the cause.

You never see or hear of that person spending for anything but bare necessities.

But do you know the circumstances which make for the careful hoarding of the dollar in the case your mind reverts to?

Perhaps the one you have dubbed "tight-wad" is systematically dividing the income according to budget practice and in order to make things come out even cannot allow any money for unexpected collections if regular necessities and worthy obligations are to be kept up.

Should Sex Problems Be Discussed and Taught?

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

When they ate of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, then—says the Bible—the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed themselves fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons.

Evidently, their job was not wholly satisfactory, for the naive scriptured story goes on to tell us that unto Adam and to his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins, and clothed them.

Obviously, that is an allegory, as sweet as it is simple, to suggest the beginning of morality in a sense of shame. Our primal parents, aware of being naked, covered their bodies and uncovered their moral vision.

Immediately after the passage just cited, the writer of that Genesis chapter announces, with childlike simplicity, the most significant fact in human evolution.

"And the Lord God said, Behold the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil."

Endless Quest

What the primitive man began, way back there at the dawn of human self-consciousness, must continue to be his chief and distinguishing function, until he does indeed become "perfect in God."

An endless quest, therefore, this pursuit of the Good! And the moral career of the race is the one unescapable concern and interest of each of us also.

Therefore, too, sexual continence and correctness have been idealized and made fairly synonymous with morality; not that chastity is really the whole of morality, but because it is commonly the fount and origin of the moral life.

Though this is naturally a permanent problem of mankind, it has developed new phases in our day. Ours is a time of great and growing freedom of thought and speech; and there are those who fear the results of this freedom as related to sex questions.

Hence the vitality of interest in such matters as sex hygiene and birth control. Hence also the virility of the opposition to any discussion of these themes, except privately and by experts.

It certainly is questionable, both ethically and psychologically measured, what the net result is of one method or the other—the traditional method of taboo and of deliberate ignoring of these questions, or the modern tendency of free and frank discussion.

For instance—to bring up to date the biblical association of clothes with the moral sense—without prudishness, one may vocally wish that girls and women did not so plainly emphasize the sex appeal by the manner of their dress.

There is no need to take sides in a discussion whether the female of the species is today more or less deadly than it has ever been. The fact remains that, through exhibition of their person they make themselves the common visual property of all male eyes that see them.

"And they sewed themselves fig leaves, and made themselves aprons." Adam has done so. But Eve is off the job!

Then there is the matter of conversation. Again, without being prudish, one must say that the gain is not evident from promiscuous talk on these themes among young men and women—and older ones—who are not charged with public responsibility for the social solution of these problems.

In the Schools

So also, it is at least questionable how desirable it may be to have sex hygiene taught in the schools. Certainly, children should not be made too conscious of themselves physically.

An instructed and responsible parenthood would solve our problem, by assuring to each child early, continuous, and complete education in sex hygiene.

Ah! but how shall we secure that supreme need of the human race, intelligent and devoted parenthood?

Obviously, ignorance is not innocence. Ignorance, far from being bliss, is a curse. Ignorance of sex facts is probably at least the negative cause of more mischief, evil and misery than even judiciously given knowledge could ever foster.

Knowledge we need, and it should be universal; also we may yet ruin the race even more effectively than the insanity of war threatens such destruction.

But knowledge of sex facts must be coupled with some of our finer moral qualities, such as REVERENCE and RETICENCE. These brutal frankness and hypocritical taboo.

Marriage Laws Were Strict

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—Marriage relations among the early Assyrians were subject to a strict code of laws, it is now learned from a valuable cultural document made accessible to the scientific world in a German translation of the cuneiform text-preserved in the Asiatic division of the Berlin Ethnographical Museum.

The early Assyrian lawmakers had this code inscribed on a set of clay tablets, unearthed during the excavations of the German Asiatic Society in Mesopotamia. By comparing the find with other prehistoric documents, the date of these tablets has been established around 100 B. C., which would coincide with the reign of Tiglat-Pilesar I.

The rights and duties of married women and the punishments imposed for the infringements of these laws, form the chief contents of this book of laws, and as the marital relations of a nation have always been regarded as a reliable barometer of its culture, this discovery throws an interesting light upon early Assyrian social conditions.

Fun Flashes

IT ROLLED OFF

"I want you to try this pill at bedtime," he said. "It's a new treatment, and if you can retain it on your stomach it ought to cure you."

The next day the doctor called again. "Did you manage to retain the pill on your stomach?" he asked eagerly.

"Well, the pill was all right so long as I kept awake," said the farmer, "but every time I fell asleep it rolled off."

SOLOMON UP-TO-DATE

After listening to both sides, the magistrate turned to the prosecutor.

KEEP UP THE FAITH BY MEMORIES OF HOME

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Features Service, Inc.

THERE he was, crowded in between a big auto truck and an auto bus on lower Broadway, New York, the other day.

A street car ahead of him, a taxicab behind him, and not very far away the clander and roar of the elevated train.

How confused and puzzled and undecided and astonished he did look, the little plains pony.

A regular broncho he was, with a pair of wild eyes and a shaggy mane and four of the liveliest, limberest legs you ever saw.

Someone had him by a halter and was pulling him along. I was crazy to jump out of my own taxi and run and lay my hand against his rough neck and tell him that I knew just how he felt—how homesick and lonesome and bewildered he was.

What Does He Think?

If ever a horse's eye said "nobody loves me," that horse's eye spoke those words and spoke them with eloquence that went straight to the heart.

I wonder what he thinks of it all—the rush and the noise and the cries and the hurry, and nobody ever taking time to roll a cigarette and turn around in the saddle and look at the sunset—just for luck.

Roach his mane and bob his tail, and shine him up like a new pair of russet shoes and send some poor little rich boy out into the park for a ride?

He'd like that at first, the cowboy pony. Plains ponies always like boys. They're born and brought up with them—but this will be different.

The boy will be in correct riding togs and he'll wear gloves and gaiters, and oh, horrors! What if he rides English fashion on a little postage stamp of a saddle way up on the horse's neck and rises and falls with the horse's step!

I'm afraid the poor little rich boy will have a hard time to do that with Comanche Joe—that's what he looks as if he ought to have for a name.

Comanche's used to riders, all right, but not riding school riders. He's used to fellows who stand up in the stirrups and whoop and tell him to "let her go."

Always Reining Up

He can't startle Comanche by climbing around under his body and picking up a cigarette from the ground while you're going at full gallop. He knows all about a dozen tricks like that, and he loves them, too, with his wild, stubborn, fiery little heart aglow.

But, dear me, there'll be a groom with the poor little rich boy—a smart, immaculate groom in livery, perhaps—and how he'll despise Comanche and how Comanche will hate him. Always reining up beside him and telling the poor little rich boy how to hold the reins and how to use the whip—just as if boys weren't born on horseback and didn't know more about ponies than any sophisticated groom in the world.

Never mind how much they dress you up, you keep the faith, Comanche—don't you let them make you over into an imitation horse, no matter how hard they try.

Wide plains, jagged peaks, blue sky, the scent of the sage in the air—what's that, a bunch of tumble-weed? Look, there goes a coyote, lean and gray and hungry!

Dear me, I'm afraid. I'm homesick.

How We Hear

SOUND is transmitted to the ear by the vibration of the air. When one particle of air is made to vibrate it sets the adjacent particles to vibrating, and so a sound wave if not obstructed, passes in all directions from the sounding body.

The calculated velocity of sound in the air, when the temperature is at freezing point, is 915.69 feet per second. When the temperature increases, sound travels faster, and the rate has been calculated at a little more than one foot per second for each degree of rise in Fahrenheit's thermometer.

CALLS FOR A MEETING OF NATIONS ON DRUG EVIL

By Dr. Erwin C. Ruth,

Chief of Narcotic Division of Internal Revenue Department in Boston.

WHY not have an international opium and cocaine conference in the United States this year?

We have just held a disarmament conference for the purpose of lessening the destruction of mankind because of wars. The world just had a four-year war with powder, but a world drug war remains with us, one 150 years old and destroying life by the millions.

Two mighty ancient nations have deteriorated because of the drug evil, and America should not tolerate the more modern and rapidly destroying morphine and cocaine scourge.

China has been struggling heroically against opium. She has prohibited its cultivation and use, and in the year of 1919 the Peking government burned stores of opium to the value of $15,000,000. She has organized anti-drug societies and they have protested against the importation of American morphine into China.

Opium Holiday

Instead of scrapping battleships, let Great Britain, France, Holland, Portugal, Japan, Siam, Turkey and Persia scrap opium and call a ten-year holiday. There would be sufficient opium left in America to supply the world for medicinal needs for that length of time.

Some people who have studied the narcotic problem may say, "We have had four international opium conferences within the past twelve years, and instead of checking the drug evil, it is spreading all over the world by leaps and bounds."

This unfortunately is very true, but why? Because the regulation of the opium commerce or trade has invariably been the issue and results of all four conferences.

The American delegates to these conferences advocated the suppression of the cultivation of the opium poppy save for medicinal purposes. The countries most interested in the drug trade refused to curtail their traffic, and only agreed to import opium to countries which would lawfully accept the drug. But international rules or regulations will not protect a country from opium or its derivatives so long as the source of the trouble is not removed.

Article 295 of the Versailles Treaty placed the world opium question under the jurisdiction of the League of Nations, America, being a party neither to the Versailles Treaty nor the League of Nations, had no official voice in the 1921 meeting held in Geneva.

America cannot be eliminated from the opium problem, as its solution must be obtained, League or no League of Nations.

America must stay out of all the political entanglements of the League of Nations and must also keep politics out of the opium evil.

Conference of Nations

Therefore, an international conference must be held in America for but one purpose—the suppression of the cultivation and production of opium to the lowest amount necessary for strictly medicinal purposes and the entire prohibition of the manufacture of cocaine which is unnecessary as a remedial agent.

The production of opium could be discontinued for several years if all countries would recognize its legitimate use as does the United States.

Opium and its derivatives, except heroin, which should be prohibited, is of incalculable value to the practice of medicine and humanity when properly used.

Opium as water or fire is necessary and indispensable in the proper place, but in a terrible destructive agent not in the proper place.

The flood of narcotic drugs has reached the United States and to New England, where political suppression was overcome and freedom established.

It cost America an appalling civil war to abolish negro slavery. It also entailed Great Britain, which was the first to abolish slavery, an enormous financial sacrifice. The East can afford to abandon the opium monopoly for the world's welfare.

Here in New England let it be suggested that an old-fashioned demonstration take place at a meeting at Faneuil Hall, where the present call to drug slavery may be "heard around the world" and another freedom to humanity be created in our cradle of liberty.

India's New Capital

The new capital of India is now being built just south of Delhi. Although Delhi is the site of many ancient capitals, the present city dates from the reign of Shah Jahan, the greatest of the Mogul emperors.

The new capital city when completed will cover approximately thirty-six thousand acres, and will house more than fifty thousand people connected with the administration of the imperial government.
